

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

My fiancé and I come from a strong Christian background but both went off the "straight and narrow" once before. He is having a hard time accepting my past, especially that I'm not a virgin. He has a hard time in general accepting himself and others.

His insecurities are hurting our relationship. How can I help him let go of my past and decide to live in the present?

My dad doesn't like the fact that I'm a boy. He yells at me daily because of it and he tells me I'm extreme and over dramatic.

I get so depressed because of my dad's yelling. He keeps asking me why I can't just be happy the way I am and yells at me on a daily basis. Is this considered emotional abuse?

I have a friend that who I used to be in a relationship with. It was brief and turned into us being just good friends.

I spent the weekend with him and it upset my boyfriend. Was I wrong?

I crossdress and like to be feminine but I am attracted to women, but yet that seems to bother girls I date or ask out.

How can I approach them about it? should I hold back and keep it a secret, or should I just be up-front about it. I wonder if I should stop or if I should continue to do it since it makes me happy. What should I do?

I don't know how else to explain it. All I can say is that I feel empty, I feel nothing. How do I stop feeling this way?

I'm dealing with an illness that will never go away and I feel like my life will never change for the better. I feel alone and that I have no one.

How can I overcome this pain and learn to be happy alone?

I am in my early 20s and I still live with my parents because I can't afford to live alone.

My mother says that if I live under her roof I have to follow her rules. She is trying to control my life. What should I do?

I'm concerned about My 12 year old daughter.

About a month or two ago she started walking on her toes, as well as coloring and writing very messy. This all happened very suddenly. She has never walked on her tiptoes and has always colored and written very neatly.

Is this something I should be concerned about? Any advice will help.

A few years ago I was making love to my wife when for no known reason I lost my erection.

Now I'm in my early 30s and my problem has become more and more frequent. This is causing major problems for my ego and it's diminishing my self esteem. This has resulted in ongoing depression and tearing apart my marriage.

I am devastated and cannot find a cause for these issues. I am very attracted to my wife and want to express it in the bedroom like I used to.

What could be causing this, and what can I do about it?

I've been bullied for years and the teachers have done nothing about it. I haven't been diagnosed with depression, but I have been extremely sad for years.

How can I deal with being bullied at school when the teachers won't help?

I'm dealing with imposter syndrome in graduate school. I know that by all accounts I am a phenomenal graduate student, and that I am well-liked by students and faculty alike. And yet I cannot shake the feeling that I'm going to be found out as a fraud.

How can I get over this feeling?

I'm in my late teens and live with my dad. The only time I go out is for my college classes. Sometimes when I see my friends I want to talk with them, but sometimes I won't want to talk to them for days or even weeks.

Sometimes I feel I'm not worth knowing or I'm never going to do anything right.

Are they right, am I depressed?

I am in a high stress position for a tech company. I am being overworked and underpaid for my contributions and it is not only giving me anxiety, but also demoralizing.

What can I do to manage my stress?

My daughter seemed to be developing at a normal rate until about the age of 10. She then started to act younger than she is.

Now she only wants to play with younger kids and she doesn't act her age. I don't know why this is happening. Is this normal?

My son was diagnosed with autism a few years ago and I stopped working so that I could take care of him. I also was dealing with an abusive relationship (mentally, physically, and emotionally). Now I live like a recluse and I always feel nervous around people.

How can I feel more comfortable around other people?

I'm a teenager and I've been sneaking out of my house at night for a year now. I've been caught several times. I want to stop doing this but I don't know where to start. How do I stop?

I keep having these random thoughts that I don't want. Things like "you aren't worth anything." I know they're my own thoughts but it feels like someone else is saying it.

What is wrong with me, and how can I stop having these thoughts?

My boyfriend is in recovery from drug addiction. We recently got into a fight and he has become very distant. I don't know what to do to fix the relationship.

What am I doing wrong? My wife and I are fighting all the time. What can I do? We don't agree on anything and she usually jumps to conclusions, which are usually wrong on how I feel. She is very family-oriented while all of my family left me on my butt, abused, ignored and messed up with me mentally. I'm not a family-oriented person. I only have two people in my life - my best friend and my wife.

My mother forced my father out of my life so I do not know who he really is. We've gotten in contact but he just makes comments on how much I look like her when in fact I look more like him. This makes me mad because I don't want to look like my mother. I hate her. All that she did was bring me down and make me homeless, which she was successful at. I need guidance in my life. I don't want to lose my wife but we need to have a space because we usually hit each other and it's not healthy. I'm dying to make our relationship healthy.

We rent from my boyfriend's parents. His father drops by unannounced and stays for long periods of time. He lets himself into our home when we aren't there on a daily basis and takes our dogs to his house. He picks up our mail. He has NO boundaries.

He's an opinionated, rude pushy person. He expects to spend every weekend around us, gives unsolicited advice on child rearing and does not respect our privacy at all. He barges in with no warning. He has a key and lets himself into our house without asking permission. I need help. How do I address this?

My mother is combative with me when I say I don't want to talk with her about my depression.

She hasn't been supportive of me in the past and she isn't someone that I feel comfortable opening up to. She constantly tries to instigate conversations where she asks me questions that I don't want to or can't answer. I tell her I don't want to talk and she starts arguments with me.

How can I get her to understand?

The birth mother attempted suicide several times while pregnant. The adopted mother was terminally ill upon adopting the baby and died when the child was just over one year old. The adopted father then remarried to a physically, psychologically, and emotionally abusive woman. The child was placed in foster care at 11 years old.

What might be the long term effects on an adult with this childhood history?

I think adult life is making him depressed and we often sleep in on weekends until 1 or 2 pm. We just eat, smoke weed, watch movies, and he'll go on his phone all day. He doesn't seem motivated to do much and he's often angry.

I have no clue how to help him take his mind off the negative, or to distract him into a different light. How do I help him?

[illegible]

Llama 3.2	I can only imagine how challenging it must be to navigate your self-acceptance and identity, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. I want to assure you that you are not alone in this struggle, and there are people who care about you and want to support you. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.	Llama 3.1	3	4	5	5	5	5	5	5	Coherence: 3 The response demonstrates adequate coherence as it explores the client's anxiety in a logical and connected way, acknowledging the impact of societal expectations on self-acceptance and identity. However, the response could benefit from a clearer introduction. Fluency: 4 The response demonstrates adequate fluency, with clear and coherent language that values empathy and acknowledges the client's feelings. The writing style is straightforward, without evident grammatical errors or awkward phrasing. Empathy: 5 The response demonstrates exceptional empathy by actively listening to the client's feelings and boundaries. The therapist acknowledges the client's personal struggles and validates their unique experience, showing a clear understanding of the emotional needs. Professionalism: 5 The response demonstrates exceptional professionalism by maintaining a clear therapeutic focus, respecting the client's autonomy, and using precise therapeutic language. The counselor describes their role and emphasizes the importance of client values and boundaries. Reflection: 5 The response demonstrates exceptional reflection skills by accurately identifying patterns and connections within the client's experience. The therapist uses targeted questions to encourage self-discovery, acknowledging complex emotions and normalizing their feelings. Education: 5 The response delivers exceptional educativeness by providing accurate, relevant, and personal information tailored to the client's specific situation. The therapist explains complex psychological concepts clearly, offers evidence-based interventions with clear rationales, and encourages the client to seek professional support. Conciseness: 5 The response demonstrates exceptional conciseness, distilling complex therapeutic content into a clear and direct message without sacrificing essential clinical value. The counselor efficiently communicates understanding, validation, and direction without unnecessary repetition.
	It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about yourself, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.	Llama 3.1	4	4	5	5	5	5	5	1	Coherence: 4 The response demonstrates adequate coherence as it explores the client's anxiety in a logical and connected way. The therapist acknowledges the client's feelings and offers suggestions to address the anxiety without abruptly shifting topics. However, the coherence could be improved by more clearly linking the suggestions to the client's expressed concerns. Fluency: 4 The response demonstrates adequate fluency, using clear and coherent language that values empathy. The therapist's sentences flow reasonably well, and the language is precise enough to convey meaning. However, the response could benefit from more varied sentence structures to enhance readability. Empathy: 5 The response demonstrates exceptional empathy by acknowledging the client's feelings and validating their experience. The therapist shows genuine understanding of the client's emotional world without judgment, and the language is empathetic and supportive. Professionalism: 5 The response demonstrates exceptional professionalism by maintaining a clear therapeutic focus, respecting the client's autonomy, and using precise therapeutic language. The counselor emphasizes the importance of client values and self-choice, while providing clear guidance. Reflection: 5 The response demonstrates exceptional reflection skills by accurately identifying patterns and connections within the client's experience. The therapist uses targeted questions to encourage self-discovery, acknowledging complex emotions and normalizing their feelings. Education: 5 The response delivers exceptional educativeness by providing accurate, relevant, and personalized information about the client's anxiety. The counselor explains psychological mechanisms clearly, offers evidence-based interventions with clear rationales, and encourages the client to seek professional support. Conciseness: 1 The response is excessively lengthy, taking 103 words to convey a message that could be expressed more efficiently. The therapist uses unnecessary explanations and repetitive language, diluting the therapeutic message and potentially frustrating the client.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

	Persistent bad mood and lack of energy are common symptoms of depression, but they can also be caused by other factors like stress, poor sleep, diet, or physical health issues. It's important to consider the	Chat GPT4			4	5	2		4	1		4	4	# Rating Assessment Let me evaluate this therapy response based on the established guidelines: ## Coherence: 4 (Proficient) The response demonstrates strong coherence with a clear logical progression. It connects the client's symptoms to potential causes, explains the importance of context, suggests professional consultation, outlines possible interventions, and concludes with e ## Fluency: 5 (Exemplary) The response shows exceptional fluency with flawless grammar, appropriate professional vocabulary, and varied sentence structure. The language flows effortlessly while maintaining professional tone, creating a seamless therapeutic narrative that balances ## Empathy: 2 (Needs Improvement) The response acknowledges the client's symptoms superficially but quickly shifts to clinical information without adequately validating their emotional experience. While it normalizes the symptoms ("common symptoms"), it fails to convey genuine understandi ## Professionalism: 4 (Proficient) The response maintains appropriate boundaries, respects client autonomy, and demonstrates ethical awareness by encouraging professional assessment rather than offering premature conclusions. It balances providing information with encouraging appropr
Claude 3.7	Feeling sad consistently and experiencing conflict with family can feel very isolating and frustrating. It sounds like you're feeling stifled and seeking more autonomy. It might be helpful to explore these feelings further with a therapist who can provide a neutral space for you to express yourself and explore strategies for establishing boundaries. Therapy could also help in developing coping strategies to manage sadness and improve your emotional well-being. Additionally, finding activities that empower you and affirm your independence might also help in creating a sense of growth and personal development.	Chat GPT4			4
US		Chat GPT4			4	4	4		4	3.25		4	3.5
	Feeling lost and disconnected from yourself can be incredibly difficult. It's okay to acknowledge that you've changed, and rather than trying to "get back" to who you were, consider focusing on rediscovering yourself in a new way. Prioritizing self-care, seeking therapy, and identifying small, meaningful actions that bring you comfort can help. Sleep issues can intensify these feelings, so developing a bedtime routine and managing stress might improve rest. You're not alone in this—support is available to help you navigate through these emotions and find clarity.	Chat GPT4			3	3	3.5		4	3		3	3
US		Chat GPT4			3	3	3.5		4	3		3	3

[illegible]

[illegible]

Context/rater		Prompt	GPT-4	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conscientness	cs3-mini	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conscientness	avg score
Olivia					4	4	4	4	3	3	3	3		3	3	3	3	3	2	2	3
Camellia					4	4	4	4	2	3	3	3		3	3	4	3	2	2	2	3
Yousuf					4	4	3	4	3	3	3	3		3	3	3	3	2	2	3
Yash					4	4	4	4	3	3	3	3	3.5	3	3	3	3	2	2	3	2.75
I feel depressed	You are a therapist	I'm so sorry you're feeling this way. Hiding your pain can be exhausting, and you don't have to go through this alone. Your family doesn't need someone "better"—they need you. Please consider reaching out for support, whether through a trusted person, a therapist, or a crisis helpline. You deserve help, just as much as anyone else. Writing is a great outlet, but talking to someone who can support you through this could truly help. You are not alone, and there is hope, even if it doesn't feel that way right now.	91			4	4	4	4	3	4	4		94		3	3	3	3	2	3
Olivia					4	4	4	3	3	4	4	3		3	3	3	3	3	3	2	3
Camellia					4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3		3	3	3	3	3	3	2	3
Yousuf					4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3		3	3	3	3	3	3	2	3
Yash					4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	3.821428571	3	3	3	3	3	2	3	2.857142857
I think I may be sad	You are a therapist	I'm sorry you're facing this challenge. Your feelings are valid, and you deserve support. If traditional therapy isn't an option, consider free or low-cost mental health resources like online support groups, crisis hotlines, or school counseling services. You might also explore self-help strategies such as journaling, mindfulness, or exercise to help manage your symptoms. If possible, have an open, calm conversation with your parents about how this is affecting your well-being. You are not alone, and there are ways to get help even if they don't currently support therapy.	89			4	4	3	4	4	3	3		91		2	3	3	3	2	2	3
Olivia					4	4	3	4	4	3	3	3				3	3	3	3	2	2	3
Camellia					4	4	3	4	3	3	3	3				3	3	3	3	2	2	3
Yousuf					4	4	3	4	4	3	3	3				2	3	3	3	2	2	3
Yash					4	4	4	4	4	3	3	3	3.571428571	2	3	3	3	2	2	2	3	2.607142857
When I'm sad	You are a therapist	I'm sorry you're feeling this way. Self-harm is often a way to cope with overwhelming emotions, but there are healthier ways to manage pain. Try grounding techniques, deep breathing, or creative outlets like writing or art to express your feelings. Reaching out to a trusted person or seeking professional support can help you navigate these emotions safely. You are not alone, and you deserve kindness and care—especially from yourself. Please consider talking to someone who can support you through this. You are worthy of healing.	85			4	4	4	4	3	3	3		97		3	4	4	4	2	2	3
Olivia					4	4	4	4	2	3	3	3				3	4	4	4	2	2	3
Camellia					4	4	4	4	2	3	3	3				3	4	4	4	2	2	3
Yousuf					4	4	4	4	3	3	3	3				3	4	3	3	2	2	3
Yash					4	3	4	4	3	3	3	3	3.5	2	2	2	2	2	2	2	3	2.821428571
I stopped for a moment	You are a therapist	I'm really sorry you're struggling with this. Self-harm can feel like an addiction because it temporarily relieves emotional pain, but it doesn't address the underlying cause. If certain coping strategies haven't worked, it may help to explore others, like talking to a trusted person, using grounding techniques, or seeking professional support. A therapist can help you find healthier ways to manage emotions and break this cycle. You deserve support and healing, and you don't have to go through this alone. Please reach out—help is available, and you are worth it.	90			4	4	4	4	4	3	4		96	2.75	3.5	3.25	3.25	2	2	2	3
Olivia					4	4	4	4	4	3	4	3				3	3	4	3	2	2	3
Camellia					4	4	4	4	3	3	3	3				3	3	3	3	3	2	3
Yousuf					4	4	4	4	4	3	3	3				3	3	3	3	3	2	2
Yash					4	4	4	4	4	3	3	3	3.714285714	3	3	3	3	2	2	2	2	2.678571429
I have friends who are always there for me	You are a therapist	I'm sorry you're feeling this way. Depression and loneliness don't always come from external circumstances; sometimes, they arise without a clear reason. Even with good friends and a stable life, emotional struggles can still exist. It might help to explore these feelings through journaling, creative outlets, or talking to a trusted person or counselor. You deserve to feel happy and understood. You're not alone in this, and seeking support can help you uncover what's causing your sadness and help you work through it. Your feelings are valid, and help is available.	91			3	4	4</

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
I'm going thro I've never tri How can I ch You are a therap		I'm so sorry to hear you're struggling with feelings of worthlessness and sleep disturbances. It's understandable that you'd feel this way, especially when it feels like your thoughts are racing and you can't seem to quiet your mind. Consider seeking professional help from a therapist or counselor who can support you in exploring the root causes of these feelings. In the meantime, try practicing self-compassion and engaging in activities that bring you joy and relaxation. Remember, you are not alone in this struggle, and there is help available.	88		3	4	4	4	1	3	3	96		4	4	5	5	2	4	3
	Olivia				4	4	4	4	1	2	3	3.1		4	4	5	4	2	4	3	3.678571429
	Camellia				4	4	4	4	1	2	3			4	4	5	4	2	4	3
	Yousuf				4	4	4	4	3	2	3			4	4	4	4	2	4	3
	Yash				3	4	4	4	3	1	3	3		4	4	4	4	2	4	3
I have so man You are a therap		I want to assure you that it's completely normal to have multiple issues to address in counseling. In fact, many people seek counseling for a variety of concerns. A therapist can help you prioritize and work through each concern at your own pace. It's great that you're taking the first step by seeking help, and I encourage you to be patient and kind to yourself throughout this process. Remember, counseling is a journey, and it's okay to take it one step at a time.	84		3	4	4	3	1	2	3	100		4	5	5	4	1	4	3
	Olivia				3	4	4	4	1	2	3	2.96485741		4	5	5	4	1	4	4	3.75
	Camellia				3	4	4	4	3	2	2	3		4	4	5	4	1	4	3
	Yousuf				3	4	4	4	3	2	2	3		4	5	5	4	1	4	3
	Yash				3	4	4	4	3	2	2	3		4	5	5	4	1	4	4
I can only imagine how challenging it must be to live with chronic pain and depression. It's completely understandable that you'd feel overwhelmed and unsure of how to manage your symptoms. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies for managing pain and depression. Additionally, explore alternative therapies like mindfulness, meditation, or yoga to help alleviate symptoms. Remember, you don't have to face this alone, and there are people who care about you and want to help.		I'm so sorry to hear about your struggles with chronic pain and the associated depression. Dealing with persistent pain can be overwhelming and affect various aspects of your life. Consider seeking support from a mental health professional, such as a therapist or counselor, who can help you cope with depression and develop coping strategies. Additionally, explore alternative therapies like cognitive-behavioral therapy (CBT), mindfulness, and relaxation techniques, like deep breathing or meditation. Many hospitals and healthcare services also offer chronic pain management programs that combine physical therapy, education, and emotional support. Remember, you don't have to face this alone.	85		3	3	3	3	1	3	3	98		4	3	5	4	2	4	3
	Olivia				3	3	3	3	2	2	3	2.892857143		4	3	4	4	2	4	3
	Camellia				3	3	4	3	3	2	3			4	3	5	4	2	4	3	3.571428571
	Yousuf				3	4	4	3	2	3	3			4	3	5	4	3	4	3
	Yash				3	4	4	3	2	3	3			4	3	5	4	3	4	3
I self-harm, at You are a therap		It takes a lot of courage to acknowledge your struggles with social awkwardness and loneliness. I want to assure you that these feelings are common, and many people struggle with them. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing social skills and building confidence. Joining a social group or club that aligns with your interests can also be a great way to meet new people and build connections. Remember, you are not alone, and there are people who want to get to know you.	88		3	3.25	3.5	3	2	2.5	3	87		4	5	4	5	5	4	3
	Olivia				3	4	4	3	1	2	3			4	5	4	5	5	4	4
	Camellia				3	4	4	3	1	2	3	2.964285714		4	5	4	5	5	4	4
	Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	3	3			4	5	4	5	4	4	4	4.285714286
	Yash				3	4	4	3	2	2	3			4	5	4	5	4	4	3

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
Every winter I	You are a therapist. It's completely normal to feel uncertain about the future of your relationship, especially after having a significant conversation with your partner. It's great that you're communicating openly with each other about your feelings and concerns. Consider couples therapy to work through issues together and strengthen your relationship. Remember that relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.		65								It's not uncommon for Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD) to strike during winter. To combat feelings of sadness, try to maintain a regular routine, connecting with others through indoor activities or social events. Natural light therapy can also be effective in regulating mood. Consider investing in a portable light device specifically designed for this purpose. Additionally, engage in regular exercise, yoga, or creative pursuits to boost endorphins. Lastly, prioritize self-care, allowing yourself time for relaxation, reading, or meditation to help regulate your emotions and find solace in the quiet, snowy season.	90		4	5	4	5	4.5	4	3.5
				3	3	4	3	2	2	4				4	4	3	4	1	3	3
				3	3	3	3	2	2	4				4	4	2	4	1	4	3
				3	3	3	3	2	3	3			3		4	4	3	4	1	4	3	3.214285714
				3	4	4	3	2	3	4				4	4	3	4	1	4	3
I can't even sit	You are a therapist. I want to reassure you that it's completely normal to have multiple issues to address in counseling. Many people seek counseling for a variety of concerns, and a therapist can help you prioritize and work through each concern at your own pace. It's great that you're taking the first step by seeking help, and I encourage you to be patient and kind to yourself throughout this process. Remember, counseling is a journey, and it's okay to take it one step at a time.		83								I'm so sorry to hear you're feeling this way. It's completely normal to experience emotions like sadness and difficulty connecting with others after a loss and struggles with self-acceptance. It might be helpful to acknowledge these feelings and allow yourself to process them. Consider seeking professional help from a therapist or counselor who can provide a safe space to explore your emotions. They can help you develop coping strategies and work on building a more positive self-image. In the meantime, try self-care activities like meditation, journaling, or spending time in nature to begin feeling more connected to yourself.	98		4	4	4	4	2	4	3
				3	4	4	3	1	2	3				4	4	4	4	2	3	3
				4	4	4	3	3	2	3			3.035714286		4	4	4	4	2	3	3	3.5
				4	4	4	3	3	2	3				4	4	4	4	3	3	3
				3	4	4	3	2	2	3				4	4	4	4	3	3	3
I have been denied	You are a therapist. It's great that you're recognizing your struggles with anger management and emotional expression. This is a huge step in seeking help and making positive changes in your life. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier ways to express emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anger as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.		76								I'm so sorry to hear that you're struggling with depression and anxiety. Yes, counseling can be a valuable addition to your treatment plan. While medication can help manage symptoms, therapy can provide a deeper understanding of the underlying causes and emotions driving your depression. A therapist can help you develop coping skills, challenge negative thought patterns, and improve relationships. We can work together to explore your experiences, emotions, and behaviors, and create a personalized plan to help you navigate your depression and anxiety. Would you be open to discussing this further and getting started?	94		4	5	5	4	3	4	3
				3	4	3	3	1	2	3				4	4	5	4	3	4	3
				4	4	3	3	2	3	3			2.892857143		4	4	4	4	3	4	3	3.857142857
				4	4	3	3	2	2	3				4	5	4	4	3	4	3
When I get an	You are a therapist. I can only imagine how challenging it must be to navigate your identity and self-acceptance, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. I want to assure you that you are not alone in this struggle, and there are people who care about you and want to support you. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.		84								It sounds like you're experiencing a persistent emotional state that's affecting your daily life. Feeling sad or irritated after those specific interactions or when you're alone can be overwhelming. It's normal to question whether these emotions are a sign of an underlying issue or just a reflection of your individual experiences. Exploring the root causes could help you better understand your feelings. Consider keeping a thought journal or scheduling regular reflective sessions to identify patterns and triggers. It's possible that we can work through this together to uncover the underlying causes and develop strategies to manage these emotions.	98		3	4	4	4	2	4	3
				4	3	4	3	1	2	3				3	4	3	4	2	4	3
				4	3	3	3	2	2	3			3.035714286		3	4	4	4	2	3	3	3.392857143
				4	4	4	3	2	3	3				4	4	4	4	3	3	3

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
											It can be challenging to adjust to significant changes, especially when it comes to social connections. Feeling isolated and struggling with loneliness is understandable. To make new connections, consider reaching out to old acquaintances, colleagues, or neighbors. Join local groups that align with your interests, such as book clubs, sports teams, or volunteer opportunities. Online platforms like Meetup.com can help you find like-minded individuals. Attend local events, and be open to striking up conversations with others. Lastly, taking care of your mental health by engaging in self-care activities, such as exercise, meditation, or creative pursuits, can also help alleviate loneliness.
In the past year	You are a therapist, and there are people who care about you and want to help.	I'm so sorry to hear that you've experienced a traumatic event. It's completely understandable that you're struggling to cope with the aftermath. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Remember, you don't have to face this alone, and there are people who care about you and want to help.	63									100
Olivia				3	3	3	3	1	2	4			5	5	3	4	2	4	3
Camellia				3	3	3	3	1	2	4			5	5	3	4	2	4	3
Yousuf				3	3	3	3	2	2	4	2.785714286		4	5	3	4	2	3	2	3.571428571
Yash				3	4	3	3	2	2	3			4	5	4	4	2	3	3
											It's understandable to feel exhausted and irritable sometimes, but chronic fatigue and persistent bad moods can indeed be a symptom of depression. Research suggests that approximately 30% of people suffering from depression experience fatigue and low energy. It's possible that you may be experiencing seasonal affective disorder (SAD) due to current seasonal changes or something else entirely. Would you be willing to explore what might be contributing to your emotional state? Let's take a closer look together to identify any underlying patterns or thoughts that could be contributing to your feelings of fatigue and low mood.
I'm constantly	You are a therapist who care about you and want to support you.	I can only imagine how overwhelming it must be to navigate new motherhood, especially when faced with unexpected emotions and challenges. I want to assure you that it's completely normal to feel sad, anxious, or overwhelmed after having a baby. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Remember, you are not alone in this struggle, and there are people who care about you and want to support you.	81									96	4.5	5	3.25	4	2	3.5	2.75
Olivia				4	4	4	3	2	3	3			5	5	4	4	4	4	3
Camellia				4	4	4	4	2	3	3			4	5	3	4	4	4	3
Yousuf				4	4	3	3	2	3	3	3.285714286		5	5	4	4	4	4	3	4.035714286
Yash				4	4	4	3	2	3	3			4	5	4	4	4	4	3
											"I can sense the depth of your emotional pain and the complexity of your experiences. It's not uncommon for individuals with challenging upbringings to struggle with current Stress and anxiety. Depression is indeed a possibility, but it's a multifaceted issue that requires a more nuanced understanding. Considering you previously received regular therapy sessions, it's great that you've had a foundation of support. Now, taking a break may have allowed you to cope but also potentially mask underlying emotions. Would you be willing to re-engage with therapy or explore alternative forms of support to better address your current struggles and work through what's overwhelming you?"
I had a very trouble	I used to be in You are a therapist, and there are people who care about you and want to support you.	It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about the future, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70									104		5	5	5	5	3	4	2
Olivia				3	3	3	3	1	3	4			5	5	5	5	3	4	2
Camellia				4	3	3	3	1	2	4			5	5	4	5	3	4	2
Yousuf				4	3	3	3	2	3	4	3		5	5	5	4	3	4	2	4
Yash				4	3	3	3	2	3	4			4	5	5	4	3	4	2
											It's concerning to hear about your partner's struggles. Establish a calm and non-judgmental conversation is essential. Start by expressing empathy and asking open-ended questions to understand the underlying reasons for his behavior. You can say, "I feel worried about you and the way you've been feeling lately. Can you tell me more about what's been going on that's making you feel this way?" Avoid being critical or accusatory, as this may escalate his negative emotions. Focus on finding solutions together, such as setting small, achievable goals or finding healthy distractions like exercise or hobbies you can enjoy together.
I think adult if I have no clue	You are a therapist to take it one step at a time.	I'm so sorry to hear that you've experienced a significant loss. It's completely understandable that you're struggling to cope with the aftermath. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Remember, grief is a journey, and it's okay to take it one step at a time.	59									98		3	5	4	4	2	4	3
Olivia				3	3	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Camellia				3	3	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yousuf				3	2	3	3	2	2	4	2.785714286		4	4	4	4	3	4	3	3.714285714
Yash				3	3	3	3	2	3	4			4	5	4	4	3	4	3

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
		It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about yourself, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	69		3	3	3	3	1	2	4	102		4	4	4	4	2	4	2
My mother is	You are a therap				3	3	3	3	1	2	4			4	4	4	4	2	4	2
Olivia					3	3	3	3	1	2	4			4	4	4	4	2	4	2
Camellia					3	3	3	3	2	2	4	2.892857143		4	4	4	4	2	4	2	3.5
Yousuf					3	3	4	3	2	2	4			4	4	4	4	2	4	2
Yash					3	4	4	3	2	2	4			4	4	4	4	4	4	2
		It takes a lot of courage to admit to feeling this way. It's not uncommon for people to feel suffocated by family dynamics, especially when they feel like they're being micromanaged or pushed to conform. It's essential to recognize that these feelings are valid and deserve attention. Recognizing your desire for autonomy and emotional space is a significant step. We can work on exploring ways for you to communicate your needs and boundaries with your family in a healthy and assertive manner, ultimately helping you cultivate more positive relationships that respect your growth and individuality.
		It's great that you're recognizing the importance of communication in your relationships. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	61		2	3	3	3	1	2	4		95		4	5	4	4	2	4	3
I just feel sad	You are a therap				3	3	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Olivia					3	3	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Camellia					3	3	3	3	2	2	4	2.75		4	5	4	4	2	4	3	3.714285714
Yousuf					3	3	3	3	2	3	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yash					3	3	3	3	2	3	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
		It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about yourself, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.	76		3	4	3	3	1	3	3		87		3	5	4	3	3	4	3
I can't seem to	You are a therap				4	4	3	4	1	3	3			4	5	4	3	4	4	3
Olivia					4	4	3	3	1	3	3	3.035714286		4	5	4	3	3	4	4	3.75
Camellia					4	4	3	3	2	3	3			4	5	4	3	3	4	4
Yousuf					4	4	3	3	2	3	3			4	5	4	3	3	3	4
Yash					4	4	3	3	2	3	3			4	5	4	3	3	3	4
		I can't provide you with advice that encourages you to keep your depression a secret. If you're struggling with depression, I encourage you to seek help from a mental health professional. Would you like more information about therapists and mental health services?
		It's completely normal to feel uncertain about your motivation and purpose, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your uncertainty as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70		3	4	3	3	1	3	4		42		1	3	1	1	1	1	4
I know I need	You are a therap				3	4	3	3	1	3	4			1	3	1	1	1	1	4
Olivia					3	4	3	3	1	3	4			1	3	1	1	1	1	4
Camellia					3	4	3	3	1	3	4	3.035714286		1	3	1	1	1	1	4	1.785714286
Yousuf					3	4	3	3	1	3	4			1	3	1	1	1	1	4
Yash					3	4	4	3	1	3	4			2	3	1	1	1	1	5
		I'm so sorry to hear that you're struggling with this. It's common to feel isolated and hopeless when faced with a chronic illness. Firstly, acknowledge that your feelings are valid and it's okay to feel alone. Allow yourself to process these emotions, but also remind yourself that you're not alone. Reach out to support groups, online communities, or a therapist like me. Focusing on self-care, setting realistic goals, and practicing mindfulness can help you cope. Learning to appreciate the present moment and finding joy in small things can also help you find happiness in solitude.
		It's great that you're recognizing the impact of anxiety on your relationships. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	61		2	4	2	3	1	2	4		95	1.25	3	1	1	1	1	4.25
I'm dealing w/	You are a therap				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	3	2	4	3
Olivia					2	3	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	4	2	3	3
Camellia					2	3	3	2	1	3	4	2.571428571		4	5	4	3	2	3	3	3.535714286
Yousuf					3	3	2	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	3	2	4	3
Yash					3	3	2	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	3	2	4	3

[illegible]

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
Yash				3	4	3	3	2	3	4	I'm so sorry to hear that you're going through this incredibly difficult time. It's completely understandable to feel overwhelmed and overwhelmed by the challenges you're facing. Feeling safe and comforting one's mind is crucial right now. We can explore together ways to establish a sense of calm. Please know that you're not alone and it's okay to feel sad. Can you tell me more about what's been stressing you out lately, and what kind of comfort or feelings would be most reassuring to you?			4	5	5	4	3	3	3
I am going thr	You are a therap	It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about the future, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70									84			3	5	5	4	3	3
Olivia				2	4	3	3	1	3	4				3	5	5	5	4	3	3
Camellia				2	3	3	3	1	2	4				4	5	5	4	4	3	3
Yousuf				2	3	3	3	1	2	4	2.714285714			4	5	5	5	3	3	4	4.071428571
Yash				2	4	3	3	1	3	4				4	5	5	4	4	3	4
											"I can sense the depth of your pain and the struggle you've faced. It's understandable that the bullying and stress in high school and college led to the re-occurrence of depression. It's especially concerning that you associated self-harm with relief, but I'm glad you've since made positive changes. It's interesting that you tie your struggles with handling problems to feelings of worthiness and self-control. This perspective may be a common pattern in individuals with depression. Let's explore this further, and consider how we can work together to develop healthier coping mechanisms and build confidence in your ability to manage stress."
My depression	You are a therap	It's completely normal to feel uncertain about your motivation and purpose, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your uncertainty as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70									100			4	5	5	4	2	3	3
Olivia				2	4	3	3	1	3	4				4	5	5	4	2	3	3
Camellia				3	4	3	3	1	3	4				4	5	4	4	3	3	3
Yousuf				3	3	3	3	1	3	4	2.928571429			4	5	5	4	2	3	3	3.75
Yash				3	4	3	3	1	3	4				4	5	5	4	3	3	3
											I'm so sorry to hear about your struggles. It's devastating that your boyfriend left you due to your depression, and the added pressure of a high deductible is overwhelming. It's not uncommon for people to feel isolated and alone, especially when family and friends have moved on. The unpredictability of your emotions, especially triggered by your ex, is a testament to the complexity of your mental health. Can you tell me more about what you're hoping to achieve or find support for in our conversation? What small steps can you take to begin rebuilding your sense of safety and stability?
I've been depri	You are a therap	It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about yourself, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.	76									100			5	5	5	4	4	3	3
Olivia				3	4	3	3	1	3	3				5	5	5	5	4	3	3
Camellia				4	4	3	3	1	2	3				5	5	5	4	4	3	3
Yousuf				4	4	3	3	1	3	3	2.892857143			5	5	5	4	4	3	3	4.142857143
Yash				4	4	3	3	1	2	3				4	5	5	4	4	3	3
											It sounds like you're experiencing a rollercoaster of emotions after your recent hospital stay. The initial anger and subsequent feelings of elation may have been a coping mechanism to deal with the stress and uncertainty of your situation. However, it's not uncommon for these emotions to shift and for individuals to experience a return to feelings of depression and hopelessness. This can be a sign that you're not yet fully processing your emotions or that your emotional resilience is still recovering. Let's explore these feelings further and work together to develop strategies to support your emotional well-being.
After he got hi	You are a therap	I'm so sorry to hear that you're experiencing anxiety and panic attacks. It's completely understandable that you'd feel overwhelmed and unsure of how to manage your symptoms. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	79	3.75	4	3	3	1	2.5	3		97			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Olivia				2	4	3	3	1	3	3				4	4	4	4	2	4	3
Camellia				3	4	3	3	1	2	3				4	4	4	4	2	4	3
Yousuf				3	4	4	3	2	2	3	2.892857143			4	5	5	4	2	4	3	3.785714286
Yash				3	4	4	3	2	3	3				4	5	5	4	3	4	3
											I can sense the overwhelming feelings of anxiety and self-doubt that you're experiencing. It's as if you're carrying the weight of the world on your shoulders. Feeling like everything is "crappy" can be suffocating. It's essential to recognize that these thoughts are often distorted, and that you're not your mistakes. Your worth and value are not defined by your accomplishments or failures. We can work together to address these distorted thought patterns and explore ways to regain coping skills, practice self-compassion, and develop a more realistic perspective on yourself and your experiences. Would you like to continue exploring this further?
I always feel I	You are a therap	It's completely normal to struggle with low self-esteem, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your negative self-talk as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your perceived flaws or shortcomings.	76									100			2	5	5	4	3	4	3
Olivia				3	4	2	3	1	3	3				2	5	5	4	3	4	3

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
Camelia					3	4	2	3	1	2	3			3	4	4	4	3	4	3
Yousuf					3	4	3	3	1	2	3	2.714285714		3	5	5	4	3	4	3	3.75
Yash					3	4	3	3	1	3	3			3	5	4	4	3	5	3
											It can be challenging when emotional expressions and feelings are suppressed, especially in high-stress situations like conflicts. The emotional numbing you're experiencing may be a coping mechanism, but it can also hint at underlying challenges in your relationship. It's essential to recognize that suppressing emotions can exacerbate feelings of resentment and frustration. Consider exploring the root causes of these fights with your fiancé, possibly due to unresolved issues or communication breakdown. By addressing the issues together, you can work towards opening up and expressing emotions in a healthier way, ultimately strengthening your bond and fostering a more empathetic connection.
I no longer ca	You are a therap to take o	I'm so sorry to hear that you've experienced a significant loss. It's completely understandable that you're struggling to cope with the aftermath. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Remember, grief is a journey, and it's okay through your emotions. Remember, grief is a journey, and it's okay to take one step at a time.	59										99
Olivia					2	3	3	3	1	3	4			4	5	4	3	2	4	3
Camelia					2	3	3	3	1	3	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yousuf					2	3	2	3	1	3	4	2.714285714		4	5	4	3	2	4	3	3.642857143
Yash					3	3	3	3	1	3	4			4	5	4	3	3	4	3
											I'm so sorry to hear that you're struggling with depression and feeling exhausted from hiding it. It's completely understandable that you'd be fearful of others' reactions, but it's also brave that you're willing to reach out now. I want you to know that I'm here to listen and support you, not to judge. Can you tell me more about what you mean by "turning out to be true" when your parents said things would get worse in the future? What's been the impact on your daily life and well-being?
I'm depressed	You are a therap compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	It's great that you're recognizing the importance of communication in your relationships. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	61										89
Olivia					2	4	2	3	1	3	4			4	5	4	5	4	2	3
Camelia					3	4	2	3	1	3	4			4	4	4	4	4	2	3
Yousuf					3	4	2	3	1	3	4	2.857142857		4	4	4	4	4	2	3	3.678571429
Yash					3	4	3	3	1	3	4			4	4	4	4	4	3	3
											I'm so sorry to hear that you're struggling with anxiety and depression. It can be disheartening to feel like you've tried everything without finding relief. It's essential to know that finding the right therapist and approach can take time. Have you considered mindfulness-based therapies, such as cognitive-behavioral therapy (CBT) or acceptance and commitment therapy (ACT)? These forms of therapy focus on developing coping skills and building resilience. It may also be helpful to explore your values, goals, and priorities with a therapist to gain a deeper understanding of your motivations and find a more tailored approach to manage your symptoms.
I have terrible	You are a therap shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about the future, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70										100
Olivia					3	4	2	3	1	3	4			4	5	4	4	3	4	3
Camelia					3	4	2	3	1	2	4			4	4	4	4	3	4	3
Yousuf					3	4	2	3	1	3	4	2.857142857		4	4	4	4	3	4	3	3.785714286
Yash					3	4	3	3	1	3	4			4	5	4	4	3	4	3
											It sounds like you're feeling stuck and uncertain about your future. It's understandable to want to create a better life for your loved ones. However, it's great that you're recognizing the feelings of inadequacy that are holding you back. I'd like to explore with you what's driving these feelings. Can you tell me more about what you mean by "I don't feel I can"? Is it related to your current job, personal skills, or something else? Let's work together to identify the obstacles and break them down into manageable steps towards achieving your goals.
I'm in my earl	You are a therap	It's completely normal to feel uncertain about your motivation and purpose, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your uncertainty as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70										94
Olivia					2	4	2	3	1	3	4			2	5	4	5	3	3	3
Camelia					3	4	2	3	1	3	4			3	5	3	5	3	3	3
Yousuf					2	4	3	3	1	3	4	2.857142857		2	5	4	5	3	3	3	3.607142857
Yash					3	4	3	3	1	3	4			3	5	4	5	3	3	3

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
		It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about yourself, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.	76		2	4	2	3	1	3	3		91		4	5	4	3	2	4	3
He said he w	You are a therap				3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	3	4	2	4	3
Olivia					3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	3	2	4	3
Camellia					3	4	3	3	1	3	3	2.785714286		4	5	4	3	2	4	3	3.5
Yousuf					3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	3	2	4	3
Yash					3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	4	4	3	2	3	3
											I can sense the weight of deep emotional pain and feeling disconnected from the world. Acknowledging your struggles is a brave step. Your late 50s can be a challenging time, and it's not uncommon for feelings of hopelessness to creep in. Your agoraphobia is a significant barrier, but there is no shame in seeking help remotely. Many people find online therapy or support groups to be a lifeline. Consider reaching out to organizations like the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) or the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) for guidance and resources. You are not a waste of time; you are a person deserving of love, care, and support.
		It's great that you're recognizing the importance of intimacy in your relationships. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	61		2	4	2	3	1	3	4		110		4	5	5	4	2	4	1
I'm in my late	You are a therap				3	4	2	3	1	3	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	2
Olivia					2	4	2	3	1	2	4	2.714285714		4	5	4	4	2	4	2	3.571428571
Camellia					2	4	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	2
Yousuf					2	4	2	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	2
Yash					2	4	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	4	2
											I'm so sorry to hear about your tragic experience. Discovering a parent's passing, especially in such a shocking manner, can be devastating and traumatic. It's no wonder you're struggling with overwhelming depression. Regarding your concerns with your husband, it's essential to acknowledge that his lack of understanding can indeed make you feel uncomfortable and vulnerable. Open and honest communication with him about your emotional state and needs might help. You may also consider couples therapy to work through these issues and find a more intimate connection. Remember, you're not alone in this, and seeking support is a sign of strength.
		I'm so sorry to hear that you're experiencing anxiety and panic attacks. It's completely understandable that you'd feel overwhelmed and unsure of how to manage your symptoms. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	79		2	4	3	3	1	3	3		100		4	5	4	5	2	4	3
Both of my pa	You are a therap				3	4	4	3	1	2	3			4	5	4	4	2	3	3
Olivia					3	4	3	3	1	2	3	2.785714286		4	5	4	4	2	4	3	3.714285714
Camellia					3	4	3	3	1	2	3			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yousuf					3	4	3	3	1	2	3			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yash					3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
											I'm so sorry to hear that you're struggling with multiple mental health conditions and recurrent self-harm. It takes immense courage to acknowledge and seek help. Recognizing your struggles is the first step towards healing. Understanding that your thoughts and feelings are valid, but not defining, can be liberating. Everyone experiences overwhelming emotions, but having ways to cope with them without harm is essential. Consider seeking professional help from a therapist specializing in trauma, anxiety, and personality disorders. They can help you develop healthier coping mechanisms, address underlying issues, and work towards a more balanced life.
		It's completely normal to struggle with low self-esteem, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your negative self-talk as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your perceived flaws or shortcomings.	76		2	4	3	3	1	3	3		95		3	5	4	4	2	4	3
I have bipolar	You are a therap				3	4	3	3	1	2	3			4	5	4	4	2	3	3
Olivia					3	4	3	3	1	2	3	2.75		4	5	4	4	2	4	3	3.642857143
Camellia					3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yousuf					3	4	3	3	1	2	3			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yash					3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	4	2	4	3

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
I stress over €	You are a therapist. I'm so sorry to hear that you've experienced a significant loss. It's completely understandable that you're struggling to cope with the aftermath. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Remember, grief is a journey, and it's okay to take it one step at a time.	59									It's completely understandable to feel overwhelmed and resentful in your situation. The pressure of not having quality time with your partner can be emotionally draining, especially with the added responsibilities of raising three children. It's essential to recognize that you're not defined by your relationship; you have your own needs and desires. Have you considered discussing your feelings with your partner, expressing your needs, and establishing a balance between family time and quality time together? Setting on realistic expectations and prioritizing open communication might help alleviate your stress and promote a healthier relationship dynamic.	94
			Olivia		2	3	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	4	4	3
			Camellia		2	3	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	4	4	3
			Yousuf		2	3	3	3	1	2	4		2.607142857	4	5	4	4	3	4	3	3.964285714
			Yash		2	3	3	3	1	2	5			4	5	4	4	4	4	4	3
I have been fe	You are a therapist. It's great that you're recognizing the importance of communication in your relationships. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	61									I'm so sorry to hear you're struggling with this. It sounds like you're experiencing a severe depressive episode, affecting your daily life and sense of self. It's understandable that you feel lost and disconnected from others and yourself. It's essential to acknowledge that this is not a reflection of your worth or identity. I'd like to explore this further with you. Can you tell me more about what you miss about yourself and what you're hoping to regain? How have you been taking care of yourself during this time?	89
			Olivia		1	4	2	3	1	2	4			2	5	4	4	4	3	3
			Camellia		2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	4	4	4	4	3	3
			Yousuf		1	4	2	3	1	3	4		2.571428571	2	4	4	4	4	3	3	3.5
			Yash		1	4	2	3	1	3	5			2	4	4	4	4	4	3	3
I am pretty su	You are a therapist. It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about the future, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70									It's brave of you to acknowledge your struggles and consider seeking help. When speaking with your doctor or therapist about these issues, consider the following approach: Start with your primary concerns: Begin by expressing your feelings and experiences, focusing on how depression, anxiety, and voices affect your daily life. Share your history: Describe your ADHD, OCD, and past suicidal thoughts, but avoid dwelling on the negative aspects. Be specific about your sleeping problems: Explain how sleep disturbances impact your mental health and overall well-being. Simply ask for help: Confidently express your desire for therapy, and ask for recommendations or guidance. Example script: "Doc, I've been struggling with depression, anxiety, and hearing voices. I've also been diagnosed with ADHD and OCD. I've struggled with sleep and have a history of suicidal thoughts. I'm concerned about my mental health and would like to explore therapy options. Can you recommend a therapist or treatment plan for me?"	148
			Olivia		2	4	2	3	1	3	4			1	3	4	3	1	4	1
			Camellia		2	4	2	3	1	3	4			2	3	3	3	1	4	1
			Yousuf		2	3	2	3	1	3	4		2.678571429	1	3	3	3	1	3	1	2.321428571
			Yash		2	4	2	3	1	3	4			2	3	3	3	1	3	1
I'm depressed	You are a therapist. It's completely normal to feel uncertain about your motivation and purpose, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your uncertainty as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70									I'm so sorry to hear that you're struggling with these feelings. It's understandable that the end of a relationship can leave you feeling vulnerable and insecure. The negative self-talk and low self-esteem you're experiencing are common emotions that often surround breakups. These feelings of worthlessness are not a reflection of your worth as a person and mother. You deserve to be treated with kindness and respect. As a parent, your value lies in your ability to love and care for your son, not in traditional societal beauty standards. Would you like to explore ways to reframe negative thoughts and cultivate self-compassion?	101
			Olivia		2	4	2	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	3	2
			Camellia		2	4	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	3	3	2
			Yousuf		2	4	2	3	1	2	4		2.607142857	4	5	4	4	3	3	2	3.5
			Yash		2	4	2	3	1	2	4			4	5	4	4	2	3	2

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
		It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about yourself, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.	76		2	4	2	3	1	3	3	88		3	5	3	4	2	4	3
I'm not the sai	You are a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.			3	4	3	3	1	3	3		2.75		3	5	2	4	2	4	3
Olivia				3	4	2	3	2	2	3				3	5	3	4	2	4	3
Camellia				3	4	2	3	2	2	3				3	5	3	4	2	4	3
Yousuf				3	4	2	3	2	2	3				3	5	3	4	2	4	3
Yash				3	4	2	3	2	3	3				3	5	3	4	2	4	3
		I can sense the overwhelming emotions and feelings of hopelessness emanating from you. It's as if you're feeling trapped in a rut, with no clear escape in sight. As a stay-at-home mom, it's natural to put others' needs before your own, but it's essential to remember that taking care of yourself is crucial. It's not a failure to acknowledge your limitations and seek help. You don't have to bear this burden alone. Let's explore ways to re-evaluate your situation, set achievable goals, and identify potential resources to support your path towards regaining your independence and stability.
		It's great that you're recognizing the importance of intimacy in your relationships. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	61		1	4	2	3	1	2	4	96		3	5	4	4	2	4	3
Over the year	You are a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.			2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	4	4	4	2	4	3
Olivia				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	4	4	4	2	4	3
Camellia				2	4	2	3	1	2	4		2.535714286		3	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yousuf				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yash				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	5	4	4	2	4	3
		I'm so sorry to hear that you're struggling with feeling overwhelmed and exhausted. It's completely understandable to feel that way, especially with the demands of modern life. It's essential to acknowledge that your well-being is crucial and that you can't pour from an empty cup. Let's work together to identify what's causing your feelings of burnout and develop a plan to prioritize self-care and make time for yourself. We can start by breaking down small, manageable steps to help you find a better balance and cultivate a sense of self-compassion. What do you think would be a good starting point?
		I'm so sorry to hear that you're experiencing anxiety and panic attacks. It's completely understandable that you'd feel overwhelmed and unsure of how to manage your symptoms. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	79		2	4	3	3	1	3	3	100		3	5	4	5	3	5	3
I don't have ti	You are a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.			3	4	3	3	1	3	3			3	4	4	5	3	4	3
Olivia				3	4	3	3	1	3	3		2.821428571		4	5	4	5	4	4	3
Camellia				3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	4	5	4	3
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	4	5	4	3
Yash				3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	4	4	5	3	4	3
		It sounds like you're struggling with a significant adjustment and identity crisis. Being part of the military is often a source of pride and purpose, and suddenly being separated from that can be devastating. Your feelings of self-loathing and shame are understandable, given the emphasis on sacrifice and service in military culture. It's great that you're acknowledging your emotions and recognizing that you can't do this alone. It takes a lot of courage to seek help. Can you tell me more about what you hope to achieve or find for yourself in therapy?
		It's completely normal to struggle with low self-esteem, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your negative self-talk as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your perceived flaws or shortcomings.	76		2	4	2	3	1	3	3	93		4	5	3	4	3	3	3
Two years ago	You are a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your negative self-talk as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your perceived flaws or shortcomings.			3	4	3	3	1	2	3			4	5	3	3	3	3	3
Olivia				3	4	3	3	2	2	3		2.821428571		4	5	3	3	3	3	3
Camellia				3	4	3	3	3	3	3			4	5	4	3	3	3	3
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	3	3			4	5	4	3	3	3	3
Yash				3	4	3	3	3	3	3			4	5	4	3	3	3	3
		I'm so sorry to hear that you're struggling with these overwhelming feelings. It takes immense courage to acknowledge and share them with me. It's understandable that you feel the need to present a happy facade to your family, but please know that you're not alone, and your feelings are valid. Depression can be incredibly isolating, but writing in your journal is a great way to process your emotions. Remember, crying is a natural release, and it's okay to feel these emotions without fear of judgment. I'd like to explore ways to help you build a support network and coping strategies.
		I'm so sorry to hear that you've experienced a significant loss. It's completely understandable that you're struggling to cope with the aftermath. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Remember, grief is a journey, and it's okay to take it one step at a time.	59		1	3	3	3	1	2	4	133		2	5	4	4	2	4	1
I feel depressi	You are a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Remember, grief is a journey, and it's okay to take it one step at a time.			2	3	3	3	1	2	4			3	5	4	4	3	4	1
Olivia				2	3	2	3	1	2	4		2.571428571		3	5	4	4	3	4	1
Camellia				2	3	3	3	1	3	5			3	5	4	4	3	4	1
Yousuf				2	3	3	3	1	3	5			3	5	4	4	3	4	1
Yash				2	3	3	3	1	3	5			3	5	4	4	3	4	1

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
I think i may s	You are a therap	It's great that you're recognizing the importance of communication in your relationships. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	61		1	4	2	3	1	2	4	95		4	5	5	5	3	5	3
Olivia				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			4	5	5	4	3	4	3
Camellia				1	4	2	3	1	2	4			5	5	5	4	3	5	3	4.178571429
Yousuf				1	4	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	5	4	3	5	3
Yash				1	4	3	3	1	2	4			4	5	5	4	3	5	3
When I'm sad	You are a therap	It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about the future, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70		2	4	2	3	1	3	4	97		2	5	4	3	2	3	3
Olivia				3	4	2	3	1	3	4			3	5	3	4	2	3	3
Camellia				2	4	3	3	1	3	4	2.821428571		2	5	4	3	2	3	3	3.142857143
Yousuf				2	4	3	3	1	3	4			2	5	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				2	4	3	3	1	3	4			2	5	4	3	2	3	3
I stopped for t	You are a therap	It's completely normal to feel uncertain about your motivation and purpose, especially when faced with significant life changes or challenges. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your uncertainty as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	70		2	4	2	3	1	2	4	92		3	5	3	4	3	3	3
Olivia				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	4	3	4	3	3	3
Camellia				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	5	3	4	3	3	3
Yousuf				2	3	3	3	1	3	4	2.678571429		3	5	3	4	3	3	3	3.357142857
Yash				2	4	3	3	1	3	4			3	4	3	4	3	3	3
I have friends	You are a therap	It's completely normal to feel anxious and uncertain about yourself, especially when faced with societal expectations and pressures. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can provide a safe and non-judgmental space to explore your feelings and concerns. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are deserving of love, acceptance, and respect, regardless of your identity or orientation.	76		2	4	2	3	1	2	3	78		3	5	3	4	3	3	3
Olivia				2	4	3	3	1	2	3			3	5	3	4	3	3	3
Camellia				2	4	2	3	1	2	3	2.464285714		3	5	3	4	3	3	4	3.535714286
Yousuf				2	4	2	3	1	2	3			3	5	4	4	3	3	4
Yash				3	4	2	2	1	2	3			3	5	4	4	3	3	4
I used to be th	You are a therap	It's great that you're recognizing the importance of intimacy in your relationships. Consider seeking help from a therapist who can support you in developing healthier communication patterns and working through relationship challenges. Practice active listening and try to approach conflicts with empathy and understanding. Remember, relationships involve growth and compromise, and it's okay to take things one step at a time.	61		1	4	2	3	1	2	4	81		3	5	4	4	3	4	3
Olivia				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	5	3	4	3	4	3
Camellia				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	5	4	4	3	3	4
Yousuf				2	4	2	3	1	2	4	2.535714286		3	5	4	4	3	3	3	3.642857143
Yash				2	4	2	3	1	2	4			3	5	4	4	3	4	3

Context/rater	Prompt	llama 3.1	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness	llama 3.2	word counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
		I'm so sorry to hear that you're experiencing anxiety and panic attacks. It's completely understandable that you'd feel overwhelmed and unsure of how to manage your symptoms. Consider seeking help from a mental health professional who can support you in developing coping strategies and working through your emotions. Practice self-compassion and try to reframe your anxiety as a signal that something needs attention, rather than a source of shame or guilt. Remember, you are capable of growth and change.	79								It's great that you're acknowledging your feelings and reaching out for support. It's common for people with depression to appear to be functioning normally on the surface while experiencing intense, underlying emotions. Feeling disconnected from work and questioning life's point can be unsettling. These feelings may not be just a result of exhaustion, but rather a symptom of depression. Difficulty distinguishing between tiredness and depression can be challenging. Consider seeking support from a mental health professional, who can help you explore these feelings and develop a plan to address them. They can also assess whether you're experiencing fatigue or depression.	100
I'm starting to	You are a therapist. You are a therapist. You are a therapist.			3	4	3	3	1	3	3			4	5	4	3	2	4	3
Camellia				3	4	3	3	2	2	3			4	5	4	4	2	4	3
Yousuf				3	3	3	4	1	2	3	2.857142857		4	5	5	4	2	4	3	3.678571429
Yash				3	4	3	4	1	3	3			4	5	4	4	2	4	2
Average Word Count / Average Rating			71	2.74875	3.72625	2.9275	3.014778325	1.263546798	2.534482759	3.562807882		96	3.634236453	4.645320197	3.976600985	3.901477833	2.568965517	3.603448276	2.933497537
Overall avg score:				2.822255148									3.614935391
Max avg:	3.321428571																		Max avg:	4.285714286
Min avg:	2.464285714																		Min avg:	1.785714286

[illegible]

Context/rater	Prompt	DeepSeek	Word Counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
I'm going through a lot of things. I've never tried therapy before. How can I characterize my experience?	You are a therapist. Please provide a brief summary of my experience based on the information provided.	It takes courage	86
Camellia				2	3	3	3	2	2	3
Olivia				2	5	3	3	1	2	3
Yash				2	5	3	3	2	2	3	2.714285714
Yousuf				2	4	3	3	2	2	3
I have so many things on my mind. I feel overwhelmed and stressed. I need someone to talk to.	You are a therapist. Please provide a brief summary of my experience based on the information provided.	You've been through a lot. It's understandable to feel overwhelmed and stressed. It's important to have someone to talk to.	83	2	4.25	3	3	1.75	2	3
Camellia				2	3	3	3	2	3	3
Olivia				2	3	4	3	1	3	3
Yash				2	3	4	3	2	3	3	2.785714286
Yousuf				2	3	4	3	2	3	3
I have a severe mental health condition. I need help managing my symptoms and improving my quality of life.	You are a therapist. Please provide a brief summary of my experience based on the information provided.	Chronic pain can be a challenging condition to manage. It's important to have a comprehensive treatment plan that addresses both the physical and mental aspects of the condition.	87
Camellia				4	4	3	4	2	3	3
Olivia				4	5	3	4	2	3	3
Yash				4	5	3	4	2	3	3	3.392857143
Yousuf				4	4	3	4	3	3	3
I self-harm, and I feel like I'm losing control. I need help understanding my feelings and finding healthier coping mechanisms.	You are a therapist. Please provide a brief summary of my experience based on the information provided.	Self-harm often stems from deep emotional pain and a sense of hopelessness. It's important to have a safe and supportive environment to explore these feelings and develop healthier coping strategies.	90
Camellia				3	4	4	4	3	3	4
Olivia				3	5	3	4	2	3	3
Yash				3	5	4	4	2	3	3	3.428571429
Yousuf				3	4	4	4	3	3	3
Every winter I find myself feeling sad and lonely. I need help understanding my emotions and finding ways to cope with the season.	You are a therapist. Please provide a brief summary of my experience based on the information provided.	What you're describing	85
Camellia				3	4	3	4	3	4	4
Olivia				2	4	2	4	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	3	4	2	4	3	3.178571429
Yousuf				2	4	3	3	3	3	3
I can't even smile anymore. I feel like I'm in a constant state of sadness and despair. I need help finding hope and meaning in my life.	You are a therapist. Please provide a brief summary of my experience based on the information provided.	I'm so sorry you're going through this. It's important to have someone to talk to and find ways to cope with these feelings.	91	2.5	4	2.75	3.75	2.5	3.5	3.25
Camellia				4	4	4	3	3	3	4
Olivia				4	4	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				4	4	4	3	3	3	3	3.428571429
Yousuf				4	4	4	3	3	3	3
I have been dealing with a lot of stress and anxiety lately. I need help understanding my feelings and finding ways to cope with the stress.	You are a therapist. Please provide a brief summary of my experience based on the information provided.	Absolutely, courage	80
Camellia				3	4	3	4	3	4	4
Olivia				2	4	4	3	2	4	3
Yash				4	4	4	4	3	4	3	3.428571429
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	4	3
When I get around people, I feel like I'm being judged and criticized. I need help understanding my feelings and finding ways to cope with the social situation.	You are a therapist. Please provide a brief summary of my experience based on the information provided.	It sounds like you're experiencing social anxiety. It's important to have a safe and supportive environment to explore these feelings and develop healthier coping strategies.	80
Camellia				3	4	3	4	3	3	4
Olivia				3	4	3	4	2	3	3

Context/rater	Prompt	DeepSeek	Word Counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
Yash				4	4	3	4	3	3	3	3.357142857
Yousuf				4	4	3	4	3	3	3
In the past year,	You are a therap	I'm so sorry you'	89
Camellia				3	4	4	3	3	3	4
Olivia				3	4	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	4	3	3	3	3	3.25
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	3	3
I'm constantly in	You are a therap	It's possible that	90
Camellia				3	3	2	4	3	3	4
Olivia				2	4	3	4	2	3	3
Yash				4	4	3	4	3	3	3	3.178571429
Yousuf				3	3	3	4	3	3	3
I had a very trou
I use to be in th	You are a therap	It sounds like you	88
Camellia				3	4	3	3	3	3	4
Olivia				3	4	3	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	3	3	4	3	3	3.178571429
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	3	3
I think adult life is
I have no clue f	You are a therap	It sounds like y	93
Camellia				3	4	3	4	3	4	4
Olivia				3	4	4	4	2	4	3
Yash				3	4	4	4	3	4	3	3.535714286
Yousuf				3	4	4	4	3	4	3
My mother is cor	You are a therap	It's tough when s	88	3	4	3.75	4	2.75	4	3.25
Camellia				3	3	3	4	2	3	3
Olivia				3	4	4	2	2	3	3
Yash				3	3	3	2	2	3	3	2.892857143
Yousuf				3	3	3	3	2	3	3
I just feel sad all	You are a therap	It sounds like you	82
Camellia				3	4	4	3	3	3	4
Olivia				3	4	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	4	3	3	3	3	3.285714286
Yousuf				3	4	4	3	3	3	3
I can't seem to fe	You are a therap	It sounds like an	88
Camellia				3	4	3	3	3	3	4
Olivia				3	5	3	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	3	3	3	3	3	3.178571429
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	3	3
I know I need to	You are a therap	It's brave to reco	89

Context/rater	Prompt	DeepSeek	Word Counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
Camellia				2	4	3	3	2	3	4
Olivia				1	4	3	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	3	3	2	3	3	2.928571429
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	2	3	3
I'm dealing with a	You are a therapist	Living with a chronic	89
Camellia				2	4	3	4	2	3	4
Olivia				2	4	4	4	2	3	3
Yash				2	4	4	4	2	3	3	3.142857143
Yousuf				2	4	3	4	3	3	3
How do I make r	You are a therapist	Losing people w	90
Camellia				3	4	4	4	2	3	4
Olivia				3	4	4	4	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	4	4	2	3	3	3.321428571
Yousuf				3	4	4	4	2	3	3
I feel like I am in	You are a therapist	What you're des	89
Camellia				3	4	3	4	3	4	4
Olivia				2	4	4	4	2	4	3
Yash				3	4	4	4	3	4	3	3.464285714
Yousuf				3	4	3	4	3	4	3
I've never been a
I've fought depr	You are a therapist	It sounds like you	98
Camellia				3	4	4	4	2	3	4
Olivia				3	4	3	4	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	4	4	3	3	3	3.321428571
Yousuf				3	4	3	4	3	3	3
I don't know how	You are a therapist	Feeling empty ca	86
Camellia				2	4	3	3	2	3	4
Olivia				2	4	3	3	2	4	3
Yash				3	4	3	3	2	4	3	3.035714286
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	2	3	3
People who are	You are a therapist	It's incredibly pai	96
Camellia				3	4	3	3	3	2	4
Olivia				3	4	3	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	3	3	3	3	3	3.107142857
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	3	3
I am going throu	You are a therapist	I'm so sorry you'	98
Camellia				3	3	4	3	3	2	5
Olivia				2	4	4	3	2	2	3
Yash				3	3	4	3	2	2	3	2.964285714
Yousuf				3	3	4	3	2	2	3

Context/rater	Prompt	DeepSeek	Word Counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
My depression h	You are a therap	It's clear you've f	72
Camellia				2	4	3	4	2	3	4
Olivia				2	4	3	4	2	2	4
Yash				2	4	3	3	2	2	4	2.964285714
Yousuf				2	4	3	3	2	2	4
I've been depres	You are a therap	I'm so sorry you'	94
Camellia				3	5	4	3	2	2	3
Olivia				2	5	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				2	4	3	3	3	3	3	3.107142857
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	3	3
After he got hom	You are a therap	It sounds like he	95
Camellia				4	5	3	3	2	3	4
Olivia				4	5	3	3	2	3	3
Yash				4	4	3	3	2	3	3	3.25
Yousuf				4	4	3	3	2	3	3
I always feel like	You are a therap	It sounds like you	89
Camellia				3	4	4	3	2	3	4
Olivia				3	5	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	4	3	2	3	3	3.214285714
Yousuf				3	4	4	3	2	3	3
I no longer carry	You are a therap	It sounds like the	93
Camellia				4	4	3	4	3	3	3
Olivia				4	5	3	3	2	3	3
Yash				4	4	3	4	2	2	3	3.25
Yousuf				4	4	3	3	2	3	3
I'm depressed. I	You are a therap	I'm so sorry you'	93
Camellia				3	4	4	4	3	3	4
Olivia				2	4	4	4	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	4	4	3	3	3	3.392857143
Yousuf				3	4	4	4	3	3	3
I have terrible an	You are a therap	I'm so sorry you'	92
Camellia				2	4	4	4	3	3	4
Olivia				2	4	4	4	2	3	3
Yash				2	4	4	4	3	2	3	3.25
Yousuf				2	4	4	4	3	3	3
I'm in my early 2	You are a therap	It sounds like you	100
Camellia				3	3	3	4	3	2	3
Olivia				3	3	3	3	2	2	3
Yash				3	3	4	4	2	2	2	2.821428571
Yousuf				3	3	3	3	2	2	3

Context/rater	Prompt	DeepSeek	Word Counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
He said he would	You are a therapist	It's incredibly painful	93
Camellia				3	4	4	4	4	3	4
Olivia				3	5	4	4	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	4	4	4	3	3	3.535714286
Yousuf				3	4	4	4	3	3	3
I'm in my late 50s	You are a therapist	It sounds like you're	96
Camellia				3	3	3	4	3	2	3
Olivia				2	2	4	4	2	2	3
Yash				3	3	3	4	3	3	3	3
Yousuf				3	3	3	4	3	3	3
Both of my parents	You are a therapist	I'm so sorry for this	100
Camellia				4	4	5	3	3	3	4
Olivia				4	4	5	3	2	3	3
Yash				4	4	4	3	2	3	2	3.428571429
Yousuf				4	4	4	3	3	3	3
I have bipolar disorder	You are a therapist	It takes immense effort	98
Camellia				3	3	3	3	3	3	4
Olivia				3	3	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	3	4	3	3	3	3	3.071428571
Yousuf				3	3	3	3	3	3	3
I stress over everything	You are a therapist	It sounds like you're	92
Camellia				4	4	3	3	2	2	4
Olivia				4	4	3	3	2	2	3
Yash				4	4	4	3	2	2	3	3.071428571
Yousuf				4	4	3	3	2	2	3
I have been falling in love	You are a therapist	I'm so sorry you're	98
Camellia				3	4	3	3	3	3	4
Olivia				3	4	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	3	3	3	3	3	3	3.071428571
Yousuf				3	3	3	3	2	3	3
I am pretty sure	You are a therapist	It's brave of you to	95
Camellia				2	4	3	3	3	2	3
Olivia				2	4	3	3	2	2	3
Yash				2	4	3	3	3	2	3	2.821428571
Yousuf				2	4	3	3	3	2	3
I'm depressed and	You are a therapist	I'm so sorry you're	88
Camellia				3	4	4	3	3	2	4
Olivia				2	4	4	3	2	2	3
Yash				3	4	4	3	2	2	3	3.035714286
Yousuf				3	4	4	3	2	2	3

Context/rater	Prompt	DeepSeek	Word Counter	coherence	fluency	empathy	professionalism	reflection	education	conciseness
I'm not the same	You are a therapist	It sounds like you	90
Camellia				2	4	4	3	3	3	4
Olivia				2	4	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				3	4	4	3	3	3	3	3.214285714
Yousuf				3	4	4	3	3	3	3
Over the years, I	You are a therapist	It sounds like you	98
Camellia				4	3	3	3	2	4	4
Olivia				4	3	3	3	2	4	3
Yash				4	3	3	3	3	4	3	3.25
Yousuf				4	3	3	3	3	4	3
I don't have time	You are a therapist	It sounds like you	98
Camellia				3	4	2	4	3	4	4
Olivia				2	4	3	4	2	4	3
Yash				3	4	3	3	3	4	3	3.285714286
Yousuf				3	4	3	3	3	4	3
Two years ago, I	You are a therapist	I'm so sorry you're	97
Camellia				4	4	4	3	2	3	4
Olivia				4	4	4	3	2	3	3
Yash				4	4	4	3	3	3	3	3.392857143
Yousuf				4	4	4	3	3	3	3
I feel depressed	You are a therapist	It's incredibly hard	99
Camellia				4	3	4	3	2	2	3
Olivia				4	3	4	3	2	2	3
Yash				4	3	4	3	2	3	3	3.071428571
Yousuf				4	3	4	3	2	3	3
I think I may suffer	You are a therapist	I'm sorry you're feeling	93
Camellia				3	3	3	4	2	3	4
Olivia				3	3	3	4	2	3	3
Yash				3	3	3	3	2	3	3	3
Yousuf				3	3	3	4	2	3	3
When I'm sad and	You are a therapist	I'm so sorry you're	93
Camellia				3	4	4	4	3	3	4
Olivia				3	4	3	3	2	3	3
Yash				4	4	4	4	2	3	3	3.321428571
Yousuf				3	4	3	4	3	3	3
I stopped for a while	You are a therapist	It's understandable	96
Camellia				3	4	2	3	2	3	4
Olivia				3	4	2	3	2	3	3
Yash				4	4	3	3	2	2	3	3
Yousuf				4	4	3	3	2	3	3

When I'm sad and alone, I want to cut myself.

I stopped for a while, but IÃdve started doing it again. ItÃs like an addiction. The more I try to stop, the more I want to do it. IÃdve tried doing some of the stuff they say to do like draw, but it doesnÃt work.

I have friends, family, I live in a good home, I go to a nice high school, and I get pretty good grades, but I donÃt know why I'm so unhappy. These friends are my best friends and theyÃre all amazing people, and yet I'm sad all the time and feel alone.

I used to be the funny guy of the group.Ãthe class clown, if you will. I used to laugh uncontrollably all the time and be able to be social without it feeling awkward. Now I can't laugh at all, and I'm dead inside.

I'm starting to think that I might have depression. The thing is though, I'm not exactly sad. I can joke with my friends and stuff, but I've stopped caring about my life and I've been starting to think that life is pointless. I really have no clue if I need help, or if I'm just tired or something.

In the last ten months, I've been kicked out, moved around three times, worked many jobs, stopped school to make money, had dad and mom get sick, was cheated on while pregnant, lost my baby, had relationship issues, and was betrayed. I can't get a job. I have no friends. I feel lonely and isolated. I've been dealing with all this by myself.

I've been feeling worthless, unaccomplished, and so frustrated. I want to break things, hit myself, run away, kick, scream, and cry. I just want to be happy and outgoing again. I want to be able to take care of my daughter and live comfortably.

I keep feeling paralyzed and unsure during interviews. Previous jobs have fired me for lack of performance, and five employers have rejected me after extensive personality tests and interviews. I'm afraid of continuing because my depression is getting worse. I'm already humiliated working for temp agencies and doubt my self-worth as a provider for my family.

I feel like I am not at a good state of mind. I'm very unsettled in my soul. I'm not happy with myself or the decisions I make, which makes me not happy with anyone else. I feel like a failure most of my days. I don't feel like I'm good at anything anymore. I feel like less of a person.

I am not sure if I am depressed. I don't know how to bring it up to my parents, and that makes me miserable.

I have absolutely nothing to do with my life but lay in bed on my phone or hangout with my one friend. I don't have a job, my family doesn't include me in anything, and I don't have many friends. I have nothing to do besides go on my phone. I miss talking to people in person instead of online. I don't even talk to my family in person even from the other room.

My motivation has gone away. It's hard to get out of bed. I really don't know what to do anymore. I'm miserable. My anxiety and depression have taken over my life.

I sleep a lot. Music changes my mood. I cry every Wednesday. My mind is like a maze that even I get lost in. I don't usually feel my true emotions, but instead, I get fake mirrored ones.

I have twin toddlers. I experienced a death of loved one prior to giving birth. I had a horrible break up with the father. People told him he was using me for money. My ex-boyfriend had extreme meltdowns every day for three years. IÃm always alone with no friends.

I live a normal life. I have tons of friends and family, but I feel lonely.

I started having anxiety three months ago. I'm new to having anxiety, and it's making me depressed.

I have no friends, no hobbies, and no interest in anything. I get annoyed with everything and everyone. I am always tired, I can sleep 8 hrs or 12 hrs and im still tired. I don't know what to do. Is this normal?

I have a lot on my mind, but all I want to do is stay locked in my room and not socialize with anyone. Why do I feel so alone?

I feel angry, anxious, and depressed. The PTSD I suffer is from a past relationship.

I've had posttraumatic stress disorder for years without my parents ever finding out. I want to overcome it, but itÃs so vivid, itÃs like itÃs happening again. I'm scared and paranoid. I have depression, which I have been struggling with since a young age.

My dad passed away when I was a teenager. I never got any help, and five years later, I feel like I can't handle it anymore.

I am a single mother. As a child, I was molested by my mother's boyfriend. I never knew my father. I started having children at 18 right after high school. After having children, I completely lost myself and gave all of my focus on my children. Now my children are getting older, but I still don't know myself. I've had several attempts at relationships, and they all fail. I stopped c

I always see the worst end of things. My boyfriend and I aren't talking, and I swear he's leaving me. I keep failing my road test, and I see my future crumble. I have no desire for friends. I pushed my best friend away after Christmas, and I have no desire to fix it or make new friends. My aunt died, and I cry all the time, even if I burn my lunch.

I was anxious to go to middle school. I was afraid of what people might say about me, so when school started, I wasn't acting like myself. I was quiet, which I'm usually not. I didn't talk to anybody and didn't have any friends. Then a few years later, my grandma died. I really became depressed and stop going to school for a little. I hated myself and still do. I just need help.

I was in a situation with a guy, HeÃs my brotherÃs friend and kind of like a brother to me. He invited me over to hang out, and then came on to me. I was instantly terrified to say no, and I gave in. I don't know what's wrong with me. I can't figure out why I'm afraid to say no. This is giving me a lot of guilt and depression.

People have been calling me names, and I have had enough of it. I cannot stand it anymore I'm done. I have told someone this, and that is why I am writing this. The thoughts are awful.

My life is completely normal, yet I feel empty inside. I feel as if I already know why I'm alive: to reproduce and die.

I'm almost never happy. Half of the time, I don't feel anything. I find it easy to make myself feel nothing. I know I push people away because itÃs easier. I just want answers. I'm sick of feeling this way. ItÃs ruining my relationships with people.

My husband and I are in a terrible place. Part of me wants to fix it, but then I'm caught up with not knowing how and not being able to communicate my feelings to him because he always feels I'm blaming him. Sometimes I am because the feelings of distrust are so strong. I feel they must be coming from something he's doing, but sometimes I know I'm being irrational. St

They don't go away, and I feel like I'm going crazy. Does that ever stop? Can it be a symptom of medication?

A girl and I were madly in love. We dated for over a year and were even talking about marriage and future plans together. She moved away for school, and we attempted a long distance relationship. We eventually broke up. It's been a year now, and I still haven't lost my feelings for her. I still love her the same way I did. I've suffered from depression ever since the breaku

I've got so much anger. I don't know how to control myself. My girlfriend screams at me all the time, and sometime I don't know how to deal with life. I'm very depressed and angry. I feel lost.

I've been having this ongoing problem for most of my life now. I am a young adult, and right now, driving and even being a passenger gives me terrible panic attacks and anxiety. I can't ride in the backseat or the front seat with the safety belt on. I have to lean the seat back a bit because the pressure on my back terrifies me. I miss so many opportunities to go places with I

I am broke, but I am sure I have been depressed for the past couple of years. I have always had anxiety. I just need someone to talk to right now. I don't have any friends or family I can talk to. I'm on the verge of just giving up.

I don't know how to have emotions. I never had any from my birth. Being human, I think of myself as a monster. I enjoy pain. I cut myself for my climax during sex. I think most of the time, I lie, even when sometimes it would have been easy just to tell the truth. I was in rehabilitation for four year. I have made love with both men and women, but it made no impact in my em

I am on my own with my daughter. I am so worried and stressed about her.

I just had a newborn. When I brought him home, my mom told me to leave. Now I'm in a women's home. I don't see my boyfriend that often because he works. The women's place is helping me find an apartment so I can go back to work and get child care.

I have experienced cycles of depression for the past four years, and it hits me harder every time it comes back. This past time, it was extremely debilitating, so I went on Wellbutrin. I could feel the effects of the medicine after the first week. A month and a half later, I decided that my depression was being caused by my own unwillingness to move forward and address my

At school, it feels like I've lost all my friends, and I've been really weird with my sleeping patterns. I used to cut myself, and I really want to again, but I change in the locked rooms because I donÃt want anybody to see. I get ticked off easy and overreact. At night, IÃm very depressed and listen to sad music and all that sort of stuff. Please help me. I just want to be happy

I think about death all the time because I feel so alone. I want someone to love and someone to love me.

My fianc/ve suffers from severe anxiety and depression. She has had it most of her life. Her anxiety in public places is the worst. It gets to points where she can't breathe or move. Sometimes, she won't even go to the restroom, so she will hold in her pee until her stomach hurts or she pees herself. She curls up in corners at the mall and has panic attacks. She won't eat

Some people have recommended medication, but I believe it's just going to cover up her illness and not solve it. I don't want my fianc/ve pumped with drugs. I believe a psychiatric service dog would be the best bet for her. When we first met my poodle, it would calm her down a lot. She took the dog out every time we went out, and she seemed much calmer and happier

I'm unemployed just relocated. I can't get approved for a place to live because of past mistakes which follow me to this day. I'm depressed and on the verge of losing my partner because I'm overwhelmed and have trouble functioning on a daily basis. I see no light at the end of this tunnel and need some help. I see no point in this chaos infested joke some call life.

I'm supposed to stay here the rest of my academic life, but I've never liked it here, not even before I came. IÃdve never felt like I belong. IÃdve missed my country every second in the past four months, and I'm just miserable. I'm gaining weight, doing nothing, and crying for hours straight. Is it time to go back home or is it just culture shock?

I am in high school and have been facing anxiety issues lately. Whenever I get close to being in a relationship, some kind of anxiety takes over and keeps me from the relationship. This anxiety causes me depression at times and even makes me want to vomit. While a semi-relationship should be joyous, for me, itÃs an emotional nightmare I canÃt get to the bottom of

While IÃm not quite ready to be in one anyway, I want to get to the bottom of this for a brighter future in which I can be in one. I donÃt take medications and have no desire to, I have read forums, and IÃdve talked about the issue with my sister who has faced similar problems.

I just got out of a two year relationship. I broke up with my boyfriend because he wasn't showing any affection at all. He was talking to other women and lying about it. It pushed me away and hurt me, but I'm still in love with him. A couple days after our breakup, he was talking to someone new. He told me he wasn't sure if he loved me. I cried for several days, lost my app

A friend of mine taking psychology advised I go to my doctor to check if I have major depressive disorder. I'm afraid of the consequences of doing so. If I do become diagnosed with major depressive disorder, wonÃt that go on my records? I will never be able to become a counselor along with a list of other things I may be prohibited from. IÃm also afraid of taking any s

I have no real friends. I have a girlfriend who irritates me but loves me to death. I push her away and pushes me away. WeÃre going through a breakup, and I have nobody.

I've been hospitalized twice. Once was last month for psychiatric help. I'm on medicine, but I'm struggling with fighting the negative thoughts, irrational fears, and loneliness. The people around me aren't helping much.

I'm going through a divorce with my wife of three years, who I've known since the 4th grade and been involved with for seven years! We just had a baby seven months ago and never got along with my mother, who I've lived with for years. I am now back with my mother because I have nowhere to go with this divorce looming. I'm heart broken because I fell into a depressi

I have been diagnosed with ADHD and experienced manic depression episodes. I have problems with anger management. Apparently, I also have an ODD, bipolar and split personality. How can I be truly happy?

I was married to a narcissist sociopath for 10 years. During that time I was a general manager. I used to help him financially and in other ways when we were together. But things began to change. He emotionally and sexually drained me. I lost my spirit. I used to be a very happy person but now I am a loner. I left him and moved to another state. Currently, I'm working as i

I always feel like I'm not good enough and it literally is so hard living. I don't know how to talk to my parents about it.

I have manic depression and last summer was very very bad. I have recurring nightmares and I avoid anything that will give me a similar feeling as I did that summer.

My doctor thinks that seeing a psychiatrist will help with my depression and anxiety. Now my anxiety is worse, what do I do? Writing on here has taken every bit of strength I have left.

I am always down and out. Could this be postpartum depression?

My last relationships have ended horribly. They just up and abandoned me. One of them I have never gotten closure with over it, leaving me emotionally wrecked. I know something's wrong with me but I don't know how to even start trying to better myself.

I get into these depressed like states whenever anyone I care about is too busy to be with me. I know that I shouldn't act like that because people are genuinely busy, but I feel like they're doing it just because they don't want to be around me.

I don't know what's wrong with me. At times I can be really happy, excited, I'll talk fast, and I want to do things. But lately I've been staying up way later and sleeping too much. I don't hang out with friends, I don't really have them. I feel nothing, worthless. I want to do nothing, I have no interest in anything. All I usually do is stay in my room. I want to be happy. I want to be

I've have lived for sometime with depression but things have gotten a lot better, but why is it so hard to get over anxiety and social isolation?

I'm in a state of depression right now. Who can I talk to? I've been sick in a lot of pain and crying. Don't know where to turn.

I've been married for 3 years and I have two kids. During my 3-years married, my husband cheated on me twice. The second time really got to me and at my lowest I hurt him back. We aren't communicating as well as I would like. What do I do?

When I'm in large crowds I get angry and I just can't deal with people. I don't really like other people (I prefer animals) they make me nervous and scared.

I lay awake at night thinking and having conversations in my head and I almost always end up making myself feel terrible and crying. I have more conversions in my head than I do with actual people. I don't know what's wrong with me and why I feel this way. What should I do?

Sometimes I can't stop thinking about life after death. I was raised in a religion that teaches that we will live on forever either in hell or in heaven. When I think of living forever (even if it is in heaven which should be good), I feel overwhelmed. I don't like the thought of living forever and ever and ever. Sometimes I just can't get the thought out of my mind and the thoughts k

I get very nervous and anxious/scared before sex.

I've been like this ever since I was in school; back then I transferred to another school. Now I'm thinking about changing my job.

I know this fear doesn't make sense. How can I overcome it?

I have anxieties about everyday stressors, i.e. finances, work, relationships, kids, and maintaining a household.

I'm dealing with imposter syndrome in graduate school. I know that by all accounts I am a phenomenal graduate student, and that I am well-published. I am well liked by students and faculty alike. And yet I cannot shake the feeling that I'm going to be found out as a fraud. How can I get over this feeling?

I've gone to a couple therapy sessions so far and still everytime I walk in I get nervous and shaky. Is this normal? Should I still be feeling like this?

I'm 17 and I'm sick and tired of going back and forth. I'd like to stay at my mother's house. This problem has really affected me. I've had anxiety attacks and suicidal thoughts and self-harm in the past. Currently I'm going through anxiety and my therapist is not available. How do I handle this?

When I'm around people, I sometimes think someone has made a comment to me or asked me to do something. I will be focusing on something else and then randomly think I hear something about me. I never know if it was actually said.

I have these dreams of men, and they always seem to try to hurt me. It's gotten so bad that I first wake at 4:30, then 4:45, and finally stay awake by 6:00. I'm always the last one to fall asleep and the first to wake. I hate falling asleep. The longest I've went without sleep is three days.

I have been with my boyfriend for more than a year. He recently got a new job and travels a lot. IÃd'm not used to him being gone all the time. I feel as though he has forgotten about me because he does not talk with me as much and doesnÃt keep me up to date on everything that he does throughout the day, which he used to.

I feel lost, sad and unwanted. This is really a tough new challenge. I just want to break up with him, but I love him so much. I donÃt know why he is acting this way lately. I believe I have separation anxiety. Is there anything that I can do to help me cope with this while he is out of town?

I panicked over a minor parking lot mistake. It was totally my fault, but due to another insurance issue, I left a note with an illegible phone number. Guilty over this, I got an envelope containing several hundred dollars. Unfortunately, by the time I returned, the other driver had seen my ersatz note and drove away. Since I cannot make this up to that individual, how do I aton

I've been having horrible anxiety for the last week. I can't sleep. I get a sense of doom, and it's hard to breathe. I feel like nothing I do makes it better.

When I get talked to by my dad or stepmom, or if I'm in trouble, I will begin to cry and not say what's wrong with me. When my dad or stepmom ask what is wrong, I never know the answers or the words to put together what is actually wrong with me.

I just took a job that requires me to travel far away from home. My family and I really need this job.
People keep telling me I have "anxiety" and I'm terrified of having an anxiety attack on the road. This is all new to me. What can I do?

I recently broke up with my boyfriend After being together for over 4 years. I truly believe I did the right thing, but omehow being single now has made me very needy and unsure of myself.
I am seeing someone casually and I am losing my mind with anxiety about how he feels about me and this need for validation.
How can I learn to be content and at peace with myself regardless of my career, relationship status, etc?

I'm a teenager, and while IÄove never been to any kind of therapist, I noticed I experience several anxiety symptoms. I frequently find myself not going out and following my parent around the house. I can't go into stores (grocery stores specifically) on my own, and when I do, I have to be on the phone with my dad the whole time. I also forget things a lot.
I am a really shy person. I'm currently in a graduate program which requires lots of presentations, but they always make me feel stressed out and less confident. How can I get more confident?
I start counseling/therapy in a few days (I'm freaking out) but my main fear is that I'll cry and embarrass myself, is it something to worry about?
I feel too scared to meet people I don't know - even relatives. I don't ever raise my hand or talk in school. I feel like no one understands. How can I handle this?

I'm a male in my early 20s. Lately, my paranoia about being around kids is causing me too breathe heavy and sweat a lot. I then start to act weird because I'm trying to fight my paranoia. This leads to people staring at me because they don't know that I'm suffering from panic attacks and paranoia. They just notice me acting scared around kids and they think I'm a threat I
I've known him for about six years. We've dated off and on. I hadn't seen him in close to three years but recently started seeing him again. I really want this to last this time. I stayed the night. Do I text, call, or make contact first, the same day of the morning I left his house?
Example would be homecoming? I was at my high school's home football game on Friday, and I left because I felt uncomfortable with all the people there and I just wanted to be by myself. Why is that?
I am a female and in my early teens. I don't want to feel afraid of people. When I meet someone, I know that they are okay, but I still feel afraid.
My son was diagnosed with autism a few years ago and I stopped working so that I could take care of him. I also was dealing with an abusive relationship (mentally, physically, and emotionally). Now I live like a recluse and I always feel nervous around people.
How can I feel more comfortable around other people?

Sometimes, I'm fine and can go out or meet people, but other days, my heart races and words physically cannot come out of my mouth. I've always thought it was normal and I was just nervous, but the other day, it took me almost 30 minutes of sitting in my car to find the courage to enter Target by myself.
A lot of times, I avoid situations where I am to meet new people because I have a fear of embarrassing myself. I often avoid large groups of people, like parties, because I think they all constantly judge me.
My partner lives in Canada while I live in the US. We visit each other, but we go months in between visits. I have anxiety, and I'm always anxious about him cheating or still having feelings for an ex that he dated for three years. He doesn't understand my anxiety. How do I stop myself from worrying so much?
I just about fall asleep then I can't help but sit up and walk around.
I have severe anxiety and have tried everything. Everything makes it worst.The only thing that helps is my emotional support animal.
I'm just an extremely paranoid person. I constantly feel as though I am in some sort of danger, like as though I live in a horror movie with no resolution. It worsens at night. It gets to the point I'm scared in my own home more so than anything. I have no access to the help I need so I'm desperate.
I don't know if I'm normal. I'm really scared to touch a girl. I'm a young adult and a virgin. My fiancé and I want to have sex soon, and this might mess everything up because she wants a baby soon as well.
I don't understand why this is happening. Why do I feel this way?
I am a peaceful person, but I often find myself having thoughts about killing people. Eventhough I like the thoughts at the time, they make me cry. Why do I feel like this?
I shake and have panic attacks.
I haven't been feeling like myself lately. I've been upset for no reason and feeling anxious. I'm feeling burnt out. What can help me feel better?
I have a fear of something and I want to face that fear to overcome it, but I don't know how. What can I do?
I don't remember when the voices in my head started, but I remember Hearing them when I was little. I know it's not normal to hear voices that aren't your own. I fight the voices and I want them to stop. They've been here so long and I want them gone. How can I make the voices stop?
I've hit my head on walls and floors ever since I was young. I sometimes still do it but I don't exactly know why. I have anxiety and I had a rough childhood but now I'll start to hit my head and sometimes not realize it but I don't know how to stop or even why I'm doing it. How can I help myself to change my behavior?
I have severe issues that I need to work through. However, I am afraid of and do not trust therapists after a horrible experience. I'm dealing with grief and guilt over losing my sons due to drug use. I have a very complicated traumatic relationship issue that is causing me severe anxiety and fear.
Why am I so afraid of it? I don't understand.
I have attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder, posttraumatic stress disorder, anxiety, anger, and memory problems. I can't work. I have no income. I'm on medicine, but I feel worthless. I want to be normal.
I never feel like myself. I canÄot even think straight anymore. I start stuttering and I canÄot remember anything. I always get nervous and usually talk myself down but recently end up fighting with, what feels like, someone else. I donÄot know why I feel this way, but I hate it.
I had to put a restraining order against my ex-fiancé. He was served last night. He was mentally and verbally abusive towards me. I thought it was my nerves, but every time I stand up, I get sick. If I sit and rock, I'm fine.
I've been dealing with this for years. My mom thinks I'm overly emotional and refuses to offer any help, like therapy or seeing a doctor. She's seen me when I'm having a panic attack and just said I was faking for attention or that I'm a hypochondriac. I just want to get better.
IÄove been on 0.5 mg of Xanax twice a day for the past month. It hasn't been helping me at all, but when I take 1 mg during a big anxiety attack, it calms me down. I was wondering how I can ask my psychologist to up the dose to 1 mg twice a day without her thinking I'm abusing them. I just have very big anxiety attacks. Should I stay on the 0.5mg and deal with the attac
I am so terrified of having sex anymore because I have been told over and over that sex is dangerous even though me and my partner used both forms of protection. My partner is not happy about this and simply wants more sex, and honestly, I want to give that to her.
I was in a car accident and totaled my car. I gave up my job of nine years to pursue school full-time to better myself. I failed a class, and my boyfriend that I live with thinks IÄom stupid and wants to break up with me. I have nowhere to go, and I feel like IÄom losing everything.
It's especially bad at night time. I am scared of sleeping alone.
I am on the track and softball team. My school is small, so I play all four sports it offers. I feel obligated to do track because I'm not a horrible runner, and my dad wants me to. The catch is is that the days before a track meet and the morning of, I get sick and cry.
I'm socially awkward. I've always want to be popular. I've had the opportunity to be popular, but every time I get i,t I'm too scared. All I have to do is talk the popular people. They're really nice to me, but I'm too scared of change. I really want to work up the courage to lose my fear.
I often get the feeling that I'm being watched, like video cameras are hidden wherever I am, even at home. I feel like people can see all that I do and are reading my thoughts. Things I read or hear on the radio seem to be about (or meant for) me, and people are talking about me when they whisper.
I have a bad habit of thinking and worrying about what others may think of me. I really want to stop it and enjoy things.
I feel really uncomfortable when I have people's attention. It makes me not want to talk in public or answer questions in class. Can I get over this social anxiety?
I have been having a lot of nightmares where I am being killed in different ways. I either wake up in a panic or just crying and sweating. It has made me terrified of falling asleep and is now affecting my daily life too. Can I make the nightmares stop?
My boyfriend and I have been dating for almost a year. We go to different schools, and we don't see each other that often. I just feel very paranoid that there's someone else or that he could be hiding something from me.
I'm concerned about my boyfriend. I suffer from anxiety, but I always have this feeling he wants to hurt me because he told me he was interested in BDSM intercourse. We haven't tried it, but I've had this feeling he always wants to.
I get so much anxiety, and I donÄot know why. I feel like I canÄot do anything by myself because IÄöm scared of the outcomes.
I started dating my fiancé two years ago. My first cousin is married to my fiancéÄös sister. There has always been a communication issue between my uncle and aunt and my cousin and his wife. My uncle goes to my mom instead of talking to my cousin, and it upsets my mom.
Whenever I have to speak in public or be in big crowds, I freak out. I get light-headed, sweaty, and I have trouble breathing.
I am a teenage girl. I've been seeing the same dream once in a while since I was very young. The problem is that I don't remember anything about this dream. I still know that it's the same one, and then I wake up in a panic, and I cry really loud without knowing the reason. Why do I see the same dream, why can I not remember it, and what should I do to remember it?
IÄove been with my boyfriend for a year and a half. He loves me a lot, and I love him. It hurts to be apart from him for so long. It hurts all over, and then I feel like it won't last.
I started seeing this guy that I met at a mutual friendÄös place. He recently broke up with his ex-girlfriend and started seeing me. Everything was great in the beginning, then I started having low self-esteem thoughts and thinking he was hanging with his ex-girlfriend again. ItÄöos all I think about. I am still seeing him, but things have changed because I am at a loss for wo
I have not had a friend since I was 19. I don't go anywhere, and I have no job, all because I'm afraid of people.
I feel insecure in my life. I don't think my wife truly wants our relationship even though she says she does. I have turned to drinking to help relieve my repressed stress about this and other issues. I have had a drinking problem for a few years. I feel the reason I drink is not just because I like to, but because I have lately been on edge. IÄove been very oddly emotional whe
I think I'm annoying and bothersome, but my girlfriend says I'm just fine. I don't think so, I think I'm stressing everyone else out
I'm a little paranoid. My mind does get the best of me. One night, I put chairs under all of my door knobs because I thought someone might break in. I also think a lot, which is probably the reason for the paranoia. I can't stand loud noises, like the sound of cars going by. The grocery store is too noisy, and I feel like people are looking at me.
When I go to school, I feel like everyone is judging me, even my friends. I get overwhelmed which these thoughts and sometimes cannot get out of what I call a deep hole of thoughts. I barely go to any of our school dances because of all of the people. Not even when I am completely alone do these thoughts go away. I still feel like people can see me and are judging me.
Recently, I had a close call after delivering my second child (blood clot followed by internal bleeding and several blood transfusions). It was a close call. I am currently undergoing medical treatment because of the event, and I am constantly afraid the whole ordeal will happen again. I have never really had anxiety in the past, but I find now that it consumes my every day a
I constantly have this urge to throw away all my stuff. itÄöos constantly on my mind and makes me feel anxious. I donÄot sleep because IÄöm thinking about something I can get rid of. I donÄot know why I do it. I started years ago when I lived with my dad then I stopped when I moved in with my mom. Years later, it has started again.
I met a guy a while ago, and I can't stop thinking about him. I feel like I love him, but I don't think I know him. What if he is not who I think he is? I cry sometimes thinking someone is going to be with him or that he has a girlfriend. I don't know, am I too obsessive? Every time we talk though, it's like magic. He makes me feel amazed, but what if I'm mistaken?
I've been experiencing a lot of anxiety and panic attacks lately. I was recently diagnosed by my psychiatrist with obsessive-compulsive disorder. Lately, I've been questioning everything from my career to my relationship. My boyfriend and I just moved in a few months ago. All of a sudden, I don't feel as comfortable around him as I used to, although I can't seem to find a re
My toddler feels everything I say and doesnÄot see me as authoritative, so she says no about everything. I'd like to hear some ways I can work on not needing to feel so much in control all the time.
I was violently raped by another woman who was my friend of 13 years. IÄöm having bad flashbacks. IÄöm scared to sleep because I see it in my dreams. I don't leave the house because I have panic attacks.
I have lately been having lots of anxiety and self-loathing about the fact that I am a young adult virgin who has never had a boyfriend before. It seems like everyone my age has already had boyfriends by now or are not virgins anymore, and I just had my first kiss five months ago. IÄöm worried that, at this rate, I wonÄot have a boyfriend for a very long time. The prob
Most people are surprised when they find out that I am a virgin or never had a boyfriend because people think I am really good looking. I am tall, I play lots of sports, and I get excellent grades in school. I am in my first year of university right now, and no guys have approached me to go out on a date or showed any interest. It bothers me. Most of the people in my family
For my whole life, IÄove been very uncomfortable, insecure, and self-questioning. I'm super quiet because I'm scared of what people will think of me. I avoid all social situations as it causes me great anxiety. It is how both of my parents have always been, and I feel like I'm doomed to take it like also. It makes it super hard for me at work as the other employees try to use me as a
I have a lot of issues going on right now. First of all, I have a lot of trouble sleeping at times, while other nights I sleep too much and still feel quite tired. IÄöm also noticing increased irritability and experiencing anxiety attacks that last for hours. Is there something wrong with me and if so what should I do?
I feel that I need to end my present relationship. He lives three hours away and likes the reassurance of having someone to talk to multiple times per day and seeing me once or twice a month. I want someone who is more present and more of a life companion. Lately, he has had a very busy work schedule and I have only seen him a few times in the last 6 weeks. I told h
I'm a teenager, and I struggle with going out and talking to people. I feel awful about leaving home. I know I can't afford a therapist so I don't know what my problem is, but I think I might have social anxiety.
Whenever I don't tell my friends or anyone what I did or stuff that's not really important, I feel terrible, like thereÄös a hole in my stomach. It only goes away when I hurt myself.
I was raped repeatedly when I was younger. I told my parents and action was taken, but now that IÄöm an adult, I suffer from extreme anxiety.
I find myself being very outgoing most of the time, but there are some times when I don't know what to say. I don't even want to talk at all. It's like, I search for the right thing to say and nothing ever comes out. I don't know if I'm outgoing only to fill the void of not knowing what to say. I donÄot know if people like that about me. I'm very self-conscious and always think peop
This is preventing me from getting a job. I have bad relationship with my bipolar mother. I am living with her but it stresses me out so much to be around her that I have locked myself in my room. I have no friends or other family to help me. I have no money for therapy, but I think I need therapy before I can secure a job.
I feel like my time is going too fast
My dad refuses to acknowledge my anxieties about going to parties, dinners, etc. Whenever I have an opinion it gets shut down. My mom and everyone else behaves likewise. For my father who heads a company, this is normal. He has to be right all the time. He blatantly refuses to even try to see it from my angle. Recently however, it's been getting to the point where I f Whenever I leave my girlfriend I get panic attacks. I'm taking medications to control them, but I'm thinking of moving in with her since I get so anxious.
I had a head injury a few years ago and my mind races all the time. I have trouble sleeping and have a lot of anxiety. Every medicine I have been on my body rejects; I get sick to my stomach and get blisters in my mouth. How can I calm my self down? I'm a wreck.
When my daughter is stressed about a silly thing from school, she starts crying and freaking out. She is a bright student, always has a 4.0, but I am afraid she is stressing too much. IÄöm afraid itÄöos going to break her. I don't know if I should get her to a doctor or someone because this is not normal.
I have four children. One of them is in her 20s, and she cannot afford to go, nor can I pay for her. She went last year for two weeks by herself.

I'm being verbally abused on a daily basis by my parents in front of my child. I feel like IÃm trapped and I have no escape. I feel like I have to listen to the horrible things they say and just take all of it.

I need some way of learning how to cope with listening to it especially since I have nowhere else to go. I feel very emotionally drained How can I deal with this?

When they come home from their dad's and I fuss at them for anything, they move like they are dodging being hit. They say theyÃre sorry over and over really fast. I ask and they say no one has hit them, and I've seen no marks. Am I being paranoid or am I right to be?

he just walks in the house whenever he wants to see his kids. My fianc tells me it makes her angry and doesn't like it, but she seems afraid to say anything to him about it for some reason. Is it okay for him to do this?

My daughter is in later elementary school. She can't color in the lines. Her words jumble together when she writes unless there are big spaces or she skips lines.

My daughter seemed to be developing at a normal rate until about the age of 10. She then started to act younger than she is. Now she only wants to play with younger kids and she doesn't act her age. I don't know why this is happening. Is this normal?

My ex-wife married and used me to have a child. She now uses that child as a pawn. I know my child misses me, but I need to move on and not live in the past. How do I do this? Do I see my child as much as possible or very little? Is it more confusing for the child?

I am a counselor at day camp where we have a child with severe autism. We try to keep him entertained by carrying cards around for when he starts acting up so we can get him to focus on something else. The day camp administrator has told us not to yell at him because he will zone out and not listen, so we just talk in a calm voice. However, other kids see the treatmer

When my son was a teenager, we sent him to live with his dad because of the constant disrespectful attitude. A week after he graduated, his dad made him leave because of the same issues. All four parents tried to talk to him, and he just refuses help all around. He is now living with his grandparents. He had a job, and took steps to get his license and an insured vehicle

She cried because she lost all trust in me. Now I feel disgusting and like my heart just got stabbed, what do I do?

There is just no communication at all between us. She sleeps constantly all day (not at night). She acts angry and unfocused and stays in her very messy room all the time. The only time she comes out is to eat. She has aches and fatigue, weight gain, hair loss and skin problems. She does not look after her health.

I don't know how to communicate with her. She is not open to any suggestions. How do I get through to her?

My son stole my debit card and lied about it. It's not the first time he has lied. I don't know what to do anymore. I don't know if I should punish him or make him do something. I've tried talking to him and asking if anything was wrong. I have grounded him, but nothing works. What should I do?

I'm concerned about My 12 year old daughter. About a month or two ago she started walking on her toes, as well as coloring and writing very messy. This all happened very suddenly. She has never walked on her tiptoes and has always colored and written very neatly. Is this something I should be concerned about? Any advice will help.

I have three children. The oldest is nine and not my biological child. The middle child is three and the youngest is one. I have a great relationship with the oldest two children but I haven't developed the same level of attachment to the youngest child. I rarely want her around and look forward to her nap times. Is this normal?

I was a single mom most of their growing up life and have guilt about trying to work three jobs and being gone a lot. My children are successful with their own business's, have lots of nanny and cleaning help, but I just feel they have such a great opportunity to spend it with their kids.

She's in her early 20s, and she has a toddler.

My dad is always, and I mean always, cussing and screaming at me for no reason at all. He makes me feel stupid. He also compares me to my other siblings in a negative way and demeans me. Is this abuse?

My step nephew, a preteen, has begun masturbating. I also had to take away the internet because he was caught looking up porn. IÃm worried about him.

We have tried gentle talking, counting to calm her and talking about it, sending her to her room and then trying to talk when she's calmer, and now callisthenics. However, nothing is working.

I am in my 30s with 2 kids and no job and I'm behind on the bills. I've been trying everything with no results. I feel like everyone else puts their needs in front on mine. I give until it hurts and I'm afraid that I'm going to fail my babies I've been struggling for 5 yrs in a relationship with no communication and no alone time. How can I get some support?

My daughter was overly tired and throwing a fit at her grandparent's house. She wanted to come home at midnight and cried screamed said she hated her grandma and that she wanted to kill herself!

We also have a new baby in the house I don't know if this would contribute to this. How should I approach this?

The birth mother attempted suicide several times while pregnant. The adopted mother was terminally ill upon adopting the baby and died when the child was just over one year old. The adopted father then remarried to a physically, psychologically, and emotionally abusive woman. The child was placed in foster care at 11 years old. What might be the long term effects on

My grandson's step-mother sends him to school with a pink Barbie backpack as a form of punishment.

I am in my early 20s and I still live with my parents because I can't afford to live alone.

My mother says that if I live under her roof I have to follow her rules. She is trying to control my life. What should I do?

My dad makes me feel like shit and like I'm worthless. He calls me names and makes me feel depressed. I want to move out because I swear if I stay here, I'm going to lose it. What can I do?

I want to live with my mom. My dad gets angry and makes me feel like everything is my fault. I still talk to my mom although My dad tells me that I'm no allowed to. I'm scared I will make the wrong decision and that my dad will hate me. How do I tell him that I want to live with my mom?

I have three children: a biological daughter, a stepdaughter, and a stepson. I found out my stepdaughter overdosed today. My daughter blames me. I told her to stay out of it. I'm scared of all three kids now. They all blame me for their choices they made. All three have drug addictions. I had a stroke in 2013 so I need to depend on people from now on.

She refuses to talk to me and told my mom (her grand mother) that she is remembering things from the past. I don't know what to do. My daughter blames me and swears she hates me.

My parents say I should just let my daughter live with her dad, but I don't see how I could fix things if I only see her every other weekend. What should I do?

She's a teenager, and for the last two years, she's lived with her older brother. She's angry because she wants to come live with me, but my current living situation is not the best for her. She refuses to see any reason. She's being disrespectful. Her sexual curiosity is waking up.

I told her that if daddy dies, we will never see him again. She started crying because I wouldn't make her daddy die.

My husbandÃs ex-wife married a man who was charged with seven felony counts of pandering involving a minor. He, by his own admission, is addicted to child pornography. My step-daughters are now all teenagers. They do not know. My husbandÃs ex-wife has kept this information from my step-daughters. The step-father has had issues regarding his pornography i

Her father and I have been dealing with this problem for quite some time now. She is an adolescent, and the problem is mostly food. She is now overweight, and we just don't know what to do anymore. She can be disrespectful and doesn't listen to or respect what we say.

Can a counselor take sides with one parent and allow a parent to order the child to tell the counselor "every detail" about what happened during the other parentÃs visitation in order to help build a case for child custody?

He is an adolescent. He has peed his pant multiple times over the last few years, all at times when he is too wrapped up in a video game or video. We have taken away games and videos for long periods of time as punishment, but after a few months of having then back, he pees his pants again.

Is something I should be worried about? Should I do something about it?

Me and my adult daughter just do not get along. She's very belittling to me when I don't agree with her. It's almost like she scolds me. We get into all out war. She's said I don't support her in what she does and that I've never loved her. She calls me horrible names, and she pushes my buttons to the point I call her names.

We are the legal guardianship of our grandson. He has been acting out, and he wants to talk to his mom that has not talked to him since before last year. How are we to handle this?

I am divorced and happily remarried. Our blended family of children are in their 20s. My youngest, age 20, continues to call me crazy and favors her dad. He was abusive to me, and I left with injuries. He never wanted kids, and I did. He paid child support only through forced wage earners. Now my daughters favor him after all the sacrifices I made for them the past 15 ye

We live with my ex-partnerÃs sister and her husband. We have been there for five years now. They are Hispanic and talk to my daughter in their language. Sometimes they overstep their balance between aunt and uncle and reach into my role as a parent. They neglect to see this. I do, and it reflects in my child's behavior. She sees them as stable but is upset that her d

My brother just broke up with his girlfriend. While they were dating for the past two years, her son spent the weekends with me and my mother. Now she doesn't think her son should have any interaction with us. How should we approach the situation? Is she doing the right thing for her child?

My mother-in-law is mentally ill. She has been for most of her life. She cuts herself. She has been in and out of psychiatric hospitals for about 40 years. She has voices in her head that tell her to cut herself. She has had multiple shock therapy treatments, and sheÃs on enough medication to take down an elephant. Her parental rights for her two children were taken awa

My daughter didn't see her biological father for the last three years. She doesn't want to see him because she remember really bad things from him such as domestic violence and child abuse. The visitation is with supervision, but she refuses to see him. Is it better to take my daughter to the therapist and try to see him after the therapy?

My fianc and I have been in a relationship for two years. We have an infant son. My fianc also has a child from a previous relationship. We do not live together. I live with my mother currently while I get on my feet, and he's living with some friends. My mother and I have an awful relationship that is completely unbearable most of the time. We cannot even stand to be Just wondering if this is a deviant act, and if I should be concerned for him. He isn't quite 10.

My boyfriend has a child he gets every other weekend. He goes to see her twice a week or more. Every time she leaves, he gets into these funks like when his mom died. When she's here, she's disrespectful, and his answer is "ÃWell, I don't know what to tell you." She swears and talks back, and he laughs. He and her mom have been apart for three years, a

My ex-husband told my two adolescents that Santa doesn't exist on the day before Christmas. They are desperate to hold on to the magic of Christmas, but I don't know if it's right for me to lie to them and tell them that Santa is real. I don't want to let them down and make them lose out on those memories, but I also don't want to lose their trust.

For the last year, my adolescent son and daughter have been driving me nuts with fighting. I'm at my wits end. How can I get them to stop and get along?

My toddler is having a real hard time with toilet training. He almost throws up every time he sees his poop. He gags and will not go on the toilet. We have tried a toilet chair and ring that goes on the big-boy toilet, but he refuses to use it. When he sits on the toilet, he just sits there forever and only will pee. He holds the poop in until he get up and then will poop in his diape

IÃm a senior high school student. IÃm also five months pregnant. I got pregnant by my boyfriend of three years. My parents don't want us to communicate with each other. He can't even come to visit my gynecologist. My mom goes to attend all of my doctor's appointments. She's supportive of me. I wish, though, that my boyfriend was next to me and be ab

I need guidance and I believe that you can give it to me. Am I wrong for wanting him around? Are they right for keeping him away from the appointments and not letting us communicate with each other even though we are the parents? I do everything that they ask of me. I just want him to be around. When I ask my parents to let him be here, they call me a selfish person

Tonight, my husband seemed to put our son down through an incorrect approach. His approach was perfectly wrong. I found myself defending my son. I told him that what he did was not the way to encourage our son.

Instead of watching my husband's harsh behavior I decided to sit beside my son and, together, we worked on his science assignment in order to encourage him to study. My husband got upset and he was swearing at me. He threatened me. I knew that he was not joking. His words scared me a lot!

She was raised by her abusive father and his wife. 30 years ago I shot and killed my rapist and was convicted in Louisiana. I lost custody of my daughter and served 5 years. When I was released, she was 5 and didn't remember me. Many many sad memories came from my having to leave her visit after visit, having to leave her in Texas to travel back to Louisiana. She c

I regret ever hurting her and they mean the world to me. But it feels like nothing I do seem to work. I'll always love them no matter what and when I'm with them nothing else matters. I love them more then anything. I don't want another guy raising my kids.

What makes my step child, an 8 year old boy, choke my daughter, a 6 year old girl? This has been going on for 4 years. The boy tells my daughter not to tell on him. He knows it's wrong; we have did time out, spanking, taking away toys, and sitting on the wall. I am afraid for my daughters safety!

All my friends have either hooked up or had a girlfriend but me. I try to be happy for them, but I get really upset every time they hook up.

I'm always told I'm not good enough or trying hard enough. I put 100% in to every thing. I'm worn out, I've worked on all of my family relationships. I'm doing great in school, I'm kind to those in need and otherwise. I stick to my religious beliefs and leave room for mistakes and learn from others so I don't have to make as many and the ones I do I learn from. Somehow it's s

My grandma had a stroke and passed away recently. I lost my home and job. I'm looking but haven't found a job. I've been binge watching television and binge eating.

I feel like I hate myself physically and emotionally sometimes. How can I start accepting myself and be more confident?

I've always thought that there wasn't much good out there for me. Now that things are actually going well, it kind of scares me. I spent most of my life feeling unwanted and figured I would be alone. I recently met a great woman who seems to really like me, and I don't know how to process this. It's bothering both of us.

I'm a male in my 20s. My girlfriend is in her late 30s. She's great. She's funny and smart, she has a big heart, and we have an excellent sex life. She recently moved in with me partially because she wanted to and partially because she had no place to go. We fight a lot. It's mostly my fault, I must admit. She doesn't like my insecurity and lack of trust I have for her. I have

About 3 years ago or so I was skinny, but I was still ugly. I really do want to change but I've tried 3 times. Not can I try but don't stop. At school I get bullied about my weight and my ugliness and I have been bullied my whole life that I believe them. How can I stop thinking about them and don't let it get in my head? My parents said I don't weight that much but, they d

I feel as though I'm suffering severe abandonment issues stemming from childhood. I convince myself I'm not worthy of happiness, and IÃm always afraid I'm doing something wrong. It's as if I create little scenarios in my mind, and I start to believe them.

For the past year, I have been feeling pressured to do well in school, and it put a ton of stress on me. I have been bullied for five years, and for some reason, it is now sinking in, and I can't stop it. For some other reason, I can't find a hobby I can see myself doing without thinking bad about myself.

I'm a teenage girl, and I feel very bad about my weight. I don't know how to make it stop.

What am I doing wrong? My wife and I are fighting all the time. What can I do? We don't agree on anything and she usually jumps to conclusions, which are usually wrong on how I feel. She is very family-oriented while all of my family left me on my butt, abused, ignored and messed up with me mentally. I'm not a family-oriented person. I only have two people in my life. I

I am becoming a Water Safety Instructor but I didn't have enough for a proper swimsuit. I was told by a boy in class that my top was displaying everything. I was very embarrassed.

On the first day of school I wore a bra that was too big so that it would look like I had bigger boobs. I did that the whole school year and my parents never found out. But now I can never hang out with my friends at my house or invite them over because it would be around my parents and my friends would see there is nothing there on my chest. How do I fix this?

I feel like every time I do something someone asks me to, I never fully meet what they want. I feel that when I finish it, they always think that they should have picked someone else to do it. I feel like they just want nothing to do with me.

I always need alcohol to feel better and use that as an excuse.

I feel like I'm ugly, stupid, useless, and that I can't make anyone happy.

I hate everything I see in the mirror. I don't like being in pictures and always scribble out my face. It's stressing me out. I don't trust my parents enough to tell them and I don't know what to do.

Whether it's to a guy or girl, I always feel insecure talking, and I am afraid of embarrassing myself and not being good enough. Even when I am walking, I worry about my appearance and facial expression and such.

My roommate has had a drinking problem for a while. She goes out, gets trashed, and then expects everyone to take care of her. The next morning, she apologizes constantly until she feels validated. She also thinks everyone hates her all the time. If I don't seem anything other than happy, she asks me "Do you hate me? You hate me. Tell me you love me," and I feel like

I always feel the need to impress people, whether it's my family, the people at school, or just random people. I know that no matter what I do or how I change, there will always be some people who hate me. Why do I feel this way?

I feel like I was born in the wrong body I feel like I should be a girl not a boy

Ever since I was young, I have wanted to be a girl. I felt like what I was wasn't me. I want to know what I can do about it. My family is against transgender people and don't want anything to do with them. I want to be "Ãme." I feel as if I'll be happy then. I don't look in mirrors, and I don't like my reflection. Recently, I have been taking things to help even though they i

I am in my mid 30s. I feel I have used only 5% of my potential. I am in film making, but everything is stuck. I've never had a serious relationship. I had worthless jobs. I do a lot of meditation to try to fix it.

Something happened this summer that I cannot forgive myself for. When I think about what happened, I feel ashamed and guilty even though my loved ones forgave me.

I constantly feel like everyone is up against me and trying their best to shut me down. It's ruining my mood and even my whole self. I have trouble sleeping, and I keep having sleep paralysis while dreaming of others mocking and judging me.

I feel like I'm trying to convince myself that I'm okay when I'm not. I'm always blocking out the bad things and forgetting. I also feel like nobody cares for me and they never will. I feel truly alone.

I feel so irritated and frustrated because of it. I get so angry to the point that I feel like I'm going to explode. I feel pathetic, stupid, and worthless. I just can't take this anymore.

I've been with the mother of my child for years.

I have been in a relationship with my boyfriend for about six years now. In the past, our relationship was difficult and frustrating. We argued a lot, and due to that, there was a lot of tension between us. We stayed together because we love each other and wanted to make it work. I used to party a lot, and several times I got into situations where I would end up kissing someone.

When I'm not cutting, I'm drinking. When I try healthy outlets such as exercise, I end up running myself down into an asthma attack. From weapons, to words, I can't help but self-harm. What am I supposed to do, how do I stop this cycle? I don't know how else to cope or motivate myself without pain.

I'm in my late 20s, and I've never had a boyfriend or even been on a date. I have Facebook because everyone else has kids and a great husband and great paying jobs. I work in retail, and I can't find a job. I have an Associate degree. No one is not giving me a chance, and I'm getting upset and frustrated. I feel worthless and feel like everyone hates me.

It's been almost a year since my ex-boyfriend broke up with me after he cheated on me many times. I had found out about a month before, but I hadn't told him I knew because I didn't want us to break up. I used to have very low self-esteem, and I think it might have to do with my dad being an alcoholic. My father cheated on my mother when I was little. I wonder if this is why I'm in my early 20s. I've been married once, and he cheated on me. Ever since then, I've felt ugly no matter what. I'm engaged, and I still feel ugly. I don't like to take pictures of myself.

I'm scared that I am with this man so I won't be alone. He should be with somebody who deserves him if this is the case, and I don't want to hurt him.

I like getting attention from men. I don't have sex. I lead them on to thinking I might want to. I like to tease, I like for men to chase me, and I like to feel wanted.

Everyone around me is much smarter and flaunts it. Everyone around me is skinny, and here I am trying to throw up so I'm not fat. Everything I do is wrong, and I can't seem to do anything right! No one else at school seems to feel the way I do! Is this normal teenage girls' feelings? I don't think these feelings are normal.

I was raped by multiple men, and now I can't stand the sight of myself. I wear lingerie to get my self excited enough to have sex with my wife.

I found messages between my boyfriend and this girl on social media. He was asking her for naked pictures and then hung out with her once, but nothing happened. I didn't find out about the messages until last month and that was six months after it happened. I can't trust him anymore and I'm just wondering if I ever will. He admitted that he wanted to have sex with me.

I'm going through a majorly bad divorce and my wife is making things so impossible for me. I need help.

About 5 months ago my ex left without fully explaining why. For me it seemed out of the blue. I don't miss her as much as I used to but I just don't trust people anymore, not even my friends who I have known since my childhood not even my family. I'm so terrified of being judged or dismissed. Instead of acting like someone else or putting on a mask of a personality, I've just been myself.

I feel like I have to be promiscuous in order to keep people around? It started after I got raped by my ex-boyfriend.

I keep hearing I am attractive from people around me, and I think I believe it. But I have low confidence regarding approaching girls. I like.

A few nights ago I talked to this girl I know about my self-esteem issues for the first time. We talked for hours and she told me time and again that I was a great guy. She told me I was attractive, and have a great personality, etc. I really started to feel better about myself by the time I woke up the next morning. Now, though, I can't stop thinking about her, but I leave to go to bed.

How do I decide if I should end my relationship with my boyfriend?

My husband and I are separated and he doesn't even want to talk to me. He says he doesn't love me anymore, but I would do anything to get him back. Is there any hope?

A year ago, the love of my life left me and never looked back. Our son was two months old at the time and it broke my heart. I miss her so much and can't seem to get over being so heartbroken.

I got married in 2014. I have a two-year-old son. His mom and I decided to separate due to my infidelities. We've tried to reconcile our differences but it never works out. Since we've been separated, I've dated someone, and we are expecting a baby girl. Is this something I should mention to my wife? The current woman whom I'm dating has been telling me for months to end our relationship.

Our relationship ended about 7 years ago, but I don't know how to let go. How can I get over that person and move on?

I know that I need to get past my feelings for this person I fell in love with, but it's so difficult to move on because he showed me feelings I've never felt before. I feel like I don't want to be without my genuine love for him, but logically, I know I need to be without him. I can't discuss this with anybody in my life because the conditions surrounding our love are considered "wrong."

How can I get myself to just move on?

I got engaged, and everything was going well. Things went downhill at some point, and I broke off the engagement due to an opportunity to go to college. After that, I found out she had been cheating on me. I think about her all the time now, and we have been communicating on and off, but my friends/family don't know.

He was in love with someone years ago, and he still thinks about her time to time. He said, and I quote, "That relationship is definitely over. I love you, but that girl will always be in my mind." It just didn't feel like he appreciated all the things I've done to make him happy.

My spouse decided he no longer wanted me six years ago. Things have deteriorated so badly that we have separated but still live in the same house. He says he despises the sight of me, wants to be with other women, and divorce. What I don't understand is that he says constantly that I have no feelings for him and gets absurdly jealous if I speak to another male. Why can't he just leave?

My husband and I are separated. He says he needs some time apart. He says he needs to get back the love we had. I don't want to lose me. Should I wait or start over new?

I want a secure relationship with someone that wants to be with me and who will actually put effort into it.

I seem to gravitate toward unavailable men and those that want intimacy and no relationship. I let men dictate and control me because they accuse me of being controlling. I let men emotionally abuse me and I am at their beck and call.

I am not comfortable being alone or doing anything by myself. I feel I need the security of someone being around just to survive. I know what I'm doing wrong and I do it anyway just hoping things will change. How do I stop this behavior and thought process?

After my fiancé cheated on me because of a miscommunication, I pulled myself away from him. Now he says all he wants is to be with me. I'm pushing him away mentally now because he cheated on me again. I make plans with him that I don't keep. I really do love him still and I care about him. Should I give him one more chance?

I'm obsessing about a terrible breakup. Everything is a constant reminder. How do I move on?

I recently went through a divorce. My ex-husband called my sister saying bad things about me. My sister never defended me. Now that I showed the truth, she's shutting me up and saying she doesn't care about the fight. Why didn't she convey that to him from the beginning?

She said she needed space after three days of dating, and she got a boyfriend a week later. I still really miss her, and she told me she still likes me.

My ex-girlfriend says she's bored and wants to experience life single. I treated her really badly and caused meaningless fights when she didn't do anything. I feel remorseful, and I'm willing to do whatever it takes to get her back. She's unhappy. When I called her, she was crying and said she will text me when she's ready.

My fiancé and I broke up. He cheated on me numerous times. I kept forgiving but questioning his every move. He got tired and left.

I was in a relationship with a woman for four years. We both made mistakes, but I do love her. She has moved in with another lady. I think she is just cheating on me to make me miss her. How can I find out for sure?

He had a sexual relationship with his sister and kept it from me for years, I confronted about it and he finally told me what happened. But I don't think he is telling me the whole story. He works with her and sees her every day. I feel that I shouldn't stay with him, but he says he ended it long time ago. Should I trust my husband and stay with him?

My ex-fiancé (whom I am still seeing) left me because of the pressure from all three of his teenage daughters. They wanted him to try to work it out with their mom (his ex-girlfriend of 20 years). He and I split three months ago, but I have been seeing him pretty regularly despite the fact that he is living back with his ex-girlfriend and kids. He is "co-existing" for the kids and I've been in an on/off relationship with this man for almost 3 years. Even though I care about him, he continues to hurt me. He and his wife were separated when we met. Now he's going through a really difficult divorce from her and is taking it really hard. I want to end this relationship, but I don't feel like I can. How can I let go?

I was in a relationship for almost five years. We were friends for a few years before we got into a relationship. He was a caring, friendly, and charming guy up until three and a half years in. He started controlling me: who I hung out with, where I was at all times, and he had a huge hissy fit if I tried to ask him the same questions. All that time, he just liked me as a friend and we're not together, but I don't still doing things for him and we are intimate. He doesn't care for me.

My husband told me last year he never loved me and should have never married me. He's been talking about divorce, but he hasn't filed. Now he has a girlfriend and he abandoned me and his kids. He has no financial help, and he has been out of the home for four months. He became very angry and mean. He says it's all my fault, and that we're not compatible.

My husband used a lot of negative words to hurt me, and I moved out. He is seeing a counselor and wants another chance to make things right. I'm not sure if I trust that he will not go back to his old ways.

My ex-boyfriend and I lived together. He had a two-year affair with a girl and had three pregnancies with her. One was an abortion, another was a miscarriage, and then she had the third baby. They are not together, but he continues to contact me and wants me back. He has nothing to offer me.

My husband and I got into a huge dispute. He said he wanted a divorce, and I left. I still come home a lot and see my kids, and he has not filed yet even though he still said he is. What does that mean for our marriage?

In 2008 my former husband of 14 years walked away from my life and we've been separated ever since. We have always been together sexually and both have experienced sleeping with others. I stopped because I wanted my marriage to work out but he did not. If he stops sleeping with other women, can our marriage be saved? Or should we just part ways? I still care about him.

I keep on begging him to come back. I am so unhappy with him but am so scared of being a single parent to our son. I was abused as a little girl and that has made me be very abusive to men. What should I do...

My wife just last week said she wants a divorce and it's all sudden. I understand that marriages have their ups and downs but I don't understand why she can't tell me why she wants a divorce. Should I fight for my family (daughter and wife)?

I am going through a divorce from a narcissistic sociopath who left me for another woman after mentally and emotionally abusing me for 11 years. I have moved to a different state and after giving up my successful business am working as a server at a restaurant. I'm coping as best as I can. Is it normal and healthy to not adapt as quickly and be as strong as I think I should be?

I am conflicted with this guy I work with. He is a coworker and close friend whom I've had a crush on since meeting him four years ago. We made out once after years of flirting. I was hoping for more, but nothing happened. I distanced myself a lot after.

I believe it is wrong for men to look at inappropriate content. The father of my child has agreed to respect my beliefs. His co-worker sent him an inappropriate video. He got mad because he does not think he should tell his friend to not send him things like that.

My boss took over some work I'd begun. Concerned that she had doubts about my work, I asked her for feedback. I assured her that I did my utmost for customer service, and asked if I was deficient. She then said this was me being co-dependent.

I am in a high stress position for a tech company. I am being overworked and underpaid for my contributions and it is not only giving me anxiety, but also demoralizing.

What can I do to manage my stress?

I've been suppressing it for quite some time, but there are days when I can't make eye contact with her. I think she knows, and we both admitted there was some type of vibe, but the overall discussion was vague. I think she could possibly be dating someone that works with us. It's driving me crazy. As an act of expression, I have purchased a gift for her that's personalized.

My wife is always accusing me of cheating and telling me that I'm doing things she finds disrespectful even when I don't mean it like that. For example, she gets offended when I call someone at work "sweetheart." I wish I had a penny for every time she accused me of cheating on her. She doesn't, and never will say she was wrong. How do I get her to understand?

I was having a sexual relationship with a coworker. He decided he was going to get a hotel room for the weekend. Before I got paid, I told him I would have $25.00, which I thought I would. But when I saw my paycheck, I could not pay the $25.00. He says I lied to him about it. He wants me to reimburse him $25.00 for the hotel room he decided to get. He stayed at the hotel.

I'm a teenager, and I just got my first job. I am a month and a half in. Yesterday, my boss pushed me to the point where I had to go to the restroom and cry. She didn't see me, and I'm glad, but when I went to talk to her about it today, I let a tear or two come out. I hate it. I feel like they're not going to keep me anymore.

My coworkers are making false statements about me to the boss, saying I have mood swings. They have no proof to back it up. Can my employer make me see a therapist of their choice?

I've worked with this guy for about three years now, and I knew the first time I saw him that I was attracted. Over time, he became a very dear friend, and we talked about our relationship problems, family, dreams, and so on. There was always flirtation with us, and one day pretty recently, it progressed to making out. We agreed to keep it quiet, and we did, but in the back of my mind, I'm trying so hard to maintain the friendship because that's what he wants. We're no longer in the same office, which I thought would help me get over these feelings, but we still talk about work, and he's constantly touching me, so I'm still very drawn to him. He's a hugger and such a sweet guy, so I find myself fantasizing all the time about what could have been and what is.

Does this go against any ethical codes? Are there legal ramifications?

I don't know what to say. I have never really known who I am.

I was born a girl, but I want to be a boy. Because of my religion I can't tell my family. I know they won't accept me. What do I do?

My fiancé and I come from a strong Christian background but both went off the "straight and narrow" once before. He is having a hard time accepting my past, especially that I'm not a virgin. He has a hard time in general accepting himself and others. His insecurities are hurting our relationship. How can I help him let go of my past and decide to live in the present?

Maybe this is a stupid question, but I sometimes don't know what's real or not. If I feel at times like someone's lying. How do I know if God is one of those liars?

I'm a Christian teenager girl, and I have lost my virginity. My boyfriend is a Christian teenager too, but things just got out of hand between us in a sexual manner. I planned to abstain from sex but I guess I wasn't clear about this because I was also tempted and led him on. We continued to have sex. Does it mean that he isn't the one God planned for me? We're so young, I'm a young adult woman, and I have trouble finding my true identity being at home. This all started when I had a boyfriend about 10 months ago. My boyfriend and I were dating for a couple months and decided to get in to sexual acts. At the time, I was pretty religious, but I let this happen. I don't know why. I felt kind of guilty but mostly because I know my parents would be angry.

One day, my parents found out I did this stuff with him because my dad read my messages. As soon as my dad found this out, he told my mom. They were both aggravated. They told me he was just a boy that wanted to get inside my pants. They said he wanted me for sex and he's not a Christian. I took their advice and broke up with him. Once we broke up for about a month, they had a family gathering (such as funerals), where there are different customs.

There are issues from my past that have me very heavily burdened in my heart. I've been torn for so many years and I need help so I can move on with my life.

I experienced trauma when I was 8 years old and I did come out about it until I was 40.

Now I know this is what's holding me back on my happiness. I've met a very loving and caring man but because I'm holding on to these things from my past, I don't want to let go.

How can I get my life back?

I was raped a couple months ago. Since then, along with other unfortunately events that have occurred, I have been having trouble feeling emotions. It's almost as if I'm a sociopath lacking any feeling. What can I do to change this?

I have been diagnosed with posttraumatic stress disorder due to my military experiences. Not a year ago, I had a car accident. Could this experience add more problems?

I have PTSD. The side effects are really bad and have impacts on sex, anger and my relationships. I even lost my job month ago. How can I get my life back?

I am a survivor of multiple sexual abuse/rape experiences. Triggers are having an effect on my daily life and my sexual relationship with my partner. I'm trying to learn to cope with them.

My girlfriend was abused as a child. Now, if I hug or touch her in any kind of way she says she feels as if she is being abused as a child. What might be going on?

I recently lost a friend to suicide. I'm smoking marijuana and drinking more to cope with it. How can I handle this better?

I have family issues, and my dad was both violent and a cheater.

My dad beat and mentally abused me so badly that I can't function properly. Letting go of the past is important to moving on and getting better, but I'm terrified to get better because I don't even know who I am without the trauma. I've never gotten to be myself. I don't even know who I am.

My boyfriend and I have a terrible sex life after three years of dating, and I don't know what to do. I have this lingering fear of pain during sex after having two partners previously who weren't careful. How can I stop projecting this onto my current boyfriend?

At a friend's house, we had some drinks and watched some television. He got up and went to bed. I felt sick. He came out to see if I was okay, and I said no. I said I wanted to go home, and he told me to come lay down. As I laid down on the bed, he started touching me. A friend called me, then I able to leave.

I was kidnapped at fourteen and raped at gunpoint. The guy got six months. When the same thing happened with two "friends" at nineteen, I didn't even report it.

I was the one who ended it, and I'm so glad I did. It was the best decision I made in my life. But how do I stop the nightmares and flashbacks? It is creating a wall in my current relationship.

I was a victim of an incident. I've been made fun of and have been beating myself up for it because I don't feel anyone honestly believes me. There are so many other factors I deal with on a daily basis. I ignore my problems when I'm with my friends, but it's scary when I'm alone.

I know I was molested as a child, but I have no memory of it.

I'm fine when we start becoming intimate, but out of nowhere, I will get a flashback of what happened to me in the past. I start hysterically crying and freaking out when my boyfriend obviously has done nothing to hurt me.

I have PTSD from childhood events and other traumas as an adult. I have panic attacks, nightmares, anger, and at times depression. I feel like I'm always on the edge or just apathetic. Can I fix this by myself?

As a child, my parents injured my brother, so they went to prison. I was there when he had gotten hurt, but I can't seem to remember. I also can't remember being with them quite well. It's a blur.

My suppose-to-be father told me to go find my real dad. We haven't been getting along since I was a teenager. I said one thing that he thought was wrong, I always got degraded. He never said "I love you." He never gave us hugs. He's always called me horrible names. I feel he's an evil man with no feelings.

My boyfriend is seeking therapy. He is in his 40s and has some childhood issues. He has kids from his previous ex-wife and is unable to see them.

An organization admitted to implanting thoughts in my head with technologies. The study was to implant a fantasy other people are having, but to me, it's a nightmare. I lost my kids, my job, and all that. I was an unwilling participant. I no longer trust a therapist. I'm too afraid to go under hypnosis or anything.

I did some horrible sexual things as a kid and I regret everything. Can someone help me cope with myself? Can someone help me remember my past?

Every time my partner gets angry for anything, she takes it out on me. Nothing I do is right, and once she's mad, she calls me all kinds of names and is verbally abusive. She says it isn't about abuse, it's just angry verbal bashing, and that it's different. It gets worse each time. The names are very vulgar now.

My friend's husband is bipolar and refuses to take medication for it. He has taken the wheels off her vehicle before to prevent her from leaving. He has held her a prisoner in her home. He has choked her, hit her, etc. She has almost divorced him a couple of times but always makes up with him, thinking that he is going to change. She and I went to a wedding out of town.

I have an emotionally abusive relationship. We have been together for a year and a half. He got out of prison exactly a year ago and a half ago, and we have an infant. I love my boyfriend, and I don't want to leave without fighting for this first. He's an emotionally disconnected person. We never say "I love you" to each other. Every fight is worse than the last one, and I'm a teenager, and throughout my entire life, I've never really had good parents, or parents at all for that matter. I'm not exaggerating. I was living with my mom and grandparents until my father, in prison for most of my life, got out when I was in middle school. His mom, my grandma, only lived a mile down the road from my mom's house, and I was so awe-stricken with my mom and him had a mutual friend and often hung out at that person's house. My parents did not get along at this point. We were driving him home one day from this house, and my mom stopped the car and kicked him out. He got out of the car, went to the driver's side, and punched my mom in the face. I got out and told him not to hit my mom. At that point, I was verbally abusive. When he gets mad, he just yells at me. At times, I feel scared.

My kid's dad and I broke up two years ago. He still wants me back, and I just started to fall for him again. But our kids are with Child Protective Services; that's why we broke up. He started to talk to other women, and he put his hands on me.

I'm in college currently, so I am not a direct victim anymore. My father is very abusive with his words and actions, and my siblings are getting treated horribly.

I am a survivor of domestic violence from a past relationship. Even after seven years, I still have horrible nightmares. I wake up in sweat, and the dreams feel so real.

After a domestic abuse situation, I went to a therapist, and then my husband went. The therapist discussed her assessment of borderline personality disorder with me. She then told my abuser the results of my tests.

My husband and I have been together for seven years now. I will be honest: I have a problem lying to him about stupid stuff. I recently stupidly lied to my husband about an accident because I was afraid to tell him what happened. Ever since then, he gives me the cold shoulder. He gets so mad and ignores me for days. He's really verbally and emotionally abusive. He tells my boyfriend and I have been together for five years now. Throughout the entire first day that we met, he and I had the opportunity to interact quite a lot and instantly sparked a deep connection with one another. That same night, he and a friend stayed over at my house (without my mom's acknowledgment) and we kissed. The next two days were a repetition of the first day.

I have anger issues that have worsened over the years because I've never dealt with my emotions. My anger has never been expressed physically until the past year. My girlfriend has had to endure these episodes. I love her, and I think I'm about to lose her, if I already haven't. I throw things at her when I'm angry, and sometimes I hit her. I may not hit her now, but I've been with my boyfriend over 3 years. He cheated on me and the woman is now pregnant. He is physically and mentally abusive towards me. I have attempted to talk with him in order to resolve our issues; however, he never wants to talk and often blames me for everything. I always there when he needs my help. He tells me although I help him doesn't mean I have a child with my baby mother. She works I take care of our young son. She says she is not cheating I have not found anything but she always putting me down, telling me to get out and telling me she doesn't love me, but then the next day after our fight she says she does. I'm having a hard time because before our child she said she was raped by a family member I've known my boyfriend for several years. We were friends for a long time. In 2013 we started a relationship, and he even asked me to move in with him since I lived out of state. I planned to move in with him in 2014 after I finished school and he found a job. However, during this time we had a few arguments and broke up with each other for a short period of time. We are now I have anger and trust issues. How can I treat this and fix myself?

I snap easy and push people away. I need help before I push my boyfriend away.

My roommate is a unapologetic person who doesn't care who she hurts. She never apologizes to me or my family. She made me lose my temper today to the point where I was using swear words in front of my mom and brother.

I get angry and act out. It scares my wife and child.

Sometime when small things happen, like losing a comb, I get furious. I even start throwing things. Do I have a problem?

We're in an eight-year relationship. My boyfriend drinks a lot. He experienced childhood trauma. I don't know how to deal with violent outbursts.

Any time things get heated, the past gets brought up. I raise my voice at her to try to get a point across. She asks open-ended questions but always has to turn my own answer against me. She's seven months pregnant. I have drunk in the past, but I'm not dependent on alcohol. I only drink at social events.

When I got home, my boyfriend and I got into an argument. He got upset and he started hitting his face. That is the first time he has ever done that, but I would be lying if I said that didn't scare me. I locked myself in the room.

Everything just makes me upset.

I get really mad easily at my parents and family.

My long-term girlfriend broke up with me recently. She says it's because of my anger.

My son claims that he's been having extremely violent thoughts and dreams. Not violent like he's hurting someone, but violent thoughts like horrible things happening to his loved ones. He explained one of his dreams the other day and it was so violent it was sickening. It was far beyond anything in a horror movie, he says he can't help these thoughts they just pop up. Ple

I've been having anger problems a lot lately. I only takes one word wrongly said to set me off. I use to not be like this until I got with my soon-to-be husband. I think his mood and rage/anger problems have rubbed off on me a lot. I don't get nearly as bad as he does, but I yell almost constantly and I can't seem to just stop. I have two young babies that have to hear this, and I have not been able to really sleep. I stay up all times of the night not even knowing why. Every day, I feel like I have anger inside of me. I have a little family, but I can't open up to them like I want to. I have a son, and I feel that I take my anger out on him by screaming at him.

My issue isn't resisting angry urges; it's the anger itself. My rage is extreme and vastly disproportionate to the direct stressor. It causes violent thoughts, but I never act. I stay lucid enough to know the rage is violent, not me. I don't want to drown myself in anger and resentment.

Whenever I run into a situation that makes me upset or angry, I tend to start cursing and badly offending the person I am confronting. I say mean things to let my anger out. Whenever people tell me stuff about my relationship (like starting rumors or saying negative things about me or my relationship) I lash out not just them but at my boyfriend. I feel like I keep causing drama.

I don't know how to notice or express my feelings besides anger. That's really the only one I feel.

The sounds of eating and breathing gives me headaches. Mostly mouth breathing and snoring. It makes me angry, and I want to solve it myself.

I need answers to my anger, possessiveness, and urges.

I am angry all the time. I push people away so much that I actually blow up on people now because they ask me how my day is or was. I have a possessiveness to someone who is not even mine. I have these urges to hurt someone really bad. I want to see them beg for me to stop hurting. I want to hear their agonizing pained-filled voices. What is wrong with me?

I have a really bad temper. I get mad very easily then stay like that the whole day. I don't mean to be that way, but I can't help it.

I am so angry. I feel like the arguments with my parents have caused me so much anxiety and stress, and I don't know what to do. I want to sit down with a psychologist, but I cannot afford one, nor do I have my own health insurance. I can feel myself starting to get violent. I throw things of value when I start to get mad. I have punched holes in my wall. I can feel my aggression.

I don't know what's with me. I'm almost constantly angry. Even when I'm happy, I still feel anger inside me. When I acknowledge it, it ruins my mood and takes over. I get angry at the littlest things. Even if I think someone said something they didn't, it infuriates me. Something perfectly normal can make me go off. When my anger flares up, I get a terrible pain in my chest that

When I see something I don't like, I go off like a ticking time bomb. I go from 100 to 1000 really quickly.

Every time I speak, he says I anger him. Also, when he's mad at something, like work, he gets angry at me. I feel like we're so distant from each other now. We used to laugh all the time, and I feel like he lets too much negativity in. What should I do? We've been married for two years but together for seven.

I'm a teenager. I get random spurts of anger, like complete, pure rage. I figured it was hormones, but others notice it too. I get self-destructive. I used to cut but stopped. Now when I get mad, I bite my arms and fingers, pull my hair, scratch my face, or punch my thighs. Basically, I do things I can hide instead of breaking anything in my room and having to explain it to my mother.

I easily recognize this but have no control over it and need suggestions for managing my anger.

I have been having horrendous nightmares this whole month.

I get an uncontrollable swallowing that is repetitive and then somewhat out of body feeling that lasts no more than a minute or two. It usually happens in bed at night, but I occasionally experience this during the day. I have a benign brain tumor, but the doctor said it is not associated with this.

I'm a teenage girl, and my dad is an alcoholic. I hate being at home with him because he just stresses me out. He can be picking me up from basketball practice or piano lessons, and half of the time, I don't even know if he's sober or not. I refuse to get into the vehicle with him and walk home sometimes. I've either been barely sleeping or I over sleep, so I'm always tired.

It takes me a long time to fall asleep; I estimate about two hours. I often have nightmares, starting with being eaten by a monster, and I often wake up frightened and unable to breathe. I believe I started losing sleep after breaking up with a girlfriend of 8 years. Also, my father's business went bankrupt and my mother has a chronic condition. I was under a lot of stress.

Sometimes 3 times a night.

I've pretty much been on my own since day one, I'm a middle child of five, and I can't seem to put my trust in anyone. It took me four years to finally open up a little to my best friend. Every time I realize that I have feelings for someone, I freak out and never talk to them again. I really want some help.

I have been married for 11 years. Within the past 2 years we have drifted far apart. We coexist together but there is very little personal interest in each other. I often feel that my husband has "friends" at work that he is more emotionally invested in than me. I feel very alone and just uncared for. Is there anything I can do to feel reconnected?

For some reason I feel very uncomfortable with my girlfriend showing off her body in certain poses on social media. I know she is proud of her body and I respect that, but I don't feel comfortable with her openly showing off her body the way she does.

Anytime I bring it up to her she thinks I'm calling her a whore. How can I deal with my girlfriend showing off her body on social media and not hurt her feelings?

My husband and I had our first threesome recently. Everyone was drinking and he was on her more than me. He and I talked about it afterwards and it made me feel better, and now I'm craving more of it. But before it gets close to happening I get this empty feeling. Why am I feeling this way?

I have cheated on my husband of five years roughly ten times. I pretend we aren't married at my work. Recently, he has caught on, but I lie to cover it. He used to talk to girls online, but I have caught myself constantly having an affair.

My husband and I have been married for seven years, and in that time, we have only had sex four or five times. Others have told me that most men would have left me by now. Honestly, I think I have a low sex drive or neither one of us actually knows what we are doing. I want to be better connected with my husband.

My spouse visited the red light district a couple of years back in Amsterdam. After he got back from the trip he got me tested for STDs. In the aftermath he has provided multiple versions of what happened, from having a total blackout to being touched by a prostitute. How do I know if he had sex?

He is always telling me our fights are only and all my fault, he bashes me to our young child, and he is addicted to a few substances.

My fiancé and I have been together for 3 years and our relationship has always been good. The only issue we had was that he felt like he wasn't getting enough sexual attention from me. I recently found out he cheated on me with another woman. He says he wants his family back but I'm confused on what to do. Is it possible for us to get past the cheating, or should I just

I was with my friends at the park, and we were talking and having fun. After a while, I met a girl there. We talked and flirted for a while, then we gave our numbers to each other and left. We talked for a few months, then we met up again. She kissed me, so I assumed we were dating. Then I found out she has a boyfriend.

He's gone for 11 weeks for a band camp. It's week two right now. We used to be intimate a lot, and now since he's busy 12 hours a day, we can't really be intimate, even over the phone. Is it normal for me to be more sensitive in general?

My husband had an emotional affair with his ex-wife in November. She invited him to dinner, alone, with their daughter. I wasn't aware of this until after 11pm when I asked where he was. He had been drinking, and I told him not to come home that night. The next morning, we talked about going to counseling. He went out that night with friends and said his ex-wife wasr She's busy because her mom makes her clean all the time and go out places with her family. We don't talk much because of it. Also, we have little fights. We want to work it out but we don't know how.

I went to my ex-boyfriend to reach out to one of his high school friends who's attempted to commit suicide. When I went to him to reach out to his high school friend, he told me that I put him in a terrible position and put an enormous load on his shoulders. He was very angry that I went to him to do that. Am I in the wrong for going to him to reach out? He helped me so mu He told me he started to back away because I was asking for too much in the relationship. The more I tried to fix things, the worse it got. I want to make us better again, but I don't know how.

My boyfriend has this close female friend. It always bothered me because of how close they are, so I decided to meet her. That made the situation worse because they were even closer than what I thought. They acted like a couple rather than friends with each other. There was no physical interaction, but he talks to this girl a lot. What can I do? Leaving him isn't an option I'm a man, and I'm soon to be married. I have been messing around with other men on the side. It started as a once in a while thing, but it's happening a lot. I don't know what to do.

She has lied about every aspect of her life. She's created three fake relationships. The most recent one is concerning because she has fake photos, phone calls, and text messages, and it's with a married man with kids. Her lying is becoming dangerous because she could ruin lives.

My boyfriend lost his dad to suicide. He says that because his dad died, so did his heart. He says that he can't be there for me or love me anymore and wants nothing to do with me ever again. Why is he doing this when we were very happy together? He says that I have done nothing wrong but he just can't be with me.

My boyfriend and I have been disagreeing on a lot lately. I can't seem to get close to anyone else. I know I'm completely over him, but I just can't break down my walls and let someone new into my life.

When my boyfriend gets in a snit, he gives me the silent treatment for days. When I ask what is wrong, I get nothing; no reply, no phone call. If he does reply, it is something very sarcastic and hurtful. He never admits he is wrong and never apologizes.

My husband cheated while I was pregnant with our son with a so-called friend. This was before we were married. We split and eventually worked things out. I thought I trusted him so we got married. Now he flirts with girls in front of me. I've talked to him, but nothing helps.

The father of my kids and I have been broken up for about three years now. We always found our way back to each other. He had a baby with someone else he's with but still shows the same love he showed when we was together when he's around. He even gets jealous, but he ignores my calls.

Every day for five years, my husband mentally abused me and said he will change. I have a child with him. I try so hard to stay strong for her, but at this point, I am completely broken. I am holding on to nothing but hope and have been for years. Is there any hope or am I wasting my time?

My boyfriend and I have been disagreeing on a lot lately. It's really coming down to the fact that we want opposite things sometimes. I do a lot for him: I take care and protect him, and in the end, he still doesn't trust me. We've both come to the conclusion that when I want something and he doesn't want it, he's not willing to find a happy medium whatsoever. It's just not n I have been pushing people away all my life. I finally have a great boyfriend who loves me, but I keep pushing him away and I don't want to. I need to learn to open up.

I have been dating my boyfriend for eight years. We met in college off away from home and things went from good to bad when I met his family who treats him like he is their man. They expect him to take them on dates like to the movies and out to eat when they come around, and he thinks it's okay.

He's lied about his past/present situations. Since time has passed, he has changed, but I still have my doubts. I have no idea if I should stay or go, but I hate this feeling. I don't trust him all too much, but yet he hasn't done anything for me not to trust him recently.

My fiancé of 15 years is always helping out his family, and I feel like his family takes advantage of his kindness. We're about to get married this Saturday, but I feel like he is always gonna put them first instead of myself and our three kids. I am not enjoying our engagement at all.

The eight months I've been dating my boyfriend, I have lied about a lot of things. I slept with a couple guys to get back at my boyfriend for breaking up with me. Now anything I say to him he won't believe, even if I'm being honest. I don't know what else to do at this point. He constantly criticizes me.

Someone I care about told me I'm not teachable and I'm irritating. I just want to be happy and wanted to please the person, but I always fall short it seems.

I've been in a relationship for almost a year, and I absolutely trust my boyfriend. He treats me nice, checks on me, and tells me sweet things. However, when it comes to making life decisions, I feel he is very immature. I try to talk things out so we can compromise or make sound decisions together, but he lacks any ideas and prefers to just go with anything to avoid fighting.

My best friend and I've been really close for almost three years. She lives in the UK, and I live in the US. Ever since her boyfriend flew from Oregon to Scotland, I've been angry at him. Ever since he came into her life, he took her away from me. My best friend would always say sorry, and I'm sick of it.

I found the guy I'm dating on dating websites. He was telling women that they were beautiful. He said it wasn't him and that the phone was hacked. It has since happened two other times. He says he loves me and I'm the only girl he wants to be with, but I feel he is not telling me the truth.

My boyfriend won't touch me intimately, he won't kiss me while we are having sex and he won't have oral sex with me. I know he has done this things with other women in the past. I don't know why he won't do them with me. What should I do?

He said that if I were to visit my mother, he will be gone when I get back. My boyfriend and I hit a rough patch in our relationship a few months back, and my mom had a few choice words with him.

I'm 15 and my girlfriend is 14. Am I a pedophile because I'm attracted to her and she's under 18?

I crossdress and like to be feminine but I am attracted to women, but yet that seems to bother girls I date or ask out. How can I approach them about it? should I hold back and keep it a secret, or should I just be up-front about it. I wonder if I should stop or if I should continue to do it since it makes me happy. What should I do?

My husband has had issues with alcohol addiction in the past (he'd never admit to this). A while back (3 years ago), I asked him to stop drinking so much, and he agreed. I caught him one night drinking behind my back. I confronted him and he lied, but I told him I knew he was lying because I counted the beers in the fridge and four of them were missing. He admitted and The other night, I counted the beers in the fridge just to see if some were missing. It took a couple of days, but tonight, I discovered a few were missing along with a shot of vodka. He was passed out on the couch when I decided to wake him up and confront him (poor timing, but I couldn't wait). I asked him if he'd come to bed with me (when he drinks, he snores and I can I love my girlfriend so much. I get an erection even just thinking about her or seeing her. But the two times we tried to have sex I couldn't get an erection. We've only had sex once and it was a long time ago. Why this is happening and what can I do about it?

My wife and I got separated because I asked about her contact with a male friend of hers. The next day, she kicked me out. She let me move back two days later. Yesterday, she said she wanted a divorce then quickly changed her mind. I asked if the other guy was a factor, but she says it's not my business.

My boyfriend shows affection, but I just push him away. Every time my boyfriend tries to kiss, hug, or touch me I almost always push him away. I'm on birth control and it has killed my sex drive. I love him so much. Why do I do this?

I'm trying to make marriage work after a split. Before our split, he lied a lot and broke every promise to me. I don't think he cheated. Last month, I asked what women work with him, so he told me. Yesterday, I found out about a girl that he said he forgot about. Should I be upset?

My fiancé is always letting me know how I am a horrible/evil person, or I just don't care enough when it's about her feeling or when she is having an off day.

My fiancé and I recently had an argument over finances. He gives me the money every month to pay his automobile insurance. He no longer has any of the vehicles on the policy. He realized he was still paying for the coverage and asked why I was allowing him to continue to do that since I was physically paying it for him. My response was that he was giving me the m I believe my partner has a masturbation and porn problem. He masturbates daily, even when I am lying in bed sleeping beside him. We have sex once a week. He is rough and worries about his needs. He never touches me, and treats me like a porn star, wanting to finish on my face or chest.

I'm feeling rejected and frustrated. This is not new. The first month we were together, sex was about every day. Then it slowed down to once a month right away. I love my husband, but I am struggling with this.

We have been together over a year. We spend time together every day no matter how busy. He started to be unusually fatigued and losing weight. He also began to be distant and sexually selfish. We had an argument, and he confided he has late stage stomach cancer. He won't treat it.

I'm in a relationship with my child's father. I'm a really jealous person. We don't go out or do anything with other people because of me. To keep our relationship going, I know I have to stop being jealous, but I can't. How can I get over these issues?

I'm in my early 20s, and I've been seeing my boyfriend for a year now. My boyfriend has always been the sweetest guy until recently. He has made comments such as "you would look better as a Tumblr girl" or "you should start doing more squats." It's really hurtful.

My girlfriend remains friends with ex-boyfriends/lovers on Facebook who actively like and comment on posts. It causes me to get jealous because I'm afraid they might reconnect somehow. I've attempted to talk to her about it, but she avoids it and doesn't seem to worry about how I feel about it.

Nothing we've tried has worked so far.

She works with a man and always looks at guys that check her out.

My wife works late most days, so I'm lonely. I love my wife with all my heart, however I don't feel the intimacy we used to have. We don't have sex anymore, which bothers me tremendously. I have become close friends with a coworker, which I know is not helping. Nothing will happen with that, but there's the thought.

My boyfriend of eight years and father of our two children is a truck driver. He is never home and only contributes to our family financially. There is no other support given. He comes home when able, sleeps, gives money, and leaves again. I can't get him to do anything with me or the kids. He just sleeps and works.

My boyfriend and I have been going out for about a year. I suddenly find myself jealous when I see him talking to other girls. I have never been in this way before. I don't like these feelings. He said that my jealousy would cause our relationship to have problems. I told him I can't help these feelings. I don't know where they are coming from, but this is how I feel, I tried to stop

We've been dating for two months now. I have a heavy past that gets him angry. Does he have a right to penalize me for things I did before I met him?

My husband and I are in our 40s. We've been married 17 years. Three weeks ago, he said he loves me but is not in love with me. He was going to leave me, but he said he thought about it and decided to stay. I don't know how to feel any more. How should I take what he said and not feel so hurt? He has been very blunt, and hurtful words just come out of his mouth. There are intimate things she did early in the relationship, and things she had once agreed to try that she will not do now. I end up thinking about it all day. I feel rejected and think I married the wrong person.

We don't have sex a lot. I cheat when we argue. I don't kiss or have unprotected sex with them. It's a one time thing, and I never see them twice.

I am a female, and I am afraid of having sex. I am afraid of disappointing my partner by being inexperienced. I think he thinks I'm not a virgin. I am also scared that he will be disappointed with my naked body. I don't want my partner to think differently of me because I am afraid of having sex.

I am married, but I had sex with my friend. I feel guilty, but I feel not guilty too. Do I need to feel guilty? It's my body, and I have full rights to do what I like.

As I was growing up, my mother and father always fought. With that, I grew trust issues. I think it's going to affect my relationship now and end it sooner than I want to. I try not to let it affect me, but I can't.

We had our first kid 15 years ago, and sex has been nonexistent ever since. It only happens every three or four months. We have been to counseling, and I have been told over and over again she will come around. She hasn't, and I'm intimately lonely! I think it's time to move on, but how do I do that without hurting my kids?

I have been dating a guy for two years. I think I love him, but I don't know any more. I am in my late teens, and I have been living with him for most of our relationship. I have been talking to a guy friend, and I feel more loved by him than my boyfriend.

He owns his own business. Sometimes, he stays out all night but doesn't tell me. We have a son together, and I get to stay home with him. He says I complain too much about what he's doing. We've been together a year and a half. I got pregnant after being together for a month. We moved in together when I had my son in July. Everything was great, and then he started I love him so much, and I don't know what to do.

My fiancé and I have almost the best relationship every girl wants, but lately it's changed. I get less attention and little to no intercourse. He works a lot and goes to the gym a lot (he's a football player for an indoor league), but he has no time for me. We live two hours from family, and when I leave home to see family, he'll text me saying "whatever" and "leave me alone."

I have been married for ten years. My husband is 29 years my senior. We have a young daughter. Ever since she was born, my husband has "shut down." We have no intimacy; he doesn't even kiss me. I've told him how I feel for years, and he swears he loves me and wants to make me happy, but I still have to literally beg for sex and affection. My self-esteem is gone, and My boyfriend of five years told me he cheated on me during our relationship after we broke up. We've since gotten back together and are trying to make it work. I don't know how to trust him now, but I really want to make it work, and it seems like he does too. But my trust issues are getting in the way and causing problems.

I'm in love with my friend who is also a girl. I fell in love with her in a few months. That was my first love. We used to talk for the whole day and night over the phone and on Facebook. I thought she had the same feelings for me, but I was wrong. I always wanted to touch her warmly and stay with her all my life. But all my dreams got broken apart after she got into a rela I've been getting told lately by my partner that it's embarrassing that I'm so antisocial around his family and friends. I believe it's because I'm not as social as him.

How can I know if I'm just being paranoid?

My partner and I have had an amazing relationship and connection for over two years. We're very committed to each other and are planning a very long life together. However, he recently was very open and honest that he isn't interested in having sex with me anymore. He says this has happened in every past relationships and has ended it as a result. He knows it's bec My wife and I have a great relationship except for our sex lives. We are pretty transparent and honest, and basically, she feels bad because she never wants to have sex. She doesn't have the desire. She's also never orgasmed. She feels like a terrible wife and fears I'll cheat on her. She doesn't know why. Last time we had sex, she cried and felt bad and didn't know why We got into arguments, and we would break off but start it back up again. We clicked, or so I thought. We are both married with problems in our marriage. We never have sex, we just send a lot of pictures back and forth and talk about doing things together. His wife found out, and he lied to her and didn't even refer to it as an affair. I can't stop thinking about him. We just My boyfriend of five months expresses how much he cares for me and loves me, and I believe it. So he went to one of the best relationships I have been in for a short period of time, but he has lied to me so much. He told me that he'll stop lying, and while he's hiding something or lying about something. First, it was about a girl. He hid text messages a I was texting a guy who wasn't my boyfriend, and my boyfriend found out. We work together, so he has been to work and told everyone I was cheating on him. I moved out of the house. There have been previous problems, and I feel like I'm usually the issue here. In order for us to move on, he wants me to sign this contract that he wrote out listing things he doesn't want me to About a month ago, I went through my boyfriend's phone and found him messaging his ex-girlfriend that he was dating before me. He gave her a promise ring when they were together, and he still had it hiding in his memory box in our son's room. I found many things on his phone, but that broke my heart the most. He deleted all the messages but two. I can't help th I have been married for 20 years. He and I both cheated. I hid my cheating for 14 years. Over that time, I let life stress me out. I became depressed. When I finally woke up, he felt I had pushed him out.

My boyfriend recently got a kitty. I hate cats in general, and he knows it. It grosses me out and makes me very upset when he pets his cat. I want to throw out the cat. I feel very jealous.

Over the course of a few days, my wife was unsure about her feelings for me due to constant intimacy issues. After she thought things through, she came to the realization that she is no longer "in love" or attracted romantically to me. She instead has more of a platonic love and just cares for me as just "family." At that point, she said our marriage was over. Now over the I have no idea what happened. I go places and do things but still feel lonely. I honestly have no friends, and I am always the one texting people and bothering people. I feel invisible, like someone that no one wants to be around.

I love my boyfriend and everything that leads to sex, but when it comes to the actual penetration, I hate it. I don't know why, but I just want it to be over. I feel like crying. I don't know why I don't like it because all of my friends enjoy it.

I didn't trust my wife when I found out that she had a new guy friend that she was texting and calling. I investigated him before I found out that he was gay and that there was nothing going on. Now all my wife and I do is fight about trust.

I've been in a relationship for over a year. He's cheated and lied. I heard he's married, but he says he's not. Everything is very up and down; there's no trust. Recently, he went on a trip, and I promised him I'd behave and not drink because when I drink, I drink too much, and I tend to make poor choices. This time, I made a huge mistake: I drank too much, and I cheated or I crave attention, companionship, and sex. She has had a hysterectomy, and she has a bad knee.

I've been with my husband for eight years now. We have split twice before, and the first time was because he cheated. I took him back months later, and he really tried making it up to me by making a lot of changes. However, we continued to have issues because of my lack of trust. My insecurities and trust issues lead to physical abuse, which lead to us separating again The baby was a few months old, and he confessed to me about his secret relationship with her. He told me how he could never stop talking to her and how, during our issues, she has been and is the only woman he's gone behind my back with (but on a friendship level because she's miles away). He confessed how he fought feelings for her and feels like he's possibly r I'm of course hurt and in shock. I feel like I have to make a decision on whether I want to allow it and deal with having to share him or walk away. Both of these decisions are really hard to make because I feel like whether I stay or go, my heart will still be torn apart. I have to make a decision quick because she will be flying out sooner than I thought.

I just got married with my husband. I have four kids of my own, and he accepts me with my kids. I am thankful he loves my kids even though they Åore not his. Now we are having problems in our relationship because of my past. I know all marriages have problems, but sometimes I feel it,Åos not going to work out if there,Åos no trust. It,Åos hard for me to let go because I

My boyfriend and I have not had sex in a couple of weeks. He had to have a cyst removed on his testicles. I have been wanting to have sex with him for a while now, and it drives me crazy not to be able to make love to him. I'm scared to touch him and get close to him because I'm afraid that I will hurt him.

My dad cheated on my mom for 13 years. I cannot stop obsessing over the fact that my boyfriend might be cheating on me even when I know he isn't. I have full access to his phone, social media, and e-mails. I never find anything, but I'm obsessed with constantly checking just in case. How do I stop this? It's driving a wedge between us.

My husband always works. He does work from home, but his hours are from morning until night, and he neglects his family. If I have anything I want to do, I have to find a babysitter, but he does what he wants. He rarely comes to bed when I do, and we never have date nights.

How do I stop those thoughts?

I'm a 40 year old male and having erection problems. Still have the desire for a woman. Awfully frustrated. Any suggestions? My Doc doesn't want to discuss it.

My wife and I are newly married, about 2 months. We've had some issues surrounding sex, particularly her lack of libido. She's on an anxiety medication, of which diminished libido is a side effect, but I think our issue is also partly one of a lack of intimacy/romance centered around my hectic schedule. Our sex life has suffered as a result. Tonight she made a genuine effort

We make love once per month. Is it normal?

When having sex I think of other men and want other men all day long. Been married 3 years, together 14. What do you think?

I have this weird fetish that I'm afraid to open up about it. What should I do?

My boyfriend can't get over my promiscuous past. He says he loves me but says the thought of my past is disgusting and a sexual distraction. He says he should have had more sex with different people. I don't know how to handle this.

I have no sex drive due to medical issues. I Åove shut down completely and closed everyone out. I Åove even told my husband that I wanted a divorce since that Åos what I thought he wanted to hear. However, it devastated me when I learned he's seeing someone else.

I Åove since told him that I wanted to work things out but he Åos not sure I actually mean it. He thinks the only reason I want him back is because I Åom jealous. How do I show him I Åom serious?

I just lost my grandpa and I'm having a rough time with it. I need some help to deal with the loss, but I don,Åot think I can pay for counseling. Where Can I get help?

My grandma and brother both passed away 11 years ago and sometimes at night I just can't stop crying while thinking about the good memories we had but won't have ever again. I can't sleep at night when the memories and tears come I'll be fine all day then at night...boom! it's like waterfalls from my eyes. Why can't I stop crying?

Last year, I just always felt hopeless. I don't have a great relationship with my sister. I lost my mother recently, and that really added to my sadness. My sister always brings up how I was never close to my mother.

The past always feels much brighter and more beautiful than my present. Everything about what's gone feels so amazing; almost like I'm high off nostalgia. But in the end it just makes me feel sadder knowing that all of the memories (and a close friend that left me) are gone forever. How do I move past that and live more in the present?

I spent my whole life taking care of my dad, but left because of his verbally abusive behavior. I was the only one that helped with his health issues. I feel if I hadn't left he might still be alive. I need help dealing with my grief and guilty conscience.

My wife is trying to leave. She agreed to come back and give me a little time. Even said she hopes I can do it. We buried our first born in Jan 13 years ago. She never got past it. So every year around this time, she gets emotional and says she doesn't think she loves me, but then we go back to normal. This time, another guy came in and showed her attention. I'll forgive t

I loved him more than anything. He passed away on our anniversary which was also the day I was going to apply for our apartment. I'm not handling it well. I moved to a new town and started a new life but nothing helps.

What can I do to stop grieving my mother,Åos death? When I am awake I just cry every day. I don't have anyone to talk to. I need help; I am still cry over her. Will I ever stop crying? It,Åos been 3 years.

I'm a female in my mid 20s. Lately I tend to over drink and I've become a very angry drunk. In the past, I have even cheated on my boyfriend while I was under the influence of alcohol. But now, even if I don't do anything wrong and don't embarrass myself, I still feel really guilty after a night of drinking. I don't understand why I'm feeling this way. Does this mean I have a pr

Or how to send him somewhere that can help him, something like The Baker Act.

I'm planning to have baby, so I have to quit smoking - but it's hard. Sometimes it's not a physical need, it's mental.

I cannot help myself from thinking about smoking. What can I do to get rid of this addiction?

My boyfriend and I recently broke up. One week, we were fine, and the next, he told me he needed space. He completely deleted me out of his life. He does have an opiate addiction. He claimed he was sober, but since we've split, I've heard many lies from him. Could he be using again, and does this addiction affect the mind?

My friend is abusing her prescription medicine. Even though she told me she didn't have any more pills, I found she has prescriptions for anxiety medications.

She's my stepmom. I'm pretty sure she's illegally buying the drugs and hiding them from my dad.

My brother has been a heroin addict for years, and he Åos now in his mid-30s. He has taken from me my mom and my grandparents. He's sick in the head. Now he moved his girlfriend into the house because they both manipulated us. Today, my mom and my brother went toe-to-toe over his girlfriend not helping around the house and always being high. I ended up hitting

My brother has been diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia and has not been taking his medication. He's been using methamphetamine and alcohol and was found sleeping naked in my step mom driveway in 12 degree weather.

I was adopted in by his dad (who just passed) and his mother will not Get involved because she's afraid of financial responsibility. Do I have the rights to be able to sign my brother into mentalhealth facility?

I have bipolar II disorder, I'm addicted to alcohol and weed, and I'm hopeless. I keep drinking even though it's harming myself and others.

My new daughter-in-law just informed me that she is smoking marijuana while pregnant because of her morning sickness. I Åom in shock and I don,Åot know how to respond. I just lost my mom, and she was good with advice.

My mother has Alzheimer's and she has become so nasty and mean to everyone and she always asks for unrealistic, silly or meaningless items. I get so frustrated and angry, but then I feel guilty because I know it probably isn,Åot her fault. How can I cope with feeling like this?

My mother has Alzheimer's and I can see that she has lost some of her intellectual abilities. Even though I know this disease is not her fault, I Åom still finding it difficult to separate my own feelings of disappointment and frustration when my mom seems to ignore my opinions and wishes, and seems

I have a mother who is still running my life even though I'm almost 30 years old. I want to move out and live my own life, but it feels like as long as I do what my mom wants our relationship is okay. It's never okay if I don't do what she wants. I don't know how to start making my own decisions and not worry about whether it's right in her eyes. Would it help for me to talk to

I have known her for years. She was dating my brother-in-law when we met. My kids think of her as their aunt. On Halloween 2014, I lost my mom to cancer. My mom and dad were still married when she passed away. My friend was there for me through that and my own cancer diagnosis. She has been a very big part of both me and my kids,Åo life, but now last month, m

My mother takes care of niece whom my sister abandoned. She calls me every day complaining, but I don't want to hear it anymore.

After I told them, they yelled at me.

I'm an adult, facing problems with my mom. She's way too controlling. She decides things for me, disregarding whatever I say. I tried explaining my side to her calmly, but she eventually gets angry and doesn't wish to listen to me regardless of how I speak to her.

I'm a teenage gay girl, and I'm in love with a girl a few years older than me. She loves me too, but we're not physically together at the moment. I've been thinking about being transgender soon too, but my family doesn't accept me, so I honestly don't know what to do about that because I feel like I have to constantly hide the real me. It hurts so much to hide the real me. W

My older brother (in his 60s) started dating a lady with Asperger's. She is hyper-sexual and flirty. She does not understand boundaries. They Åove been dating for a few months, and she's talking marriage. Another sibling and his wife have met her, and they have said she is never invited back. My brother always picks similar ladies. Do we speak honestly and risk losing a

I'm a teenager, and I know the importance of my upcoming schooling. However, no matter how much I put in my best effort, my family thinks I have done zero effort in total. What can I do?

She constantly tells me what I am doing wrong. For once, I want her to be proud of me. It,Åos like no matter what I do, she does not have one nice word to say to me. She is always hateful towards me and always has been.

I Åom a teenager. My entire family needs family therapy, and more than likely individual therapy. My parents refuse to take action, and I'm tired of it. Is there any way I can get out of this myself?

It's the way my mom said I was worth nothing, stupid, no point of being in school. I'm "lazy little fat."

My boyfriend and I have been arguing every night about the same thing. He also tells me that if I go visit my mother out of state he will be gone when I get back. He and my mother do not get along. What should I do?

I don,Åot love my sister. I would never wish her harm, but if I could, I would wish for us not to be related. Is this cruel? Why must blood mean we have to be friends? Am I being unreasonable and is there a way to fix this? I do care about her, like I do every human being, but I Åod rather be with my friends than be with her at all. It,Åos not just a "teenager phase." I still love

My wife and mother are having tense disagreements. In the past, they Åove had minor differences. For example, my wife would complain to me my mother is too overbearing; my mother would complain my wife is lazy.

However, it,Åos intensified lately. I think the cause is my wife talked back to her once. Now, any little disagreement is magnified, leading to major disagreements. What can I do?

For the past week or so me and my boyfriend have been fighting. He has been making a lot of bad choices and he is currently hospitalized. I'm barely eating or sleeping because I'm constantly worried about him. Everyone else in my life says that I should just forget about him and walk away. What should I do?

Ever since my mother passed away my family has treated me like a stranger. Now I'm concerned that my father will need to go into a nursing home. If that happens I think I'm going to be on my own to handle it. What should I do? I'm going to need my family's help and support.

We just cannot seem to get along. I cannot have a conversation with her without it turning into World War 3. She treats me like I have no right to an opinion and never really lets me speak. My real mother cares and tries to help me, but she can't do much, because my adoptive mother won't listen to her either.

We rent from from my boyfriend's parents. His father drops by unannounced and stays for long periods of time. He lets himself into our home when we aren't there on a daily basis and takes our dogs to his house. He picks up our mail. He has NO boundaries. He's an opinionated, rude pushy person. He expects to spend every weekend around us, gives unsolicited advice

I have been dating my ex-boyfriend,Åos cousin for a few years. We have gotten pretty serious. He wants to cut it off because people are giving him a hard time that our kids will be related to my ex.

My dad doesn't like the fact that I'm a boy. He yells at me daily because of it and he tells me I'm extreme and over dramatic.

I get so depressed because of my dad's yelling. He keeps asking me why I can't just be happy the way I am and yells at me on a daily basis. Is this considered emotional abuse?

It was over 20 years ago, but the pain has resurfaced again now because I have started seeing her Facebook posts about how great her life is. I feel so angry. How can I handle this?

How do I ever trust another woman? I have found myself constantly reading between the lines with every other woman that I meet. I am having a difficult time making any sort of connection to anyone because of her deception and willingness to say and do literally anything in order to control my emotions.

Once the "relationship" was over, she became extremely abusive and has attempted to intimidate me into silence regarding the many false claims made on her immigration application.

I have known I was always different. This year, in December, I found out that I never felt female. I did research and have identified myself as male but don't know how to tell my dad.

I have three siblings. My mom loves them and not me. She,Åos always yelling at me, but when it comes to my siblings, she talks to them. I Åom always crying in my room.

My stepdad and I always mess around. I've noticed that whenever she playfully hits me, it's always my butt that he hits. He always comments on my outfits and always scans me head to toe when I walk into a room. I'm a teenager female, and I want to know if this is normal.

Any time my family and friends are in an altercation, I Åom the one who steps in. I Åom the one they call to fight for them. I do this even though I have a tough time trusting the people I Åom fighting for. I Åom only in my early 20s.

She has chronic inflammatory demyelinating polyneuropathy, and I Åom her caregiver. All she does is complain, hit me, call me names, and say things happened that didn,Åot. When I tell her, she explodes. I didn,Åot always hate her, but now every little thing she does irritates me, and I don,Åot have the means to live on my own.

My mom and dad got divorced four years ago. I had to finish out the school year with my dad, and now they are deciding which place is best for me. I can't choose. How can I choose if I love both places?

My dad is doing some really bad drugs, and I'm not allowed to see him anymore because of what he can do to me or my siblings on this drug. It has affected me tremendously in my life. It,Åos even caused me anger and stress.

I'm in my mid-twenties now, and my boyfriend of seven years and I want to start a life. My mother is 100% codependent on me and is extremely manipulative. She suffers from type 1 diabetes, which she uses to guilt me if I ever leave her. The problem is that I will feel guilty.

My mother and I have an okay relationship. I know she loves me unconditionally, and I love her the same. However, more times than not, I'm afraid to tell her anything personal because she either doesn't listen, she turns it around and makes everything about her, or she ignores things - even when they are about my mental health.

It happens especially at me and my sister, and then she gets emotional and brings up the past. How should I deal with it? She is always stressed about her work and doesn't put her family first.

My parents seem okay with other sexualities, but normally they only talk about being gay. When they do talk about bisexuality, they say things like Åúthey'll do anything Åú or things that make me very uncomfortable because I am bisexual. I don't know if I am ready to come out to them.

I'm in love with my own gender, and my parents are against that. I don't know how to tell them because I'm afraid they'll not want me anymore.

My mom is always bossy and treats me like a child even though I'm in my 20s. She argues with me over stupid stuff.

I work two jobs and go to school for criminal justice. Over the summer, my father had a stroke. It was very devastating. My father isn't the same, and my family fights every day. I have been kicked out the house many times. I break down a lot.

I saw my mother cheating on my dad before. I said something to her, and she said it was in the past. Yesterday, I saw her texting dirty things to the same guy. Should I talk to her again? I don't want my parents to go their separate ways. I just want her to stop. it's not fair.

I avoid talking to him because he always makes me more upset. I can't be honest with him about anything because he is always rude to me.

She is living with her boyfriend of seven years. He is in therapy for depression and social anxiety. He hasn't worked in all this time.

I keep being mean to my best friend, and I don't know why all the time. I did come to maybe some kind of conclusion that it is because my mother is mean to me all the time. Could that be a cause?

My mom made a lot of mistakes a couple years back, and I can't seem to forgive her. I want to say that it's okay, but I can't. I feel like even if I did forgive her, I wouldn't be able to say it to her face.

My mom and I have been fighting a lot now, and I just want a good relationship with her.

I am a teenager, and my brother is a few years older. He has a girlfriend who is always with him. He never hangs out with me anymore. We were really close, and it is making me really sad.

I've been hurt by a man for five years. He doesn't involve me with the family or kids. Everyone in the family is against me. There is a Mass today for a family member, and he never asked me to go. I'm to sit home alone now and Christmas too. He expects me to sit alone while he enjoys being with the family. We are in our 50s, and it hurts that he won't even think of me or Hello, I have a cousin in my family who has been making me feel belittled, insecure, and frustrated during her stay here in the city. I know she comes from a place of love, but she has always been short-fused and highly temperamental if something doesn't work out the way she planned it. I have tried my best to coordinate plans with her, but she always ends up frustrated I use to be so happy. No matter what, I always was happy. I got into a relationship with this guy. I love him so much. We're both teenagers. The week after his birthday, my mom made me stop talking to him. It broke me. He came to my house and talked to her, and she let us date again but not see each other. He comes up to my school every day and it tears me apart I'm applying to private high schools. I'm playing basketball on my school team currently, and I love it. I also play on a team that I've hated since the beginning, and I finally want to quit before the season gets started. However, my parents say I can play on either both teams or neither. I think it's unfair because it's up to me if I want to play for a certain team. I was planning c I am always arguing with my father. He gets stressed over work and health and talks to me in a tone of voice that seems very demanding and seems more like yelling. I get upset often at this. Am I too sensitive? He always says I am overreacting but never seems to understand that he is hurting my feelings. No matter how often I try to tell him this, he never listens.

I am constantly having problems with the same two people who will always be in my life. I had a daughter with my ex-boyfriend. I am now married, and my husband's ex-girlfriend is involved with my ex-boyfriend. They also have a daughter together. My issue is that there is always drama. I am pregnant, and I told my ex-boyfriend that I don't want any drama or argument The point is there is so much drama. I try my best to get along with everyone. I don't understand where I went wrong (besides replying back to his question). I feel like I'm going crazy because this is a constant battle where everyone's frustrations are taken out on each other, and it's the children that are hurting. I had a party planned for my daughter's birthday, and I She treats me like I'm not in her presence. She's always yelling at me for no reason. She gives more respect to my brothers than me, but only my brothers fight her while I respect her.

I am having a problem with extended family members who are inappropriately urinating in my home. They are peeing in cat litter boxes, bottles, and directly on floors and in corners of my house. Is there any literature that supports why such adults would behave this way? This is not a joke. I am trying to understand.

I am married to a beautiful lady. I love my wife with all my heart. We have 3 boys and I have a daughter from a previous marriage. We also have 3 grandchildren. Now this event is tearing us apart. I want our family to be together and happy. It was a mistake from so long ago. My wife wants to leave and I don't want that to happen I love her so much. Please help me save I started dating a guy I met online. He told me that he registered sex offender but he didn't do anything. He took a plea to always register as sex offender and he did two years. That was more than two decades ago. Nothing on his record since. I always believe the past should be left in past. But my roommates, their family and my son are unforgiving. Should I forgive this

I'm having issues with my relative. The police never believe the experiences I have been through because I am only a kid.→ I've even had trouble trying to reach a therapist because I said I wanted to get an adult to help me. Could you please give me advice?

The last of my emotions belong to my pets. Today my dad said he might get rid of them tomorrow. If that does happen I might dig hole in the ground with a paper that says "here lays my emotions. R.I.P." I practically have no emotions left and I came to the realization about this not being normal by comparing my reaction to certain situations to my family's. What's wrong w I have secrets in my mind, and I don't know what to do with them. I don't want to tell my wife and mom because I don't want to hurt them. But I'm not sure how long that I can keep the secret to myself. What should I do? It's becoming annoying and making me anxious. Help me out

All we do is argue. We never agree on anything.

What makes a healthy marriage last?

I found out today that my wife is cheating on me. I love her, but she won't tell the truth even when I have proof. When I beg her to tell the truth, she yells, cusses, and gets a huge attitude.

I'm always listening to my husband, but it feels like he never listens to me. How do I get my husband to listen to me instead of me listening to him all the time?

I've only been married three months. Every week, we argue about something, and it seems to be getting worse.

If I tell him I don't like certain things, he does when it pertains to me. He tells me it's not like that. He never has anything to say about me until I tell him something about himself.

Cheating is something unacceptable for me but because we have two daughters I decided not to break up the family. However, now I am struggling to forget and forgive what happened. I feel like I cannot trust him. Without trust, I cannot stay in this relationship. On the other hand, I do not want my children to get hurt. I'm not sure how to move forward?

He wants to wear makeup and heels. He even tucks his penis away to resemble a vagina. He wants me to wear a strap on and have anal sex with him. I have tried this for him, but I don't like it and have told him so. He keeps making comments about it and says he can't live without it.

I love him, but he doesn't show me love. He talks badly about me to his friends.

My father is in the hospital and was diagnosed with leukemia. I have been dealing with that all day. My husband keeps getting mad at me for things that I said.

My husband took a job out of state for the next year and seems to be a different person. Before, he worked and slept, and on off days, he'd stay home because he didn't want to do anything else. Now he's going out with friends several nights a week while I'm still home working a 50 hours a week job and taking care of two kids by myself. He's suddenly saying he misses r I decided to stay and work it out. I just don't want to sit on the couch. Other than that, I have been getting over the situation. I don't feel it is fair that she expects me to sit on that couch and won't leave me alone about it. I can move on and continue to love, laugh, and play with my wife. I just don't want to sit on that couch.

I'm feeling different towards my husband. I feel I am growing from the relationship. I have been with my husband for six years and married for almost five. I just don't feel that connection anymore. I feel nothing. I don't know why or if I'm just being irrational.

I have an overwhelming desire to watch my wife have sex with another man. I talked to her about it, and she said she will do it for me. The idea excites me to no end, but I don't want to because it disgusts me. How can I stop wanting it, or should I just give into it and do it? I've been struggling for years with this. It won't go away. By the way, I am in my mid 30s and My husband and I have been together since high school. We have been married going on for nearly ten years, and we have three beautiful children. A few weeks ago, my husband decided he need some time apart and moved over to his dad's for a while. He comes home to see the kids and acts like there is not too much wrong. Can this marriage be saved or is it too I That phrase makes me crazy. It happens anytime I point out something to my husband that he needs to change, such as looking up from his iPad long enough for me to tell him the grandbaby almost pulled the shelf unit over or explaining to him that I got all the things he needs to bake a pie. Another example is when he opens the front door, the dog runs out if he doesn't My husband doesn't trust me for some past we had. I know all marriages have their ups and downs, but sometimes, I feel I am getting tired of the same thing over and over: that I am messing around, which I am not.

My husband and I would've been married for five years come June 2016. Our infant daughter just had her birthday. Shortly before, he told me he wanted a divorce. He has four other children, three of which are from his first wife. He decided to end that marriage when his youngest was an infant. The children do not have a good relationship with him now. He has another c My husband cheated on me and it hurt me very bad. It was a time when my health was poor. I'm have a hard time moving on.

I have been with my husband for almost 7 years. We got engaged a little after 5 years of being together. I had always been clear that I wanted to get married and I sadly would drop hints about how I wanted him to propose. When he did propose it was during a random vacation that I had planned. I was happy but I couldn't help feeling disappointed too. I had told him num I need to speak to someone about sexual addiction and binge eating immediately.

I've been bulimic for about 6 years now. I'm in my early 20s. I am about to start back to school to become an RN, and I really need to get better once and for all. I lose control of myself and become angry and anxious and just eat and purge. Over and over. Can someone please point me in the right direction for help?

I have a problem with binge eating, especially during times of stress. I binge eat and feel so overwhelmed with shame and disappointment that I end up going to the gym and trying to exercise the calories off. I am in my late 20s, and I have been dealing with this since I was a teenager. Are there any coping mechanisms I can use to break this cycle?

I have no self control over food. Most people stop when they've had enough, but I keep eating for the pleasure of it. Especially with sweets - I'm never done eating dessert.

There's this boy who asked me out awhile ago. I said no because my friends and family would think weirdly of me. How do I be with him and tell him and tell my friends?

I have suffered many things at home and school. We never went to the doctor to diagnose depression or anything like that, but I always feel like a part of my heart is missing. I try to fill it in with objects or, in this case, a woman.

I have a friend that who I used to be in a relationship with. It was brief and turned into us being just good friends.

I spent the weekend with him and it upset my boyfriend. Was I wrong?

I've been with my partner for 4 years. She's given me no reason not to trust her. But lately I've been overreacting a lot when she's just doing normal things. I think it's triggering my bad past relationships.

How can I get rid of these insecurities and be more trusting with her?

I've been in a long distance relationship with my girlfriend for just over a year. This past week she admitted to me that she has feelings for another guy. She says it's just a crush, but I don't know how to cope with it. How should I deal with this?

I've been with a man for four years. For the last year, he has said he is done, but he still talks, texts, visits, and has not moved on with anyone else. His words do not match his actions. I love this man, but it's hurting so much.

I'm having relationship problems and I want to fix them to make things right before I lose her. How can I learn how to listen and get myself together?

Recently my boyfriend broke up with me because of my bad language. But he thinks I'm a total b*h. I know I'm bipolar and can be selfish. He called me today and says he can't go through with the breakup. I was broken and didn't want a breakup to begin with, but I know I'm horrible at times and can't help it. It's like I'm battling myself. What do you feel?

I told him I liked him. He called me lovely and pretty but he said he didn't want a relationship. He would always flirt with me.

I'm in a long-distance relationship with my ideal man, but I'm not as attracted to him as I should be. Everything else is perfect about him, but I find myself lusting over more attractive men. The next step is marriage, but I want to marry someone who I can wake up to and fall in love with all over again. However, I also don't want to throw away a great relationship over what I met this girl in high school. She had switched schools at the end of the year, and I have not seen her since. It's been a few years. We had a very good and friendly relationship, and we seemed to have a lot in common. I never gained the courage to ask her out.

My boyfriend is in recovery from drug addiction. We recently got into a fight and he has become very distant. I don't know what to do to fix the relationship.

I was never single, afraid to be alone, and I looked for my boyfriend to make me happy. I finally worked on my self, was in a relationship, and I did everything a healthy girlfriend does and it didn't work out. Now months later, no man peaks my interest. Am I ready to date again? Is there a reason no one sparks my interest?

My boyfriend is always saying he's done with me and says he's leaving, but then at the end of the night, he's still here. He wakes up in the morning, acts like nothing happen, and repeats this every night.

I was with my boyfriend for years on and off. We dated and broke up three times. Since we broke up five months ago I can't move on. I want to get back together but he won't talk to me. What should I do?

I really like this guy and I think he likes me back, but his sister is my bestfriend. I'm afraid that if I tell her I have a crush on her brother she would lose it. I once told her I thought her brother was cute and she got really angry. I've gotten to know her brother better lately and he's realized he may actually feel the same way. I don't want to lose her friendship. What do I do?

I feel like I took our relationship for granted and he's now to the point that he's giving up.

I have had trouble feeling like I could trust him but he's given me no reason not to trust him. I know my attitude is also a big issue for him. I have a lot of obligations at home so we don't spend a lot of time together. How can I fix this relationship?

Whenever I sing along with a song that I like (even if it's just for the beat and not the lyrics), my boyfriend assumes that the words of the song mean something negative about our relationship. I don't why he gets so mad and assumes I mean something negative from every song. Now I can't enjoy and sing a song without him thinking I'm trying to give him a hint. He even I have a lot of child custody concerns, financial issues, insecurities and weigh gain. I also have no local family support. It's hard for me to stay positive. I get very emotional and take it out on the people I love. How can I stay strong?

I was talking to my fiancé about changing my hair. He recommended a very specific hair style. Then I found out his ex has that exact same hair. I feel like he must know she has that hair style. Am I nuts, or does this show that he's still in love with her?

My girlfriend recently started hanging out a lot more with one of her friends who did her wrong in the past and just walked out on her. So for the past 3 years its been just me and my girlfriend. Things have been great up until the last month. Now she ignores me and texts and hangs out with her friend more and more.

I don't know what to do anymore. My girlfriend is so distant. How do I keep from losing her?

I don't know how to tell someone how I feel about them. How can I get better at expressing how I feel?

My boyfriend and I have been dating for almost 2 years. I've been really sad lately and for the past few months I've realized I'm just way too dependent on him. It makes me really upset to be so dependent on someone else, but I can't help it. I don't even know who I am without him.

How can I be less dependent on my him?

I feel so alone. I have so many people around me, but it seems as they just listen and don't understand. They say it will all be okay, or they don't listen to me at all. Everyone says they are here for me but it doesn't feel like they are. Why do I feel so alone?

I don't speak up if I'm uncomfortable and hardly ever make plans for us when we hang out. He is a very open and straightforward person, so he is getting upset with me for my lack of proper communication. We've been together two years and have identified this as our main problem. Arguments have arisen from this single issue many times.

We've been together almost three years. We argue and he ends it by telling me he doesn't love me. It's hurtful because I am all about resolving the problem, and he dwells on the issue even if I drop what he's done and just swallow my pride and say I am sorry. How can this be resolved? We have kids, and I don't want a broken family because we can't communicate I'm dating this guy, Peter. My friend Jennifer used to date him a while ago, and she's fine with us dating. My ex-boyfriend, Paul, broke up with Jennifer, and she's devastated about it. Peter and I are going through a rough patch in our relationship. All of a sudden, Paul is in "love" with me, and he wants me back. I don't know what to do because I can't hurt my friend or my t My boyfriend called me a particular profanity and I broke up with him. This is the third time he's called me this and I'm just completely done with giving him chances. He knows how much it bothers me. I just want to know if I'm over reacting.

My boyfriend is in Ireland for 11 days, and I am an emotional wreck.

I have high functioning autism and I have been on a lot of dating sites like meet me, match, and zoosk. I haven't had any luck on any of the dating sites I have been on.

I really want a boyfriend but I don't know what I should do. I just want to be in a relationship. How can I meet someone?

We've been in a long distance relationship for two and a half years. I recently saw his phone and saw the people he texts the most and one of them was a female coworker. I don't know how to approach this situation. How do I ask him about it?

We weren't long distance until he joined the military. I love him and I know he loves me but it's complicated. He said he's not going to find someone else, but I'm afraid. How do I keep our relationship going?

When I ask him who he is talking to, he tells me no one. But, it sounds like he is holding a conversation with someone. I have even accused him of having a secret cell phone. I ask so much, I feel like I am losing it. Is he trying to make me question my sanity, or is he talking to himself?

Over a year ago I had a female friend. She turned out to be kind of crazy so I decided to stop talking to her. When she would call me I wouldn't answer the phone. This made a girlfriend really suspicious. She would ask me why I wouldn't ever answer that phone number. I told my girlfriend that I don't want to be friends with that other woman, but I don't think she believes

My boyfriend and I have a toxic relationship due to his emotional and verbal abuse but he makes me feel like I could never find someone better, and that I can't be happy without him.

How do I get away from this relationship?

We had great chemistry, but then he became distant. I had the feeling that I can't be without him. As soon as I felt the difference, I was scared to lose him. I started freaking out if he did not answer, thinking that something bad happened.

I,Äö in my early 20s. My ex,Äö's parents are friends with them and have told them bad things about me. I left my ex due to an abusive situation, and they are making me look like I was the bad one.

I try to do everything right just so we won't argue, and it doesn't help the only time he is calm is when he is drinking alcohol. I get anxiety over having fights with him.

Ever since I was little, I loved the idea of loving someone and spending my whole life with them. I treated everyone nice. For girls I liked, I would spend every second with them. It always ends the same way: Äö like you as a friend,Äö or Äö love your attention but not you.Äö

I'm dating a guy I really love. We have our problems, but I could see myself with him long term. But there's this other guy who I've had feelings for for awhile now. He gives me butterflies when we talk, and my heart beats fast when I see he's texted me, which I never felt with my current boyfriend.

My ex-boyfriend and I have been back and forth for over a year now. He's in his late 20s, divorced for like five years now with two kids. He has a lot of narcissistic behaviors. He lies and cheats, but I love him. I've tried to date other people, but I always go back to him.

I'm in a relationship, but I feel like I'm always putting more into it and not getting reciprocated. My ex told me that I will never find anyone else, and that's lingering in the back of my mind.

I blame my past relationship for it. I know it is bad to be this way. I want to get past it.

I am currently suffering from erectile dysfunction and have tried Viagra, Cialis, etc. Nothing seemed to work. My girlfriend of 3 years is very sexually frustrated. I told her that it is okay for her to have sex with other men. Is that really okay?

i was addicted to porn since the second grade. I'm in my early 40s and overcame my addiction during my separation from my wife of 15 years.

He isn't violent, but he has anger issues and deep insecurities. He's working on them and has improved. We started counseling, and he participated in one or two individual sessions, but we broke up again shortly thereafter. Now his constant questions and accusations are getting really draining.

I have had a crush on this guy for years. I last talked to him a few years ago when we graduated from high school. We left off on a good note. Should I message him and see how he is doing, or is it too late?

I've been with him for a couple months. We will talk everyday and he will get mad over something I will say and not talk to me. We have our great moments, but I just need to focus on my personal situations, and I feel he is slowing me down with that. I still wanna be with him, but not now.

I found out my boyfriend takes anti-depression medicine. Lately he's been saying he has a lot on his mind, and he needs time to think about us. We've only been dating 3 weeks but I like him a lot.

Me and the father of my child have been dating for a year. We had a big argument and at first he wanted to work it out. But with time he started asking others and they told him to leave me. Now he wants me to wait on him to mature. He wants to talk to other people. Then come back in four years. He doesn't want to deal with me while I'm pregnant. He doesn't take me to

I have several issues like I don't like people. They make me sick. I have issues with talking to people. I feel like they are talking about me and making fun of me. I have felt this way for years. When I look people in the eyes I have voices that tell me to hurt them and if I don't stop looking at who I am talking to it gets so loud I can't hear what they are saying. I just stay away

Now that the other girl is out of the picture, our sex life isn't the same. Is it because he is still thinking about the other girl?

I was in a relationship with him for three years. My mom doesn't like it because she thinks I'm making a mistake. He got married a few months after we broke up, and now he is divorced. I forgave him for what he did in the past, and he says he's sorry and he really loves me. I love him too, but is it bad that I'm giving him a second chance again?

I am currently living in a hotel and I don't have a family. I met a guy a month ago. He is a bisexual. He has a lot of gay friends on social networking sites. He would not help pay for the room. When I asked for the TV remote control, he threw it elsewhere and asked me to get it. I slapped him and asked him to leave my room. We recently just got back together. One time

About two and a half months ago, I met a woman on a dating site. We went out on two dates, and then despite her original plans on how to pace and conduct the relationship, I ended up at her house on a the Friday night one week after our first date. We respectfully tried not to have sex, but after hours of trying to resist each other, we gave in and we had sex. After that, I

A few days later, she tells me how much she's missing me and Äölet Äö's get together for lunch,Äö or something like that. Then about two weeks later, we finally get together one night and we were so hot for each other (in love, not just sex), but she confessed that the reason for the sudden distance was that the father of her very young child told her he wants to get b

I got involved with my best friend who has been very unhappy for the last five years. We both fell in love and have been together for eight months. He decided to tell her about our relationship, and she is willing to forgive and work on things. This shook him. They have two kids together. He decided to put the divorce on

I have been dating my boyfriend for a month, and we want a baby. We don't work or drive, and we haven't talked to our parents. What should we do?

I was hanging out with my close guy friend. We started kissing, but afterwards, he said that we should just stay friends because he doesn't want to ruin anything. We both just got out of relationships. His was very sexual. I'm not a sexual person, and he knows that. I want to be with him, but I'm not ready for another relationship, and I don't know if he ever will want to be m

My partner seems to always get depressed over the fact that his kids have to see and go through the divorce process. It's especially when the mother of his kids keeps making him feel bad and using the kids as an excuse to get back at him. I feel like just telling him to go back with his family and forget about me.

My girlfriend broke up with me five months ago because I said awful things to her one night for no reason of hers. I have been trying to get her back, but it isn't easy. She is in her 50s and I am in my 40s. She is the one I want for my life, and this is killing me. Every day, I cry, and I am desperate for help.

I'm a female freshman in high school, and this question is for my male best friend. At the start of freshman year, we dated for a week before his parents ended it because they said he is too young to date. He has been dating a really sweet senior girl for a month or two. I have nothing against her except for the fact that she has Tim's heart. He is convinced that they

I have been seeing this guy for a little over a year. Back in August, he asked for us to step back for now. Since then, he has still been in contact with me every day. We spent some time together over the holidays, but then I was gone for New Years with family. I came to find out that he put himself on a dating site. When I found out, I asked him about it, and he responded w

My girlfriend and I have broken up and gotten back together numerous times in the past two years. We recently just broke up again last night on New Year's Eve. When we break up, the very next day, she calls me and acts as if nothing has happened. She acts like everything is alright. This has been going on for two years. I do love her and care about her and her chil

I broke up with him three weeks ago because I felt that he needed to be more respectful. He has since had a rebound relationship. He says he loves and misses me but refuses to see me. He says it's going to be too difficult to see me. Every time we talk, it feels like I'm being pushy to see him. He used to be so madly in love with me, but now, it seems like he couldn't

I'm an early 20 something year-old virgin, and my boyfriend is in his early 20s with kids. He's cheated on me twice: once in the beginning and then four months ago. He wasn't use to dating a virgin and broke up with me three times because he wasn't sure. We both work at the same job (where we met) and it's with the girl that works with us. I've been trying to get over

How do I gain confidence? Should I let him go? If I let him go, I don't want to be sad about it being that we worked together. I try to tell myself I'm beautiful every day, and I think I am a pretty attractive female with a great personality, but I don't like the fact that she works there.

I find that I imagine things sexually, and I hate it because it puts strain on my relationship. I feel helpless and guilty. I want it to go away, and I want to make my woman happy again.

My boyfriend moved in with me a few months ago. I love him, but his dog is wrecking my house. Every day we get home, there is a huge mess on the floor, and several things will be ripped up (including the couch). He's slowly eating all of the doors, and there will be food and poop everywhere. Even though I come home during all of my breaks to take him out, he still poo

I had to go to the emergency room today to get an X-ray of my spine. My boyfriend didn't want to sit there and wait with me. Instead, he wanted to go do things for his friends while I waited. When I was done, he was twenty minutes late in picking me up. He doesn't understand why I'm mad, and we keep bickering at each other over the smallest things. He thinks I don't ha

My fiancé doesn't think I trust him because I was cheated on before. However, he hides his phone and has been texting his ex-girlfriend, who he has two kids with. What should I do?

My long-distance girlfriend is in a sorority, and it's changing her. I feel like I'm becoming less important to her and it hurts. She just wants me to support the sorority, but it's so hard. I try every day to show her she's the most important thing to me, but she can't even stay relatively sober at a fraternity party for me so that I won't worry about her doing anything regretful. We k

Every once and a while, I think about my ex-boyfriend from four years ago, and my current friend. It's like I can't get past it, and I need some kind of closure. I keep thinking about how we had something, but it got out off due to parental intervention. Nothing was ever wrong with it. Now we've become friends, but there's this huge sexual tension between us, or at least I

Two summers ago, we saw each other casually for a while, but we never had sex then or while we were dating, which was only for two months three years ago. I'm now in my 20s, and my current boyfriend is amazing and in his 30s. Despite the age difference, I know we're a really good match. We've never really fought and are able to make compromises and talk every

I want to just talk it out with my ex-boyfriend, but I don't know if that's a good idea because of the possibility that it could blow up in my face. If he told his girlfriend, everything could go wrong because she hates me. If my current boyfriend knew, he would be crushed. On one hand, I want my ex-boyfriend to say no to having feelings for me, but I would be terrified of what

Please help me, because I really have no idea what to do.

After 25 years, I fell in love for the first time. The person acted for a week and left me without even saying goodbye. My heart is burning, and I can't take this pain.

My ex-boyfriend and I met over a year ago. We hit it off and fell in love pretty quick. However, he has trust issues and assumed I was cheating. When I found out I was pregnant, we had just broken up. Five months later, I lost the baby, and we did not speak for a few weeks. Now we are talking, and he says he loves me but is afraid I will hurt him "again." I just want to kno

My ex-boyfriend, will not stop harassing and stalking me. We work together. I honestly think he needs help to move on. His accusations are angry lies. But I think he may believe them to be true.

My boyfriend's sneaky and puts his friends before me. He fights just to leave. One day, he's happy. The next, he's mean and blames me for everything. He can't admit faults. He thinks he's perfect and does no wrong.

My boyfriend says I'm nuts. I need to get help because I get an overwhelming feeling that he is cheating on me. Whenever I try to talk with him about it, he always turns it around on me by telling me what I'm doing wrong. I know that accusing him does not help. When his whole demeanor shifts towards me, I can't help but think that something is wrong. Am I wrong for fee

I want us all to get along, but feel that I am not being respected. Of course I do have some insecurities because he was with his ex for 8 years. He wants to see his step daughter and ex makes it so he has to go there to see her, but she doesn't want me around. She has a boyfriend, but mine fixes their vehicles, goes over once a week and hangs out with the ex and does

Then turn right back around and say he loves me and needs me. This rollercoaster is crazy.

I have been with my best friend for over a year, and we have had a beautiful baby girl. We were in love, and I still love her dearly. I am in my late teens and so is she. She says she has lost her connection with me. She is talking to a random guy that she says is just someone to talk to. But she says she still loves me. I'm very hurt and confused.

Why am I attracted to older men?

I'm in a relationship with my fiancé and I currently found out that she's been cheating on me with a co-worker. I was very upset none the less. I understand what she did was wrong, but I want to spend the rest of my life with her. So I'm willing to forgive and move on. We have been together for a little over 9 years, and we have a son. At the beginning of our relationship, I

We went out had great sex and I was really liking her. Then one day she says we should just be friends, but I can't stop thinking about her. She's always on mind and I want her back.

I know someone who is extremely sensitive to stress and very sensitive to a negative tone of voice. Sometimes during a disagreement he tells me that my communication is having a harmful impact on him. Once he believes I am being negative I can't seem to find a better way of communicating. In fact, it is often a self fulfilling prophesy because his accusatory manner bec

What do I do if I have been feeling like I could never be with anyone because no one would want me. Or I couldn't have many friends because of who I am. It's strange I want to be loved but I'd hate to be because I always lose.

He goes out with her to dinner/brunch/movies when we are not together (we live 2 hours apart).

We kissed and he grabbed my boobs and we exchanged some texts and a few calls. It went on for about 8 months. Just when we were all together and our spouses were out of the room. Once I met him for lunch to tell him that we needed to stop. We ended up kissing after lunch and then I sent him a few more texts that day telling him I was serious and that was the end

He is in his late thirties and I am in my mid twenties. We have been together for about 5 months. I really like him. He says he cares about me and is willing to fight to make things right. He has been very apologetic and expressed he did it out of fear. I don't know if it's worth giving him a second chance.

However, it seems as though he is really talking to someone other than himself. I have even accused him of having a secret phone. Is he trying to make me crazy on purpose, or is he really talking to himself?

I keep getting into relationships with men that are in bad situations. I take them on and help them and do all I can and the relationship still fails. How do I learn to not get in relationships with men in bad situations? I see someone in need of help. I jump in. And it is getting me nowhere. I am alone sad and frustrated.

My girlfriend's grandma passed away 5 months ago. They were very close. She took care of her till she died. Things kinda returned to normal few weeks later. Last month it feels like we hit a brick wall. Intimacy fell off. I asked what's up. She says she can't connect with anyone and that it's not me. She used to be very open and expressive. Now she gives short answers a

I'm currently dating someone else and I really like him. But I love and miss my ex so much. What do I do?

We have been fighting a lot and have 3 kids but we both want to stay together. I need some help to save our family.

I find myself lying about small everyday things that there is really no need to lie about. How do I figure out what triggers me to do this? And how do I help overcome this problem? I would like to become more honest and open no matter the situation.

I have dog obsession disorder and I am having problems with my girlfriend because I am placing more importance to my two dogs over her. How do I get over this problem and prioritize my girlfriend over my two dogs?

He's been losing feelings and he doesn't know why. I love him very very much. He sometimes thinks I'm obsessed when I'm not at all. I give him his space and I make sure he's okay but sometimes I think if he and him saw each other more it would be better? I truly want me and him to get better, it's kind of hard not to stress about it, because the love of my life is losing fe

We do communicate but one of us has trouble accepting what the other person says. How can I fix things?

I haven't uttered one word to my boyfriend in days. Now I'm over it and don't know how to approach the situation?

I've been abused emotionally all of my life and for some reason I keep getting with men that I let emotionally abused me.

How can I stop it? I know the mistakes that I've made in my life. I'm having a really hard time getting back on my feet. Can you help me please?

I have been with a guy for 4 years, he's a great guy and we also have a son together. The problem is that I'm in love with a guy that I've been talking to for about 2 years but I've never met him in person. Honestly I'm bored with the relationship I have with the first guy and he makes want to go after the second guy, I don't know how to tell him that. What should I do?

I have been with this guy on and off for 8 years. At first, we used to do things together and our sex life was ok. Then things started to change, we'd break up and reconnect, and he cheated on me numerous times. We've also had two beautiful baby girls during this time. Now we argue and he says I am not affectionate at all or I don't know how to please a man, when I wor

Me and my girlfriend just broke up. She said she loves me but is not in love anymore. This came out of nowhere. We seemed so happy together. It all started when she went to Missouri to visit her family. The first week she was there she was fine then once she went to this one sister's house everything changed. That's when she told me she loved me but was not in lov

After 40 years of being straight, how could I now find myself interested in people of the same sex? I have had a few same sex encounters of my own doing.

I'm a girl, and I can't tell whether I'm bisexual or gay. I like girls a little more than boys, but I don't really know.

What should I do when we see each other?

I was born a girl. I look like a boy. I sometimes feel like a different variation of gender. I don't know what to say if someone asks my gender. I just get really confused and usually say my birth gender.

I've been going through a rough time lately. I been into nothing but women. I've never thought about men until a week ago. I'm torn over upset and depressed about this. It's not normal to me. I looked at gay porn more than once to prove that I'm not gay. I get the same results each time, and I feel disgust. This is tough on me. I'm scared that I looked too many times. I

I am a heterosexual male in my late 20s. I find myself wearing pantyhose, heels, skirts and other women's clothing in private. I am torn up now to feel about it. I enjoy it very much. I have had a pantyhose/stocking fascination and other kinky fetish interests since I was young. I have no history of sexual abuse growing up. I am currently single.

I have always wanted to have a transition from male to female for some time now. This issue has persisted for 10 years already but I don't know where to start. I do not have the soundest information either.

In middle school and high school, my friends and family thought I was gay. I tried telling them, but they wouldn't believe me. It almost feels like they wanted me to be. Now I'm actually starting to believe them. I know I wasn't back then, and now I'm not sure anymore.

I'm a guy. If I don't like girls, nor do I like guys, does that mean I'm gay?

I'm transgender, I know I am, but I've only told a few friends. I know I can't tell my family because of previous conversations we've had. They just wouldn't accept it.

My gender dysphoria is getting really difficult to deal with on my own. I need some strategies for dealing with it. What should I do?

I have been noticing myself really enjoying watching/reading about gay or lesbian couples. I've also been imagining what it might be like to date a girl, and I like the idea. I also find guys cute too. Does this make me bisexual?

I got sick really bad and was throwing up for three days and nights. I thought I was going to die. Then about a week later, I started having this desire to be female. I never had this desire before. All I can think about is being a woman. I don't get pleasure from my penis anymore either. Women are attractive, but not like before. I can also find men attractive now. I'm too ashamed to tell anyone.

I'm a teenage girl. I don't know if I'm straight, bisexual, or gay. I've been straight all my life, but a sudden rush of questions have come over me, and I don't know anymore.

I've recently thought that I could be transgender but I've never had the mind of a girl.

I feel like I would be more comfortable as a girl even though I still like guys. I think I'm like a girl stuck in a guy body. I imagine myself as a girl too. I think this more because my friends say that if I was a girl I would be a hot looking one. And I don't care about having boobs or anything. I just feel like the way that I do act will make more sense if I was a girl.

I can't understand what I pay attention to.

I'm a teenager and I've been sneaking out of my house at night for a year now. I've been caught several times. I want to stop doing this but I don't know where to start. How do I stop?

I suffer from checking and cleaning OCD. Can counseling help me to get over it?

I'm a teenager and I get these really intense mood swings. My mood will be really high and I'll think of something that I want to do. When I start to make it happen I get irritated by other people if they intervene. Then if the thing I wanted to do doesn't work out, I have these tendencies to blame other people for it not working out. Can you explain what's going on?

For the past four weeks, I've been having nightmares and hearing voices telling me of horrible things. They're not random voices, but rather, the voices of those I care about.

My doctor seems to think I am in danger of having one. I neglected to ask how this was different than an episode. I have been formally diagnosed with bipolar type 1.

Often times I find myself thinking scary thoughts and sometimes I even scare myself into thinking that something bad is going to happen to me. Once it starts, the thought continues going through my head and I can't get it out. How can I stop these thoughts?

I'm a teenager, and I created a sort of imaginary friend to help me cope with stressful situations or if I'm worried or upset. She "gives me advice" and comforts me and tells me it'll be okay. I've given her a name (Solace) and created a personality for her that's like a comforting motherly figure. I know it's just my own advice and my own thoughts, but it's just that I'm thinking I read that you should ignore them and they have to come to a conclusion that they were wrong on their own terms. Is that correct?

People always judge others so rudely.

I've developed a really intense and unexpected attraction to an actress after seeing her in a ballet uniform while guest starring on a television show. I try, but I can't get her out of my mind. What should I do?

I am extremely possessive in my relationships and this is hurting my friendships. How can I fix my underlying issues?

I know I'm ruining my life with a lot of the decisions I make. I consistently tell myself I need to make some serious changes in my life, but I just can't seem to even though I really want to. Why can't I force myself to change?

I don't feel like myself anymore. For example, I could walk up an entire flight of stairs before realizing that my legs are moving. I feel like I'm watching my life be lived by someone else.

I was with my friends fishing by a pond. I found a frog and stabbed it with my friend's knife. I'm not sure why I did it. My friends saw me do it and were shocked and got really mad at me.

Now if someone brings it up I get really upset and panicked. I don't know why I feel like this. Does this mean there is something wrong with me?

Sometimes, when I look at my pet cat, I think about how innocent he is and how somebody could hurt or kill him. It makes me sad because I love him, but I always think about how helpless he is. There've even been split-seconds where I felt almost tempted to kick him, followed by shame and guilt.

She was diagnosed a type one diabetic two years ago and had a very tough time dealing with it. She has an attachment issue also; her mother just moved to a much nicer home, and she gets angry and demands to go back to her prior home. We do not understand what is going on, and it is driving us crazy.

My daughter basically freaked out out of nowhere over me saying "calm down" when she dropped her phone. Within seconds, the situation escalated to her kicking me out on the curb, saying horrifically unspeakable things, and her calling the cops on me. She seems unable to stop herself at times.

I've tried working out and eating fruits and vegetables, but I always seem to eat the junk in the house.

I've felt this way for two years. I feel so much better now than I did when it started, but it is still there in the back of my mind at all times.

It's been like a couple of years that I've been feeling like this. I don't want to self-diagnose, but I get so sad and cry and then I feel better. But then I get upset with people so quickly, and I hurt their feelings. It's this constant rollercoaster, and it's hard.

I just need to know if I'm really crazy or not.

I start to think of an issue that doesn't even matter or something bad that happened years ago. Then, I cry, pull at my hair, plug my ears, hit myself, and throw things. In loud public places, I get on edge and start being sarcastic and moody. I have an awful fear of people leaving me (which normally ends up happening) and I feel like I'm too clingy.

I have an ex-boyfriend who just lies about everything. He is super lazy. He lies to everyone that he has a good job, builds trust, and then start borrowing money. A large amount too. It has come to the point where he has gone through several groups of friends. He is leaving a trail behind full of friends in debt because he would put on a sob story, borrow money, then disappear.

Although he has this habit of lying compulsively and spending money, he seems to be a good person. He'll always give a homeless person all his change no matter what. My brother has epilepsy and is really antisocial. My ex-boyfriend makes an actual effort to socialize with my brother. He takes him out to the movies and plays video games with him. He drives me to school.

I noticed lately that I've been thinking a lot about death. I don't want to die, and I'm not suicidal. I just think about what would happen if I died or if someone I loved died. I imagine how sad everyone I know would be. I know it isn't worth it, and I definitely want to live and have a future. I just think about it. When I'm driving, I sometimes imagine what would happen if I just let go.

I was never like this. Recently this year (my first year of high school), I started getting emotional for no reason.

I am lazy. I am very aware of the problem and try to talk myself out of it all the time, but I never seem to shake the habits. I try to think of what it is doing to me and my future, but no matter what, I keep creating excuses for myself to continue the procrastination. All I'm ever left with is regrets and a low grade. I am at an all-time low in my life, and I'm not even that old. I've always felt like this.

I never get infections or scars or anything, and it doesn't bother me if it gets filled up with blood or something, but I'm concerned.

I feel that I am struggling with undiagnosed bipolar disorder, and it is making my day-to-day life extremely difficult.

For some reason, I look at my phone, and in no time, five hours has passed. During those five hours, I'm playing games and trying to find out how to make my phone fun to use so I don't feel like I wasted my time trying to improve my phone's performance in my life.

This is my recovery, and I don't feel that it is okay for them to ask this. They told me it is policy due to the fact that I may run into a peer there. I am a peer counselor in the small community that I grew up in. I am in recovery myself. I was asked to come work for this organization after I was two years sober (I was in treatment in this organization). I work with mental health professionals.

I have a relative who is in his twenties. He was in a drug rehabilitation program and got kicked out for using drugs again. No one informed family that he was using drugs again. He subsequently overdosed and was found dead.

Is their accountability of counselors, therapists or the halfway house for not reporting that he had relapsed? Is there a legal case for failing to report?

What do you do when a therapist and a parent drugs a child and makes up lies in order to stop the other parent's custody visitation?

They discontinued treatment for no apparent reason after they thought to diagnose me with schizophrenia.

I had a dispute with my therapist regarding an appointment cancellation. Now, she is blocking me from seeing other psychologists at the same clinic (which takes my insurance), which is also where I get my psychiatric services. There is a strict 48-hour cancellation policy, and my appointments are at 3:00 on Tuesday. I called to cancel at 4:30 the previous Friday. I was late.

I terminated my counseling relationship with a social worker several years ago. I am now realizing that I would like to begin counseling again. The social worker's voicemail message says that he returns calls in 24 hours, but he hasn't called me back. I called him on the weekend and made it clear that I want him to call me back. Can he just ignore me?

I think I have depression, anxiety, bipolar disorder, and I have anger issues. I told my mom over and over again. She told me she would get me a therapist, but she never did. I just found out that my mom can't afford a therapist for me.

I have major depression, severe PTSD, anxiety disorder, and personality disorder. I had an appointment with my doctor. I was very upset, and I shared with him about that particular drug.

How does a counselor decide when to end counseling sessions or to terminate working with a client?

My therapist is gay so there are no sexual issues here. However, my therapist for six years has made me believe that he cares about me and that we are friends. I have loaned money to him many times, and he always paid me back.

I had a medical emergency last weekend and I was heavily medicated. I knew that this therapist came into my home and wrote down my credit card information so he could pay back what he owed me, but this therapist dropped me off and never came again. I don't know what to do.

I just wanted to get to know one so I can hear about their college experience and the courses they took. I also wanted to know if they enjoy their job and how long they were in school.

I am an international student, and it is my first semester in graduate school in the United States. I faced a cultural shock, and I was so depressed when I arrived here. My counselor in the university was my savior. He helped me a great deal. Now I am going back to my country for a vacation. I was thinking to get him something special with my country's name on it, and I realized that I don't know what to get him.

I have an eating disorder of bingeing. I've had gastric sleeve surgery. I need help with issues of abuse as a child, addiction, and abusive men. I have been in therapy for five months and get no feedback from my therapist.

I'm worried I should see a therapist due to past events and current mental status. I'm just so unsure of how to ask my doctor about seeing someone.

I need help dealing with stress. How can I handle it all and feel less stressed out?

I need help knowing how to deal with stress. What can I do?

I'm in my late 20s. I have two jobs right now, I'm in school, and I feel like I just have a lot under my belt right now. I get stressed out really easily. I tend to worry and over-think. I'm just worried about money and everything.

Is it a type of fetish, or is it normal?

I am a young adult, and I was sexually assaulted by an older man when I was a teenager (which has really intensified the guilt/shame). However, I've been attracted to much older men since I was even younger than that.

I have been experiencing a lot of sexual tension with a lot of the guys that I talk to nowadays. I keep imagining having sex with them. I have never had sex before, nor have I had a boyfriend. I feel lonely and empty. I feel like my body is not okay, and I am missing something. I talk to so many boys in school, and I always fantasize about half of them. I want this feeling to stop.

Back in high school, my friend and I used to masturbate around each other. I hate even talking about it now because it's so weird. We didn't even realize how messed up it was at the time. One time, it escalated and we ended up doing it for each other. It wasn't supposed to be a gay thing, but it sure sounds like it now that I talk about it. I pushed this away until I recently came back to it.

These "jokes" are made about everything. They seem to have the need to say something "funny" about everything. It's not funny, just awkward.

My best friend and I were pranking her friend, and I told her to tell him that she likes him. She said no, but I forced her. After she told him, he told her that he likes her too. Their friendship is ruined because of me. She won't forgive me, and I feel really guilty. I feel like crying.

I was, unfortunately, by this guy for a few years spiritually. It was okay at times, but other times, it was just weird. I try not to think about it too much, but a lot of manipulation and lying happened, yet no one else really believed me when I told them. It's like he's two different people, and no one else really sees that side of him. I was blamed for a lot of our troubles, and now I'm trying to move on.

Every time I send a message to someone or a group message on Instagram, iMessage, or snapchat people will read my messages but then they won't answer me. Could it be that there is something they don't like about me? I don't understand why they won't answer my messages. How do I get people to respond to me?

She mostly targets me on social media. The bullying used to be much worse, but it is still going on. The comments are so vague, but I know that they are meant for me. Even when I confront her, she messages me short phrases to try to get in my head. If I try to fight back, she will ruin me.

It's really hard to not have negative feelings about friends who don't put any effort into nourishing our relationship.

I'm having problems shutting them out and putting up walls.

I'm having a quinceañera, and the girls don't like their dresses. They never told me, and now it's a week away. I don't know what to do.

I would like to be able to have more positive relationships in the present.

In this argument my friends are all against me so I'm wondering if I'm exaggerating my feelings. I feel like I'm being attacked and that is making me blow things out of proportion and taking the role of the victim, when in reality I'm the one being unreasonable and I am simply annoying my reasonable friends. Or are they really being insensitive and not respecting me in our friendship?

They're calling me names like hypocrite and a baby even when they act in the same manner as I do. I'm tired of being called names. What should I do?

I've been bullied for years and the teachers have done nothing about it. I haven't been diagnosed with depression, but I have been extremely sad for years.

How can I deal with being bullied at school when the teachers won't help?

I nanny a three-year-old. When he wakes up in the morning he calls out for someone to come get him. If I am the one to go get him out of bed he gets really upset and refuses to let me near him. He screams that he wants his mom or dad (they work from home). The rest of the day he loves me. But not in the mornings.

What can I do?

I need to get on base to see my doctor. My ID card was in my wallet which was stolen. I'm unable to reach my husband at this time. He is the only one who can take me on base in order to get a new ID so I can continue to see doctor. Is there anything I can do?

How do therapists classify the type of personality their clients have? What characteristics do they look at to decide what type of personality the client has? I've read about this online, but I'd like to understand this from a therapist's point of view.

[illegible]

[illegible]

I am constantly having problems with the same two people who will always be in my life. I had a daughter with my ex-boyfriend. I am now married, and my husband,Äôs ex-girlfriend is involved with my ex-boyfriend. They also have a daughter together. My issue is that there is always drama. I am pregnant, and I told my ex-boyfriend that I don't want any drama or argument

The point is there is so much drama. I try my best to get along with everyone. I don't understand where I went wrong (besides replying back to his question). I feel like I'm going crazy because this is a constant battle where everyone,Äôs frustrations are taken out on each other, and it's the children that are hurting. I had a party planned for my daughter,Äôs birthday, and n Every once and a while, I think about my ex-boyfriend from four years ago, and my current friend. It,Äôs like I can't get past it, and I need some kind of closure. I keep thinking about how we had something, but it got cut off due to parental intervention. Nothing was ever wrong with it. Now we've become friends, but there's this huge sexual tension between us, or at least I f

Two summers ago, we saw each other casually for a while, but we never had sex then or while we were dating, which was only for two months three years ago. I'm now in my 20s, and my current boyfriend is amazing and in his 30s. Despite the age difference, I know we're a really good match. We've never really fought and are able to make compromises and talk everyt

I don't know what to do. I need some closure or I'm not going to be able to move on from this. I don't know what it is, but it's driving me crazy. I,Äôm so happy with my current boyfriend, and I know he will do everything in his power to make my life beautiful and fulfilling. He,Äôs such a good person. I also know my ex-boyfriend smokes marijuana and does other things, but

I want to just talk it out with my ex-boyfriend, but I don't know if that's a good idea because of the possibility that it could blow up in my face. If he told his girlfriend, everything could go wrong because she hates me. If my current boyfriend knew, he would be crushed. On one hand, I want my ex-boyfriend to say no to having feelings for me, but I would be terrified of what t

Please help me, because I really have no idea what to do.
I find myself crying over every little thing, like dropping a glass of water. Today, I got out of the shower and noticed that I had forgotten a shirt. I instantly started to cry. When I made it to my room, I began to shake a little, cry more, and I begged for it to stop. My wife is trying to leave. She agreed to come back and give me a little time. Even said she hopes I can do it. We buried our first born in Jan 13 years ago. She never got past it. So every year around this time, she gets emotional and says she doesn't think she loves me, but then we go back to normal. This time, another guy came in and showed her attention. I'll forgive t I've worked with this guy for about three years now, and I knew the first time I saw him that I was attracted. Over time, he became a very dear friend, and we talked about our relationship problems, family, dreams, and so on. There was always flirtation with us, and one day pretty recently, it progressed to making out. We agreed to keep it quiet, and we did, but in the back

I'm trying so hard to maintain the friendship because that's what he wants. We're no longer in the same office, which I thought would help me get over these feelings, but we still talk about work, and he's constantly touching me, so I'm still very drawn to him. He's a hugger and such a sweet guy, so I find myself fantasizing all the time about what could have been and what I am in high school and have been facing anxiety issues lately. Whenever I get close to being in a relationship, some kind of anxiety takes over and keeps me from the relationship. This anxiety causes me depression at times and even makes me want to vomit. While a semi-relationship should be joyous, for me, it,Äôs an emotional nightmare I can,Äôt get to the bottom of

While I,Äôm not quite ready to be in one anyway, I want to get to the bottom of this for a brighter future in which I can be in one. I don,Äôt take medications and have no desire to, I have read forums, and I,Äöve talked about the issue with my sister who has faced similar problems. It has been going on more often lately, but not all the time. It has been starting to affect my driving, among other things.
My fianc,Öe suffers from severe anxiety and depression. She has had it most of her life. Her anxiety in public places is the worst. It gets to points where she can't breathe or move. Sometimes, she won't even go to the restroom, so she will hold in her pee until her stomach hurts or she pees herself. She curls up in corners at the mall and has panic attacks. She won't eat c

Some people have recommended medication, but I believe it's just going to cover up her illness and not solve it. I don't want my fianc,Öe pumped with drugs. I believe a psychiatric service dog would be the best bet for her. When we first met my poodle, it would calm her down a lot. She took the dog out every time we went out, and she seemed much calmer and happier. I have lately been having lots of anxiety and self-loathing about the fact that I am a young adult virgin girl who has never had a boyfriend before. It seems like everyone my age has already had boyfriends by now or are not virgins anymore, and I just had my first kiss five months ago. I,Äôm worried that, at this rate, I won,Äôt have a boyfriend for a very long time. The probl

Most people are surprised when they find out that I am a virgin or never had a boyfriend because people think I am really good looking. I am tall. I play lots of sports, and I get excellent grades in school. I am in my first year of university right now, and no guys have approached me to go out on a date or showed any interest. It bothers me. Most of the people in my family h I have an ex-boyfriend who just lies about everything. He is super lazy. He lies to everyone that he has a good job, builds trust, and then start borrowing money,Äand large amounts too. It has come to the point where he has gone through several group of friends. He is leaving a trail behind full of friends in debt because he would put on a sob story, borrow money, then di

Although he has this habit of lying compulsively and spending money, he seems to be a good person. He'll always give a homeless person all his change no matter what. My brother has epilepsy and is really antisocial,Ämy ex-boyfriend makes an actual effort to socialize with my brother. He takes him out to the movies and plays video games with him. He drives me to sc About two and a half months ago, I met a woman on a dating site. We went out on two dates, and then despite her original plans on how to pace and conduct the relationship, I ended up at her house on a the Friday night one week after our first date. We respectfully tried not to have sex, but after hours of trying to resist each other, we gave in and we had sex. After that, I

A few days later, she tells me how much she,Äôs missing me and ,Äölet,Äôs get together for lunch,Äü or something like that. Then about two weeks later, we finally get together one night and we were so hot for each other (in love, not just sex), but she confessed that the reason for the sudden distance was that the father of her very young child told her he wants to get be An organization admitted to implanting thoughts in my head with technologies. The study was to implant a fantasy other people are having, but to me, it's a nightmare. I lost my kids, my job, and all that. I was an unwilling participant. I no longer trust a therapist. I'm too afraid to go under hypnosis or anything.
I'm an early 20 something year-old virgin, and my boyfriend is in his early 20s with kids. He's cheated on me twice: once in the beginning and then four months ago. He wasn't use to dating a virgin and broke up with me three times because he wasn't sure. We both work at the same job (where we met) and it,Äôs with the girl that works with us. I've been trying to get over

How do I gain confidence? Should I let him go? If I let him go, I don't want to be sad about it being that we work together. I try to tell myself I'm beautiful every day, and I think I am a pretty attractive female with a great personality, but I don't like the fact that she works there.
I've been with my husband for eight years now. We have split twice before, and the first time was because he cheated. I took him back months later, and he really tried making it up to me by making a lot of changes. However, we continued to have issues because of my lack of trust. My insecurities and trust issues lead to physical abuse, which lead to us separating again

The baby was a few months old, and he confessed to me about his secret relationship with her. He told me how he could never stop talking to her and how, during our issues, she has been and is the only women he's gone behind my back with (but on a friendship level because she's miles away). He confessed how he fought feelings for her and feels like he's possibly in

I'm of course hurt and in shock. I feel like I have to make a decision on whether I want to allow it and deal with having to share him or walk away. Both of these decisions are really hard to make because I feel like whether I stay or go, my heart will still be torn apart. I have to make a decision quick because she will be flying out sooner than I thought.
From the moment I wake up, I hear what I think is my voice in my head. Even now, I hear it saying every word I,Äôm thinking. When I lay down to sleep, I think of weird and crazy things, and the voice will never stop talking. I don,Äôt know if it,Äôs me thinking. It never stops. I,Äöll lay in my bed for hours just thinking about weird stuff. I should mention that I talk to myself a I'm a female freshman in high school, and this question is for my male best friend. At the start of freshman year, we dated for about a week before his parents ended it because they said he is too young to date. He has been dating a really sweet senior girl for a month or two. I have nothing against her except for the fact that she has Tim's heart. He is convinced that they i Lately, Tim had been expressing concern about what is going to happen when Sally leaves for college at the end of term this year. He's been asking me to help him with Sally and what girls like to show her how much he loves her. But he's also been thinking about breaking up with her just so they won't have to deal with it when she leaves. He seems really torn up about

He knows that I still crush on him. He doesn't rub it in my face. He's a good guy, but I want to actually help him out and recover before we think about maybe another relationship between us. How do I do that when the time comes? How do I support him and show him that I'm here without wanting to hook up? How do I make him feel better? He is convinced he's never gc I'm a young adult woman, and I have trouble finding my true identity being at home. This all started when I had a boyfriend about 10 months ago. My boyfriend and I were dating for a couple months and decided to get in to sexual acts. At the time, I was pretty religious, but I let this happen. I don't know why. I felt kind of guilty but mostly because I know my parents wouldn

One day, my parents found out I did this stuff with him because my dad read my messages. As soon as my dad found this out, he told my mom. They were both aggravated. They told me he was just a boy that wanted to get inside my pants. They said he wanted me for sex and he's not a Christian. I took their advice and broke up with him. Once we broke up for about a I've been struggling with it for a test and I'm starting to believe it's something mental. What could it be?
My husband has had issues with alcohol addiction in the past (he'd never admit to this). A while back (3 years ago), I asked him to stop drinking so much, and he agreed. I caught him one night drinking behind my back. I confronted him and he lied, but I told him I knew he was lying because I counted the beers in the fridge and four of them were missing. He admitted and

The other night, I counted the beers in the fridge just to see if some were missing. It took a couple of days, but tonight, I discovered a few were missing along with a shot of vodka. He was passed out on the couch when I decided to wake him up and confront him (poor timing, but I couldn't wait). I asked him if he'd come to bed with me (when he drinks, he snores and I ca

I'm not sure if I'm overreacting or not. I just feel like I'm so honest with him about everything, and I expect the same honesty. He is a good husband in every other regard.
I need answers to my anger, possessiveness, and urges.

I am angry all the time. I push people away so much that I actually blow up on people now because they ask me how my day is or was. I have a possessiveness to someone who is not even mine. I have these urges to hurt someone really bad. I want to see them beg for me to stop hurting. I want to hear their agonizing pained-filled voices. What is wrong with me?

Me and the father of my child have been dating for a year. We had a big argument and at first he wanted to work it out. But with time he started asking others and they told him to leave me. Now he wants me to wait on him to mature. He wants to talk to other people. Then come back in four years. He doesn't want to deal with me while I'm pregnant. He doesn't take me to the doctor or anything. I feel alone. How do I handle this situation? such as not enough sleep I have a relative who is in his twenties. He was in a drug rehabilitation program and got kicked out for using drugs again. No one informed family that he was using drugs again. He subsequently overdosed and was found dead. Is their accountability of counselors, therapists or the halfway house for not reporting that he had relapsed? Is there a legal case for failing to report? I feel like every time I do something someone asks me to, I never fully meet what they want. I feel that when I finish it, they always think that they should have picked someone else to do it. I feel like they just want nothing to do with me. I have PTSD from childhood events and other traumas as an adult. I have panic attacks, nightmares, anger, and at times depression. I feel like I'm always on the edge or just apathetic. Can I fix this by myself? I feel like I was born in the wrong body I feel like I should be a girl not a boy Ever since I was young, I have wanted to be a girl. I felt like what I was wasn't me. I want to know what I can do about it. My family is against transgender people and don't want anything to do with them. I want to be a girl. I feel as if I'll be happy then. I don't look in mirrors, and I don't like my reflection. Recently, I have been taking things to help even though they've hurt me and my adult daughter just do not get along. She's very belittling to me when I don't agree with her. It's almost like she scolds me. We get into all out war. She's said I don't support her in what she does and that I've never loved her. She calls me horrible names, and she pushes my buttons to the point I call her names. I terminated my counseling relationship with a social worker several years ago. I am now realizing that I would like to begin counseling again. The social worker's voicemail message says that he returns calls in 24 hours, but he hasn't called me back. I called him on the weekend and made it clear that I want him to call me back. Can he just ignore me? I always feel the need to impress people, whether it's my family, the people at school, or just random people. I know that no matter what I do or how I change, there will always be some people who hate me. Why do I feel this way? I have been having a lot of nightmares where I am being killed in different ways. I either wake up in a panic or just crying and sweating. It has made me terrified of falling asleep and is now affecting my daily life too. Can I make the nightmares stop? Is this something I should be worried about? Should I do something about it? I recently lost a friend to suicide. I'm smoking marijuana and drinking more to cope with it. How can I handle this better? I'm transgender, I know I am, but I've only told a few friends. I know I can't tell my family because of previous conversations we've had. They just wouldn't accept it. My gender dysphoria is getting really difficult to deal with on my own. I need some strategies for dealing with it. What should I do? I feel really uncomfortable when I have people's attention. It makes me not want to talk in public or answer questions in class. Can I get over this social anxiety? I hate everything I see in the mirror. I don't like being in pictures and always scribble out my face. It's stressing me out. I don't trust my parents enough to tell them and I don't know what to do. I've felt this way for two years. I feel so much better now than I did when it started, but it is still there in the back of my mind at all times. I have no friends, no hobbies, and no interest in anything. I get annoyed with everything and everyone. I am always tired, I can sleep 8 hrs or 12 hrs and I'm still tired. I don't know what to do. Is this normal? I've been in an on and off relationship with a this man for almost 3 years. Even though I care about him, he continues to hurt me. He and his wife were separated when we met. Now he's going through a really difficult divorce from her and is taking it really hard. I want to end this relationship, but I don't feel like I can. How can I let go? My mother has Alzheimer's and she has become so nasty and mean to everyone and she always asks for unrealistic, silly or meaningless items. I get so frustrated and angry, but then I feel guilty because I know it probably isn't her fault. How can I cope with feeling like this? My mother has Alzheimer's and I can see that she has lost some of her intellectual abilities. Even though I know this disease is not her fault, I'm still finding it difficult to separate my own feelings of disappointment and frustration when my mom seems to ignore my opinions and wishes, and seems She was diagnosed a type one diabetic two years ago and had a very tough time dealing with it. She has an attachment issue also; her mother just moved to a much nicer home, and she gets angry and demands to go back to her prior home. We do not understand what is going on, and it is driving us crazy. A year ago, the love of my life left me and never looked back. Our son was two months old at the time and it broke my heart. I miss her so much and can't seem to get over being so heartbroken. My wife and I got separated because I asked about her contact with a male friend of hers. The next day, she kicked me out. She let me move back two days later. Yesterday, she said she wanted a divorce then quickly changed her mind. I asked if the other guy was a factor, but she says it's not my business. Sometime when small thing happen, like losing a comb, I get furious. I even start throwing things. Do I have a problem? My boyfriend and I have been arguing every night about the same thing. He also tells me that if I go visit my mother out of state he will be gone when I get back. He and my mother do not get along. What should I do? After he got home from the hospital he was angry, then for a time wonderful. Now he is depressed and hopeless again. How do therapists classify the type of personality their clients have? What characteristics do they look at to decide what type of personality the client has? I've read about this online, but I'd like to understand this from a therapist's point of view. My boyfriend and I have a toxic relationship due to his emotional and verbal abuse but he makes me feel like I could never find someone better, and that I can't be happy without him. How do I get away from this relationship? I empathize so much, even with characters on tv or in video games, that I actually feel physical pain. This has made life difficult to say the least. I believe I have an actual case of something called hyper empathy disorder. But since it's such a new disorder I can't find any information about it. Could this be what is going on with me? I just took a job that requires me to travel far away from home. My family and I really need this job. People keep telling me I have "anxiety" and I'm terrified of having an anxiety attack on the road. This is all new to me. What can I do? I'm a female in my mid 20s. Lately I tend to over drink and I've become a very angry drunk. In the past, I have even cheated on my boyfriend while I was under the influence of alcohol. But now, even if I don't do anything wrong and don't embarrass myself, I still feel really guilty after a night of drinking. I don't understand why I'm feeling this way. Does this mean I have a problem? On the first day of school I wore a bra that was too big so that it would look like I had bigger boobs. I did that the whole school year and my parents never found out. But now I can never hang out with my friends at my house or invite them over because it would be around my parents and my friends would see there is nothing there on my chest. How do I fix this? I was with my friends fishing by a pond. I found a frog and stabbed it with my friend's knife. I'm not sure why I did it. My friends saw me do it and were shocked and got really mad at me. Now if someone brings it up I get really upset and panicked. I don't know why I feel like this. Does this mean there is something wrong with me? Over a year ago I had a female friend. She turned out to be kind of crazy so I decided to stop talking to her. When she would call me I wouldn't answer the phone. This made my girlfriend really suspicious. She would ask me why I wouldn't ever answer that phone number. I told my girlfriend that I don't want to be friends with that other woman, but I don't think she believes I have been married for 11 years. Within the past 2 years we have drifted far apart. We coexist together but there is very little personal interest in each other. I often feel that my husband has "friends" at work that he is more emotionally invested in than me. I feel very alone and just uncared for. Is there anything I can do to feel reconnected? I've been with my partner for 4 years. She's given me no reason not to trust her. But lately I've been overreacting a lot when she's just doing normal things. I think it's triggering my bad past relationships. How can I get rid of these insecurities and be more trusting with her? I'm a teenager and I get these really intense mood swings. My mood will be really high and I'll think of something that I want to do. When I start to make it happen I get irritated by other people if they intervene. Then if the thing I wanted to do doesn't work out, I have these tendencies to blame other people for it not working out. Can you explain what's going on?
--

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

subreddit	text
anxiety	I man the front desk and my title is HR Customer Service Representative. About 50% of my job is spent onboarding new hires. Maybe 10% is clerical/paperwork. The rest is dealing with people who walk in and need help with benefits, retirement, etc. Although I am required to know the basics of our benefits plans and how the re anxiety	More specifically, for example, I live with roommates and I can't remember the last time I has been quiet in the apartment. There's never a moment where it is completely silent and I know it's anxiety and sensory overload, but gosh does it make me angry. My roommates talk CONSTANTLY and they keep me from being able to s anxiety	I have a lot of self esteem. I value myself. I believe I'm smart, have a good personality and am attractive. Some days though (perhaps most), I will still get anxiety. I'll start to talk to some people and for no reason at all feel my heart rate go up and start to overthink the things I say, which then leads to me coming off as awkward. T anxiety	If I go to an interview for example, I'll know that I'm a good candidate, I'll know that if I don't get it there will always be other opportunities and it's no big deal. Yet I still get nervous because it's something that I want, I want that employer to like me. If I go to an interview with no expectations at all, not even wanting the job (I've done anxiety	Like sleep would never be a simple thing for me. So recently, I accidentally fell asleep at 8pm and I found myself awake around 4am. I immediately felt like I had screwed myself. My instinct was to try to go back to sleep but I decided, for whatever reason, not to. What I discovered was amazing.
anxiety	Discovering LimeWire was like breathing in fresh mountain air in the early hours of the morning while there is dew glazed over the leaves on the trees and surrounding grass. I felt a real connection with Post-Hardcore/ Alternative. During this time I knew of Anxiety, but I didn't know OF it. In other words, I considered it a personali anxiety	Manageable enough to come home on weekends and work at the job I loved, while driving back to school Sunday nights for the upcoming school week. I was confident in myself that I would be able to balance my newly found work-school life. The apartment I signed a year lease on, which ironically ends this month, was about a anxiety	""When thinking about life, remember this: No amount of guilt can solve the past, and no amount of anxiety can change the future. "" This is a quote I stumbled upon a few years ago that still sticks with me to this very day. At face value it presents the idea that anxiety is fueled by the very nature of what it's foundation is based on anxiety	I have a vague fear that I get when I'm "alone", or when such a situation is coming up. I put it in quotes as it is really when my wife is not going to be around. This weekend my wife and oldest daughter went away early saturday got back mid day sunday. I was home with my youngest. I had some mild fear about it leading up to it.
anxiety	Mushrooms, LSD, and DMT have been the most effective means for me to solve my anxiety. If you choose to consume these drugs however, please be aware that these are powerful psychoactive substances that can have repercussions on your mental well being. Physically, they are incredibly safe. Personally, they allowed me anxiety	If it is negative, don't reject the thought. Follow the thought as far as your mind wants to, and move on when you notice another thought arise. Again, this creates a barrier between you and your mind. * Flow: Have you ever played a game where you are completely in the moment? Maybe the ball was just thrown to you, and your anxiety	You have mental noise: These are thoughts that arise spontaneously and we have no control over. For some people these are very negative. Behind this mental noise we have the observer however, this is you. When you are engaged in a activity that creates flow, your mental noise is reduced, and the observer has complete coi anxiety	Not sure the best way to describe it but for the last week and a half I have had to be social and around people every day except for a couple of hours each evening and it is KILLING ME. IÄm on edge constantly because I need a break to just start over. And now IÄm on the way to a 3 day work seminar in another country and stress	Should I stick around and save up my money? I mean college A and C are pretty good choices right? A is almost free and I could make the best of it, and C I could always figure things out my freshman year and then commute, and we could still see each other. Do you think we see each other too much? Should I limit my time wi anxiety	But I just canÄt do what I need to do because I am terrified that I am doing the ÄwrongÄ thing, regardless of what decision I make. But the current situation (doing nothing) is extremely detrimental as well. I feel like a total loser and I am deeply ashamed of this anxiety, though I know that it is nothing to be ashamed of. IÄm anxiety	Sorry for the essay, poor grammar and punctuation. Thursday night. I asked a friend what they were up to tonight by text and instantly got a phone call after. Now usually IÄd ignore their called calls due to the worry of having an awkward phone conversation. This time I answer and we agree for them to come over.
anxiety	It started with a panic attack that led to hypertension. I felt my heart pounding with shortness of breath. I felt dizzy, and I thought I was having a heart attack, this was the first time I ever experienced this. I thought I was going to die. I went to the ER.
anxiety	That's why I've come to you guys. - If the formatting is weird, it's because it's midnight and I've edited this damn thing so many times I want to cut off my own hands so I can't torture myself with editing it any more. It's probably garbled af. Yes, I did proofread it, but I can't guarantee quality because it's midnight lmao. I'm super tire anxiety	​ I'm sorry if this isn't appropriate for the thread. I don't really know if it's appropriate anywhere. I guess that's the point? "Am I normal or am I fucked up?"
anxiety	To help us transition smoothly, please place all Thanksgiving-related anxieties in this thread. Any feedback is welcome - please reply directly to the sticky comment with your thoughts. If all goes well, we hope to expand this idea to the December holiday season and beyond. Happy Thanksgiving in advance from the ri Anxiety Mo anxiety	####Hello everyone!, We hope you've begun defrosting your turkeys in preparation for a delicious meal. As the holiday season begins to ramp up, we've decided to try a new approach to handling the influx of Thanksgiving-related posts we normally receive every year. We're excited to be launching a Thanksgiving MegaThread, a anxiety	Wondering if anyone has this same problem and if anyone has found a way of overcoming it. Regardless of who messages me (family, friends, strangers) I avoid opening the message (text message, email, social media message, calls, voicemails) and avoid replying until hours later or even the next day. I donÄt know why I do anxiety	I know this is a common problem that many people have but I don't know what to do. I don't sleep at all on sunday nights and it fucks up my whole week. Im scared of the sadness! I will feel as soon as I wake up, im scared of having to repeat the same day over and over until Friday, im scared of waking up in a panic attack, im scar anxiety	Okay this is driving totally insane and I can't function normally because of it, I have had intrusive thoughts basically for as long as I can remember, though now they are pushing me closer and closer to insanity. I am only focusing on one disturbing thought now which I really only need serious and helpful answers for. To start off, I anxiety	How can I be a good boyfriend in this situation? I don't think she should Ägive up having friends.Ä and I think she should hold on to the ones who suffer from similar issues and understand (and some of them are also great, kind people that she should hold on to regardless). I think spending time with other people than me is g anxiety	I stopped eating and stopped sleeping... I eventually ended up in A&E after telling my family I intended to kill my self. I'd already been self harming and pulling out my hair from the stress. I lost a stone and a half in weight in a month. I was given sleeping pills as I had not had the rest to let my brain consider recovery, and I was gi anxiety	Btw, I am only an exec.... I am afraid to have a gap in my CV, but for once in my life I want not to worry for a bit. Of course, during the next period, I will apply to jobs but I don't want to rush and take the first offer. Anyhow, have you ever experienced something like this? What did you do to overcome it?
anxiety	I've never been medically diagnosed with anxiety, and I know that I would need to see a professional to officially determine if I really had anxiety, but sometimes I relate to symptoms of anxiety I see online and wonder if I should be concerned. Some things that have led me to think I may have anxiety: I've been performing on stag anxiety	I keep it together at work and hear I'm doing great, but I'm always on the edge of falling apart. I've been through tough adjustments before which always suck, but this is hitting me differently, maybe because it's high level/can't and don't want to quit. (But kinda want to win the lotto so I could quit). I want to get through this transi anxiety	Last night one firmred and I were texting about something unrelated and B was brought up. I basically told her that I have distanced myself from B because of XYZ. She said she understands but B has been really nice lately and has been supportive of her pregnancy and has bought the baby tons of stuff... I donÄt know why but anxiety	Best friend knows I have anxiety and I am always asking her if she's mad at me. Well, yesterday she asked if I wanted to go to the beach next weekend. I said yes, and then today I told her I couldn't because I was supposed to watch my sister's kids. She wants to know why I don't take them with us. It's a two hour drive, and I ree anxiety	This is one if the most perplexing symptoms I get when I'm in high anxiety or panic mode. It's the only time I can think of as yawning as being stressful. I have a lot of fatigue anxiety. The more anxious I get, the more fatigued, which makes me anxious. I've almost fallen asleep after calming down and then I have a big yawn and t anxiety	I tried explaining this to her, but she said I should have redone it and she would never have turned something like that into her boss. When she asked me to work on it, she asked for information. Not a full spreadsheet of detailed numbers or anything. During this meeting, I got very anxious, told her I was anxious, and actually sta anxiety	My university holiday is over in a week. I've been submitting resumes online for 3 months and haven't gotten a single response. It's understandable since I'm applying for pharmacy assistance job which is highly competitive. I've been reading "Rejection Proof" by Jia Jiang where the author tries to get rejected once a day and vlog anxiety	However, my mind is set on the possibility of diabetes or MS as an explanation for my symptoms. My depersonalization has come back strong and I've felt very tired recently and I don't know what is symptoms are causing/caused by other ones. I've been anxious this whole semester to a high degree but I've never felt symptoms anxiety	I struggle to know what it is I should do most of the time... during this anticipatory stage. If my anxiety oscillated between normal followed by panic, I wouldnÄt feel so confused and constantly question what I should be doing right now. There arenÄt any damn patterns. Further, it seems like most of the anxiety coping techniqu anxiety	Every once in a while I get the concept of death stuck in my mind. Thinking IÄm not going to be here anymore, thinking my parents wonÄt be here, thinking whatÄs going to happen after I die. Just thinking about how we all are mortal. That gives me such bad anxiety I disassociate and I try to go back to normal. I canÄt. I Ä anxiety	IÄve truly been inspired to be more generous with complements and lifting others up. IÄd never know what affect it may have on someone! ■üüü it could make their day. Also, it gets me outside of my own head. Just wanted to share my positive experience and possibly inspire someone to share kind words throughout the day.
anxiety	SheÄs in play therapy once a week but havenÄt seen noticeable change :(We have a worry doll and box, practice being grateful and do cosmic kids yoga, I donÄt force her to do things but her teachers express concerns about her and we were recently told not to continue doing dance because of her non participation and s anxiety	I absolutely get along with this family member, it's just that I'm an introvert and have social anxiety, and I just really like my alone time. I am an anxious mess at even the thought of company! I hope I can pull this off without acting like a bitch or a freak. I've asked my husband to be understanding and not make me feel worse or pu anxiety	I don't get anxious over things that I know won't happen and I don't get anxious in social situations, but I feel like if I stay with my dad, who right now especially needs someone to be with him, I'll be thrown into an inescapable pit of despair because all I'll do is worry about him. But if I leave, I'll be the loneliest person on the planet, anxiety	This question is not meant to be disrespectful in any way, shape, or form to people who 1) are actually diagnosed autistic, or 2) are in no way autistic, but still suffer from severe social anxieties. This is just about my experience and people who may relate. So, throughout my life, I sometimes struggled with the feeling that there is anxiety	Hey guys, how are you? So, I've been diagnosed with anxiety disorder for 6 years now, though I know I've had it for more than ten years. I just didn't know it was an anxiety issue. I'm a 30 years old straight dude who started struggling with anxiety when I started to think I was gay (now I know this thing is called HOCD, but at the I anxiety	IÄm asking now because my partner told me to eat a chicken schnitzel Parma instead of my ham and cheese sandwich. I freaked out. I almost had a full-on fight with him because I didnÄt want to. Felt like I couldnÄt. I almost broke down into tears.
anxiety	I was so sure that tattooing was the career I wanted to get into but after completing the apprenticeship and even working as a tattoo artist AND piercer for about a year, I find myself still fucking miserable. Maybe even worse than before. The first tattoo shop I worked for was great but I had to move and I struggled finding another stress	I am called back as a few secondary characters in a play with plenty leads and these character have one line each and sometimes no lines at all so IÄm basically ensembel again. To top that off I got called back as the same four characters that like 13 girls are going to compete for and one of them is a new girl in school that thi anxiety	IÄm asking yall how can I live life properly? Immediately after I threw up in year 2, I never feared it happening again. I admit when this happened I was in tears, and same in year 3- I was crying next to my mum by the toilet but it was over quick and again- I was eating chocolate again the day after. But now, nausae? Stop eatin anxiety	I'm sorry if I didn't post this in the right place and such, it'd be really comforting if someone had this as well and told me about it. edit: another way to describe it may be a million thoughts at once. It's really irritable. It's not like I'm thinking "what if" as I have seen many people describe, it's just random thoughts, imagine 100 TV chann
anxiety	My mood has been worse because itÄs so fucking hot in the uk and I feel sticky and gross 24/7 unless IÄm in the shower. Maybe dehydration is the reason behind my depressed anxious feeling? I really thought the meds were helping me before this so I donÄt want to give up on them.... but I donÄt know what to expect rig anxiety	This has only started in the last few days. My mood has been worse because itÄs so fucking hot in the uk and I feel sticky and gross 24/7 unless IÄm in the shower. Maybe dehydration is the reason behind my depressed anxious feeling? I really thought the meds were helping me before this so I donÄt want to give up on the anxiety	But Kim Jong Un has already fired more missile than his dad and grandpa combined. How worried do I need to be on the East Coast of the USA? I'm trying to calm down with breathing exercises and busting my mind with Netflix. It's helping a bit, but I'm really on edge. I've got an appointment with my doctor next week, so I'm ho anxiety	This may be a ridiculous question, but I feel like I go to pee way to many times more than average and it's starting to make me insane. I wanted to get this out of my mind. I think it may be a psychological problem, like an anxiety "symptom". Because when I'm at home for an entire day, it's fine. But when I'm in school or in any oth anxiety	Hey guys. This post is primarily obsession and compulsion orientated. I did want to post in the OCD sr but itÄs pretty quiet in there. IÄm a 19 year old male from the UK and in terms of my anxiety, this has truly been the worst year of my life. My most common obsession theme throughout my life has been to do with my health anxiety	In a day I went from broke and facing a dark, foreclosed home with no utilities to having enough money to totally catch up on all my bills. Then I had an appointment with my psychiatrist and case worker at the clinic I go to. I shamefully told the doctor there that I had been out of control, off meds, binging on alcohol and not followi anxiety	The online therapist who was helping me through by depressive anxiety disorder ghosted on me without furnishing a reason. What's worse is I spent a majority of my waking time in the office and I feel so alone and out of place there. I would love to have somebody I can trust but there's always something. Ugh can't keep doing this anxiety	I'm just so tired of everything. I want my life back, I want to travel and get a degree or just a job. I am coping now because I started drinking heavy. I know it's not the best thing but it keeps me calm for now. I just don't know what to do anymore to be honest. Festival season is starting next week and all my friends are excited to go anxiety	I have tried every basic medicine like Prozac, Zoloft, etc. right now I take 15 of Buspar twice a day, Effexor 150 once, and 30 of Vyvanse twice a day. I canÄt get out of bed or do anything without Vyvanse even though it lasts maybe 5 hours. I can sorta tell a difference from the Effexor, like I donÄt feel as emotional. But I still ex anxiety	Some anxiety may come from other areas such as physical etc. This can help to. Do you think most people in the court would agree that not bullying people because of there looks is good? That people don't deserve discrimination? I do. Well put that on your sheet and you can be more confident in yourself.
anxiety	Read from your sheet and you will be accepted by others effortlessly. This also starts the beginning of you allowing yourself to be yourself. Do you believe strongly about animal rights ? Brilliant that would go down pretty well in the court? Sounds commendable, put it on your sheet and read from it.
anxiety	I feel so overwhelmed, I am excited as hell, and twice as much anxious. Any one else experience this before a big dream job or something?? How did you, if you did , beat out anxiety? ? luckily I haven't had a panic attack because I know how to keep myself at bay... but I am on the edge of my seat 24/7...
anxiety	New to this sub. Here is some background information about myself. ----- I developed anxiety in my freshman year or high school. The traumatizing event happened when I was young, but an event when I was older triggered memories and sensations, and from then on I have dealt with axiety and panic attacks.
anxiety	While presenting today, I had absolutely no flight-or-flight panic even when in a confrontational, adversarial discussion about sports or politics. I've always gotten a little flustered during these types of conversations in the past. I'm even witty at times. Please do give this supplement a try. Best of luck.
anxiety	I have been suffering from anxiety and panic attacks since I was a teenager. I have been to the ER more times than I can count cause I thought I was dying. For the longest time I thought that I was the only person who this was happening to, until I met a girl who was going through it too. It felt good knowing I wasn't alone but I st anxiety	I've heard Xanax is similar except I don't want to risk dying from having some other stuff in if cause I couldn't obtain it legally. What other options do I have? (Just to clarify: I'm at my wif's end. I just need something to get me through certain days. I recognise the risk of addiction and that it's not a long-term fix.)
anxiety	I've been procrastinating on posting this for weeks. I don't post to reddit much, but this is important to me. It's pretty late, so I'll post the tidr at the top in case you want to skip the wall of text. I don't care if you comment without reading everything.
anxiety	I was diagnosed with an anxiety disorder and another mental disorder recently. I did some googling and saw that it seems that people with mental disorders as well as other disabilities are eligible to apply for Disability Cards in my countries. They include certain perks such as being allowed to go to a theme park for free. My aunt anxiety	He was my best buddy in high school and weÄre still really close. And my girlfriend, who goes to school in DC, is home too so I can see her. IÄm grateful for them but wish I had a bigger friend group from home that I was still close to. IÄve loved college, but havenÄt really found a new best friend yet. IÄve still kinda stru anxiety	My best friend of nearly 20 years is dealing with some anxiety around personal issues. SheÄs been remembering some things from her childhood, and, with the help of her therapist, is trying to process and heal. We donÄt live in the same area, and when we got together about a month ago, she filled me in on some of those i anxiety	Has anyone dealt with urinary retention as a side effect of lexapro? I've been taking lexapro for like 2 weeks or so, and in the past week it has become very difficult to pee, even at home (it sometimes takes a lot of pushing, and my bladder never feels like it's truly empty.). And the more I have to go, the harder it is, so I try to go to anxiety	I'm 14 years old going in highschool. I've had anxiety, mostly health anxiety my entire life. But it usually only lasted a day at times and my anxiety only when off it certain, not daily things now I suffer daily and want it gone. I've posted here before but just want to know what you guys think of this, recently someone passed away in anxiety	As I kid, I had been pretty anxious and nervous, but they were negligible. I only got anxious when there was something happening, like giving presentation etc. They did not tamper with my everyday life and I was not concerned with them. But recently, I felt like my anxiety has developed into a new level. I got so damn anxious fo anxiety	So in the past two weeks, IÄve been supporting my dad through some mental health things, IÄve been having trouble at work, my Nanna got diagnosed with Alzheimer,Äs, and to top it off, my boyfriend broke up with me two days ago.I work full time and IÄm also at uni, which IÄm falling behind in. Whatever I do, I canno stress I doubt and second guess myself a lot. I hesitate and fear picking up the phone. Fear coming off as too aggressive or too pushy or not sending the right person and Err On the side of not being aggressive enough. IÃm afraid to take control as I fear ruining relationships etc. Last year i still did surprisingly well despite all this and anxiety Hey everyone. Been subbed for a long time and a lot of you guys helped me realize a few things so I thought I can try to help back. IÃve been dealing with anxiety/depression for a long time and never really done anything to deal with it. (Family didnÃt really believe in that kind of stuff back in the day) I always believed that I h anxiety It is having a major strain on our relationship as he obviously wants to be involved but essentially I am unloading all my worry onto him. I am really unsure how to move forwards from here. If I think I am being irrational and hold in my anxiety, he says I am not communicating with him about it. If I open up and tell him, I feel like I a anxiety ÃTake all your problems and rip Ãem apart... carry them off in a shopping cart... one thing you shouldÃve known from the start... your problems in hand are lighter than at heart. Ã The things that separate us from taxonomically lower lifeforms are our abilities to record and rationalize information. So do just that: record i anxiety Am I mentally ill? I want to kill myself but I'm to scared to even do that. I'm supposed to be starting college in the fall but I don't think that'll work out well. This entire post is probably gibberish but I haven't slept in almost 2 days and I can't think straight. I don't know what to do but I can't keep doing this.

anxiety So something happened over 3 years ago that caused me a tremendous amount of anxiety, and over the past few months the anxiety surrounding that event has come back? It doesn't make sense, I can't rationalize it either. This time around it's not as intense as it was then but I'm definitely experiencing the same thoughts, sam anxiety Every single day I think about what happened, and it scares me to this very day. My hands go numb all the time with loss of sensation and my muscles are tense 24/7 I have a hard time believing if's anxiety but it most likely is because I've never had panic attacks before that incident. I've been on one antidepressant (Zoloft) for 3 anxiety I have no clue. I meditate twice daily, jog every morning, eat very healthy, absolutely love my life and am following my passion. Yet IÃm struck with random physical anxiety all the time. No negative thoughts or anything like that, itÃs purely physical. A very uncomfortable feeling in my chest.

anxiety Just wanted to share with you all - yesterday I flew to Germany from England for a full day work meeting today. I am now waiting at the gate to fly home. 9 weeks ago I had a panic attack thinking about traveling across England on the train to see my sister for Christmas (my amazing boyfriend drove me over and then came to pic anxiety Still had moments of anxiety but I got through them. We can do it guys! It's so tough and I know I'll have bad days but hoping that the good days outweigh them. Completely shattered now though. Could sleep a million years.

anxiety So im feeling a bit defeated; I finally went to my dr at the beginning of last month about my PPD and anxiety, also my workplace is very stressful and my marriage feels like it's crumbling because we are always arguing... my dr prescribed me Zoloft, I really wish now I had journaled how it made me feel, but thinking back, I had so stress I get so stressed at work. I feel like women get all the preferential treatment. Also, the few women who are in charge just spend their time microi-managing the men while letting the other females just slide by doing minimal work. I don't get it. It causes me huge stress because I feel like im living in an unfair world and I don't know anxiety I have just recently got on anxiety medication again because itÃs been going downhill recently (my boss knows this, we have more of a friendship than boss/employee relationship) I really just want to up and quit because I make shit money and I feel myself declining but I also know once I pass over this rough patch IÃll need anxiety My problem is most of these articles mention getting your friend professional help, but he's already seeing a psych and therapist. The other thing frequently suggested is to gently nudge them to do things. This is a problem currently though because of the physical distance between us and their lack of a phone currently. Has anyc anxiety So. I have been planning my birthday party for over a month, I bought myself a beautiful dress, I am excited to do my hair and makeup and just live my best life. I moved to NYC 3 years ago and don't really have a lot of friends. I met a group of people in august and they have become my close friends. Of the 10 people I invited h anxiety An hour ago I felt like I was having stroke like symptoms, but they passed so maybe it was a panic attack. Now I'm just very lightheaded. I am hoping when I get my ultrasound and my work issue is resolved (both next week), all this will pass and I can chalk it up to anxiety...but I'm not sure and am terrified. Has anyone with anxie anxiety -when talking to someone I get out of breath easily while talking (newest one) -can't sit properly. I have to sit in a weird position or else its really uncomfortable- easily startled (for example, im sitting in my room, watching youtube and all of a sudden someone opens the door and I get startled) in general im really not a easy to sca stress It's really just standard-issue big corporation stuff. My direct manager slaps together the scheduling for our dept. at the last minute because she's overworked, and she's overworked because it's cheaper to make her do enough work for 2/3 people than to just open up an assistant position. I'm not getting enough sleep. I'm going c anxiety That was about 7 hours ago. Normally, I do not get much effect from tea because I only ever drink half a cup as I don't like it that much. However, I have been feeling jittery all day and my heart periodically feels as though it is racing. I have that adrenalized and uneasy feeling that I always get with caffeine. It wasn't really bother anxiety I tried everything at work, from doing meditation, office yoga, to getting a board to keep track of my tasks. Everyday seemed overwhelming, and I slowly started dreading my patient appointments and sometimes rushed through them because I could sense a panic attack coming on. To make matters worse, my supervisor is not th anxiety Well maybe afraid isn't the best word, but it's not far off. I'm not worried they can physically harm me or anything, nor do I even hate kids, most kids I actually like, but certain kids, like uncle's girlfriend's one kids, make me uncomfortable and make my anxiety go off badly. He's like 6 or something like that, but he is disrespectful to anxiety She referred me to a dermatologist who was known to treat white gay guys and other asian gay guys with genital warts. That's how gossipy these doctors can be. I went to this new dermatologist and showed her my growths. She then showed me pictures of genital warts from her textbook. They looked like cauliflowers.

anxiety They looked nothing like my growths. She told me I was misdiagnosed. I didn't have an std. I had sebaceous epidermal cysts. Had I never had awful sex, then I would have never thought the growths on my scrotum were stds.

anxiety I always have to touch my face and trace my fingers along my body because it's so odd to know that I am real. That I am alive. I often now sit and think about what I am made of. How behind my skin is a complex make up of organs that keep my unique body and overly aware mind alive. I think how inside my skull is an organ tha anxiety Switching my major to something IÃd actually enjoy would add in years to my education and everyone would be like ÃWow!t you need to just commit and finish it because of the money youÃve paid and time etc.Ã because itÃs not like IÃm 22 anymore or whatever. But I dream of a career involved in science, something m anxiety As a high school junior, I'm always severely depressed whenever I make poor grades on something to the extent I'm always on the verge of crying. Every time this happens, I always feel like my future is bleak and hopeless, my rank is gonna drop like hell, and I'm worthless compared to the other people who do better than me. I'

anxiety I don't remember always being like this, but over the last two years or so I have had a few tumultuous friendships/dating connections with people (I make deep connections quickly, or seemingly deep anyways with lots of self disclosure and vice versa) and after things don't work out I feel like I am lost and won't be able to cope or anxiety I recovered somewhat after a few hours but somethings changed now; I cant be alone without constantly feeling like Im on the verge of another attack. When my fiance is home Im perfectly fine, but as soon as she leaves for work (I work from home) I start to feel terrified, my feet and hands start sweating. I feel like Im about to be anxiety It's hard for me to even type this, but today I dropped my classes after only a week of school. I've been in school for a while, just got my associate's degree in liberal arts at a community college and was planning on going to university for an English degree. I will note that the majority of my classes were online as I can't focus in a anxiety I constantly cancel plans on friends because sometimes going out is just too much. I recently heard about a friend of a friend who passed away at 25 from breast cancer and instead of empathy or sympathy, all I could feel was terrified fear that I would get diagnosed with the same cancer that she had. That was all I could think at anxiety Exercise has helped in the past with my anxiety but since I have been having my recent dealings of anxiety I have been finding it hard to get active. A triggering factor of my anxiety over the last few weeks has been an increased heart rate. Sometimes if I stand up too fast/run up the stairs my heart starts pounding and then my anxiety I've read that quality sleep, regular exercise, and fish oil all can help. Does that sound right? What are the best, non-pharma methods to help resolve anxiety? What about meditation (and is there a suggested starting point)? While I'm probably genetically more prone to anxiety, is it that I've let my body down somehow?

anxiety And it only took me three doctors telling me this over the span of 10+ years for me to believe it. Given all the crazy symptoms I've had, and that I really trust and like my current doc, I'm willing to believe it. So here I am looking at a bottle of Escitalopram (5mg, Lexapro generic) thinking "so... it's come to this". I've always been a st anxiety It was hard to function I didn't used to be like this though.  Is there a road back to normalcy? * I want my life back. I guess I'll start doping myself up with Escitalopram for now, but I'd rather it not become a crutch.

anxiety IÃm leaving for the airport right now and IÃm so fucking scared. IÃve been nauseous all day and already puked like 4 times even though I havenÃt had anything to eat since yesterday. I will have to check my bags in and talk to the attendant and then go through security without holding up the queue. And then sit inches av anxiety Tomorrow I bury my best friend who tragically passed away at the age of 25. I'm heartbroken and I will be speaking at his funeral. I am happy with the speech but I am nervous, petrified to mess up. He was an incredible guy and I want to send him off well, justify what he meant to me. my ex who broke up with me 2 months ago h anxiety Hi, everyone! Just a warning, kind of a long story, as you can probably tell from the paragraph. So my relationship with anxiety has always been a thing, at least from what I remember from childhood (undiagnosed OCD). But recently my anxiety has gotten worse, no thanks to unfortunate events over the past few years involving ;

anxiety I worry that if I sit around too often, I will develop blood clots and die. Anything to do with death really. On top of that, I have been developing intrusive thoughts. But the worst part is that last week I was laying in bed and randomly became afraid that I was going to lose my sense of reality and start hallucinating. I have never hallu stress He had the sweetest voice and only the kindest heart. I had started talking to him for a month or so, by then we had gotten to know one another well. He had told me a little about his past as I slowly opened up about mine, sometimes I wouldn't even talk but I'd still sit in his office and he'd make every gesture. Sometimes we wou stress I noticed that towards the end of my stay at the school he had grown protective, maybe flirty. We were constantly talking, he would pull me out of classes. I hardly attended, to talk. He would cut someone's counseling session short to see me sooner. If any other authority figure tried to talk to me he was quickly my shadow. He hai stress We had 2 classes together, so we spent a few hours together most days working through problem sets. This next semester, I won't even have that. I'll probably be in more isolation this time around. Any tips are appreciated. Thanks!

anxiety I developed some health problems with my stomach around September of last year and had to be hospitalized, had very high wbc, did a cat scan and so on. They let me go with some antibiotics and no answer about what was wrong with me. This, I guess, left me feeling very nervous, the next time I was researching my pains ar anxiety Just a simple "seen" status can get me into a deep downward spiral of anxiety that suppresses my hunger, takes away my will to do anything, makes me nauseous, takes away my sleep. As soon as the person texts back, I immediately feel okay. I've had relationships with girls that I've felt this way. Both times it was long term an anxiety I had a pretty creepy experience almost a week ago. I've never had a hallucination like that. So disconnected and vivid and super weird. I was anxious because I was in a building filled with people. Then all of a sudden I hallucinated where I was in a dark room all by myself.

anxiety They've since tried to apologise for their behaviour, and other friends have tried to encourage me to forgive them and reconnect with them. But I refuse to. I have some amazing people in my life who far more deserve my attention. I now realise these people were a huge source of some of my anxiety and cutting them off has gon anxiety I went to the ER recently because it reached 100 bpm and wouldnÃt go down but in retrospect itÃs because I was reinforcing my anxiety by numbers high, it wonÃt go down, oh shit numberÃs higher and it wonÃt go down. Repeat. I turned off heart rate tracking and fitness tracking. itÃs a shame because I feel itÃs tu stress Im studying at a university abroad And I have failed or got a really bad grade my first semester subjects due to starting a month late and searching for accommodation for atleast 2 weeks or I would have stayed on the streets. I have been doing my absolute best to pass but the subject were very difficult on my own...I have tried s anxiety Picture the following scenario. You get to the point of high school with all your elementary school friends, you are in a class separate from nearly all of them. You are 'very' good friends with 2 of them, and at the beginning of the semester you are always with them. Being friends for years, the three of you are a narrow circle of goo anxiety I am absolutely terrified that the repairs are going to eat up my savings/any credit card wiggle room IÃve created. Based on what came on and how my car drove (it was pretty much fine with no weird noises, movements or anything strange), IÃd say itÃs unlikely but I am very, very scared. IÃve worked very hard to hold or anxiety So I found a counselor who I like and I've been to the first session where she got my background and overview of my problems I guess. Then, we went right in and she had me working on coping strategies etc. and she said in the future what things we will work on. So my question is: I didn't really say everything that I've had trou anxiety Okay so I've got anxiety disorder and depression and went to doctors and they prescribed me Zofolt. I'm on my third week (20 days of medication first week 25g next 2 weeks 50g) keep this in mind that I have never taken any SSRI before and Zofolt was my first anyway it's been quite tough I guess. I've noticed I've been experie anxiety One thing I'm thankful for in this mess of my life is my friend that has listened to me, held me through my panic attacks and talked me down from ledges. He's still there for me even though he's seen me at some pretty dark places. Ok, rant/vent over. Thank you for being here. Thank you for listening.

anxiety I was talking to my counselor today about my anxiety disorder, and he suggested to me that I try to reframe my anxiety as excitement, as they cause the same adrenal response. He suggested I view this adrenal response as simply Ãemotional arousal to something something novel.Ã This conversation caused me to have the anxiety 3 days before, she called me, pretty upset, to say that she didn't feel able to come. Naturally I've learned that she suffers from panic attacks occasionally, and has also said that she is reluctant to try a full relationship because of worries that I'll outgrow her or find someone else (we HAVE gone on dates since she has said these t anxiety I came to see her perform in a play one night, and brought flowers and saw her after the show. We walked around the city for a bit and then sat in my car quietly for a bit. And she didn't say much, but she looked really worried/close to tears. I didn't know what to make of it at the time. We had made plans for her to visit me in my b anxiety So this is a new dynamic I am learning, and attempting to exercise patience with. But sometimes I message her pictures of animals or just something about my day. Even if she doesn't respond, I don't mind. I just like to share. I don't want to bombard her with questions about her opinion on the nature of our friendship/relationship; anxiety Obviously this doesnÃt help the mental health. I have a great relationship with a professor at my institution. Because I go to a SLAC close professor / student relationships are encouraged. My professor has been very helpful and making sure I get the mental health assistance needed while at school while also frequently check anxiety With the help of my therapist, I've come to somewhat of a revelation. I have a very hard time feeling a sense of accomplishment, especially for "little" things throughout the day. Obviously something like applying for a few jobs (I'm unemployed) isn't going to give anybody the same sense of accomplishment as something like earn stress she then tells me IÃm self centered and IÃm a fuck up and IÃm fucking my sister up. And once everything has been said 10 mins later she acts like she did none of it. she asks me if I want tea and to watch tv with her. this all probably sounds so confusing but itÃs mentally making me lose it. i cant do this anymore, i canÃ stress iÃm 15, i donÃt want to be anywhere near my dad bc of the shit heÃs done and this has been going on for 4 years now, she also claims i give her an attitude anytime i do something, today i took the pair of shorts to fold and she looked at me and said ÃAre you really gonna grab them like that? your a fucking asshole, you stress she asks me if I want tea and to watch tv with her. this all probably sounds so confusing but itÃs mentally making me lose it. i cant do this anymore, i canÃt balance school and my personal issues and family issues and her altogether. what do i do?? pliz?

anxiety Lately I've just been having that terrible feeling in the pit of my stomach and also a feeling of nausea - like I constantly need to throw up. I'm sleeping normal but still feeling so tired and drained and can't really focus at work - and because of that I feel like my work performance is slipping up. I am constantly afraid that I'm going t anxiety My flaws seemed huge to me, and I assumed everyone thought negatively of me all the time. My life was consumed by a spiral of negative thoughts and social anxiety. I went to my doc, admitted my social anxiety, and he prescribed me Lexapro 10mg/day. I took my first pill a few days ago, and not two hours later, I had nearly co stress I have panic attack after panic attack and I truly just don't know what to do anymore. No matter how I explain the severity of my situation to people, they STILL somehow seem to not understand just how miserable my mind makes me everyday. I get intrusive thoughts like about how something terrible could happen to my family, c anxiety I read somewhere that feeling like you can't swallow is a symptom of anxiety. It usually only happens when I take pills, but lately it's expanded to nearly everything I eat or drink. It helps if I'm moving or fidgeting with something, but my family has started noticing. It makes me avoid eating with others when I can, or just eating supe anxiety I keep getting this... creeping/moving feeling in my stomach. Right below where my ribs part, maybe slightly to the right. I have no idea what it is but I've never had stomach issues with my anxiety. It just started in the past couple of weeks. Admittedly my anxiety has been a lot worse lately.

anxiety Alright so, for my entire life I've been a straight-A student. High honor roll every time. I never expected any less and neither did my parents, teachers, friends, etc. Over the past year (8th grade) I've developed anxiety, depression, and OCD. (Not self diagnosed.)

anxiety I am still rather lacking in social skills. Writing this is gradually helping me calm down. Does anybody else feel this way too? Several years ago I just gave up on life, not in the way suicidal people do, but, I just stopped putting in any effort to achieve any goals or plans since it wasnÃt working. I stopped standing up for myself or anxiety It is quite annoying. I get diarrhea when I get panic attacks and then need to shower thoroughly to get myself cleaned up because it is disgusting. I also get hypochondriac thoughts and sometimes panic so badly I call 911 and have an ambulance sent. Thankfully I have not done that today. This is so annoying, this fight-or-flight n anxiety My best friend died last year, of a rare type of bacteria that killed him very quickly, a contagious disease. He was a year younger than me. I am still relatively young but also starting to get old, my age is in between somewhere. I can feel the medicine starting to work and I am not as anxious now. I have been typing for over half ar anxiety I am a very strange person in more ways than one. Everything I have written here is top secret classified information, do not disclose it to anyone outside this subreddit, you are all sworn to secrecy. Yes I know Reddit posts are viewable by the public, in retrospect maybe I should not post this because of privacy concerns. Too ba anxiety I need to be my own person, however flawed I am. My panic attack ended at least 20 minutes ago, now. I think that is the end of this post. What more is there to say, other than, I am sorry for writing something so long? It is just who I am, I write long things.

anxiety I thought. I just lived with it. Until it wasn't fine. Five years later. I've moved a few times since college, found a therapist and decided that medication would again be a good choice for me.

anxiety He used to (while single and during the early phase of our relationship) go out 5 nights a week with friends. Most of these nights would end up between midnight and 2 am. They are harmless. He doesn't drink or do drugs, they don't hang out with girls. It's he and a bunch of old men who like to play pool and poker.

anxiety I needed to run some errands, but it was a Saturday afternoon when stores were usually too busy for me, but I felt so great I decided to try it. I went into a busy store and actually waited in line to pay infont of a very obnoxious couple who didn't understand personal space. I was totally fine. I couldn't believe it. In other situations i anxiety So to the point, I,Äm almost 30 and I,Äm starting to think maybe I "am" this anxious person who says stupid things and gives off the ÄöDon,Äöt mess with me,Äö vibe I apparently give off when I,Äm anxious. I,Äm painfully awkward. I unintentionally say really rude things and I don,Äöt even realize it until way later. I,Äm soc anxiety I picked at it yesterday and made it worse. What do I do about this? I'm still convinced there's something there but nothing I've tried has worked. I've tried flossing and even using a small needle to dislodge whatever I _think_ is in there but it still hurts long after it's healed and it still bothers me like crazy. FYI I have trich and derm anxiety Almost decided to live in my car, live with a crack head, travel the country (aka: begin my homeless life, cause I really had no money and if I did it would've gone to beer). I was losing my mind. After being heavily suicidal for a week I decided I can't live like this anymore - but I don't want to die right now. I planted a thought in my anxiety ""I've been sober for a car and the change is awesome! "" I laugh, I stay active, I speak clearly, I look people in the eye, I get things done and I want to get them done - immediately. Living a different reality. If anyone here is being controlled by these substances I just want to remind you that they are holding you back. These cop anxiety Yep, you read the title correctly. I get anxiety from my dog, more specifically leaving my dog alone for extended periods of time. I got him when he was a puppy and at the time I lived at home with four other humans and my parents two dogs. We all worked different schedules so he wasn't left alone very often, and even when we anxiety I've had major brain fog all day and I've been out of it all day now because of how anxious I am about how bad of a job I did and how much I embarrassed myself by crying at my desk. I work in a high pressure job and I know other people have done it but I would love to have thicker skin. ​ Do anyone else cry as an imm anxiety I have GAD with obsessive thoughts (OCD) that are health related (hypochondria) And I am 18, I have been single my whole life, have never had a girlfriend or a kiss or anything of the sort. In elementary school I liked 4 girls throughout my time there and they all just ended up as friends and I never confessed my feelings. In mid anxiety I have a presentation to give on Wednesday as part of my Biology course. It's by myself and I've already jumped to "would it be so bad if I didn't do it?" because the thought of doing it feels worse than missing out on 20% towards the module... I can't see my doctor before then because there's no appointments and I tried getting anxiety -What are you gonna do with that strange looking super shiny thing over there? -That's not really going anywhere "near" me. ""is"" it??? -Wish I could go on my phone right now and play a silly game to distract myself but I've just got to sit here while Dr. fiddles around in my mouth. -I love the way the drill makes a sound like kltt anxiety I don't know why this happened, but I use to have these really bad panic attacks up until about a decade ago. Since then I've been having what feels like one long one. For 9 years I've been in a constant state of panic. It's not as severe as the full blown ones but I'm always short of breath, jittery, with an increased heart rate, a bit anxiety aaaa sorry I feel so dumb for messing up like that, I hate when people lie and I really hope I don't come across like that to you but now I just sound desperate? I'm s o r r y I don't think he'll be online for a while but maybe in a few hours you could try and talk to him about it hello?

anxiety All I have from them is a roof over a head and sometimes food that suits my diet. They won,Äöt talk to me about my problem, they won,Äöt lend me a hand to find a job, they won,Äöt support me with my uni, they won,Äöt even lend me a car to drive to doctors. All I keep hearing is to: go talk to doctors if I,Äm ill and get antidepre anxiety Save yourselves, and get a doggo if you can. "Make sure you have the financial stability, and get a dog that,Äös on-par with your dog experience. It,Äös important to remember they are a ton of work, large puppies especially, but the distraction is part of what helps. A lot of people get large, active, intelligent dogs as puppies and stress I'm in my last year of my secondary school and we just had our mocks but that doesn't mean you can ease off the gas. I'm constantly rushing about trying to complete coursework by Christmas trying to revise feeling like I'm not putting enough effort in. my room is a tip and every time I try to fully clean it, it's completely wrecked a ptsd We'd be saving so much money with this new house... its such an expensive city... I did some googling in their language and found that it was illegal for them to do that. I was excited like oh ok if it happens ill call the police on them.... but now I did some further googling and turns out that if you sign the contract with that in than é ptsd My ex used to shoot back with "Do you want me to go with you?" all the time, no matter what it was. I almost wonder if I blocked out him asking me that about our own wedding. I unloaded a terrible memory of this on my current BF today and he took it like a champ. I just could not stop chasing myself in circles over this and knew domesticviolc This new "roommate" lived 3 hours away in an post code envious town and seemed super sweet, funny and SUPER handsome with a successful career mapped out in front of him. I agreed to meet him for dinner half way between our homes, in San Leandro. He showed up with roses, a million watt smile and a full arsenal of lie survivorsofabi I've always hated nail files. Somehow that's a part of this. God. I'm confused by it all. It's a feeling to recall it that I've carried my whole life but never understood like a cloud.

ptsd Yesterday afternoon, two black males attacked me from behind, took my phone, and shoved me to the ground. The police came and did all the investigation he could and I came to my hotel I'm currently staying at (I'm traveling right now-yes female solo travel can be dangerous lol), slightly scraped and shaken but no major injury ptsd PTSD is life changing for the worse. Every day fight. Getting in a fist fight in high school (who did not get into a fight) I'm not talking about bullying. Playing video games, having bad dreams does not cause PTSD. We have seen things, or done things or been part of things, that most people will never understand and hopefully ne domesticviolc He,Äös abused my dog in the past and I,Äöve no doubt he,Äöll do it again. My dog is one of the only positive aspects in my life, so taking her to the humane society is something I really want to avoid. In addition to that I have no job, a partial college education (I,Äöd prefer to stop going to school and get a job), and no place to go domesticviolc the only thing I ever want is just to be in his arms. Basically, terrifies me back into his arms every fucking time. We'll say I love you, he'll hold me so tight. He's so warm, I'm craving solo bad to be in his arms rn tbh. I don't wanna go to sleep knowing hes not going to be in bed with me.

domesticviolc I go from living happily, almost as if that part of my life didn't happen, to being floored by pain. I feel guilty to myself for how strong the reactions are so many years later. I feel guilty to my partner who has to deal with it even though he's not the one who caused me this hurt. He's been nothing short of wonderful, but I'm scared my ptsd If I continue, I start to physically feel like I'm floating and nauseated. My instincts tell me to run. I am to begin to treatment next week and was wondering if anyone has had to use a weighted blanket. If so, did it help with the physical symptoms? Ive expressed my fear to the specialist I am seeing.

domesticviolc I had poked fun at him for looking at /r/hentai or whatever a week or so ago, and I know I was pushing it too far, but I just thought it was amusing. I didn't think any less of him, and I told him that. I can understand him being embarrassed though. Anyway, last night I had been joking about looking at his browser history after seeing ptsd My wrists start to itch. My bruises from rock climbing and martial arts remind me of other, past bruises. Nightmares. I had such a fucking nightmare last night. Nightmare on top of nightmare.

survivorsofabi But the life at dads was always kind of not ok? He drank and was angry a lot. His moods would change quickly and at times it had to be figure out why he was angry. He yelled and throw things and sometimes shoved me around too, but me he never got that physical with like he did with my oldest brother. My dad also cried a l ptsd The server encourages happiness and improving yourself. Glamorizing mental illnesses and encouraging people to harm themselves is prohibited. If you are studying something related to mental illnesses or well-being, or if you have a job related to one of those things, you can have a role that shows you are a professional and v ptsd They weep after every session with me and all I can do is give them the thousand yard stare. I don't even know how to feel yet my girlfriend says I'm selfless to a fault how I can be I don't know she always says she wishes she could have rescued kid me from my mother and has been the saint of a woman that is still by my side my domesticviolc Regarding my abuser, I still feel my heart ache with compassion, and the understanding that no human being is born a monster; it is an environment poisoned with violence they grew up in that guides them into life as an abuser. I have prayed every single day for John Doe and his foster family, in the hopes that he can overcome domesticviolc His consequences will never reflect or equate to the suffering I have endured and the life-long trauma that will impede on the rest of my life. Because on March 21st and 22nd in 2017, my humanity was shaken and distorted in ways that I still struggle to resolve. It exists in the shadows of nightmares I still have of his face, his scree ptsd He also tortured me in several other ways, like subduing me and pressing his knee into my temple or heatbutting me in the nose as a way to start a fight. I started taking martial arts and self defense classes and I started retaliating against him, when I was around 15. He'd also hit my mom sometimes and I'd protect her. One time ptsd My "symptoms": I know this probably isn't nothing compared what other people go through. I even thought this didn't affect me, I thought most people go through either the same or worse, until I was about 20 years old. But once every day, or every 2-3 days, I get intense, intrusive memories about these events. I feel extreme angr ptsd Like, I don't think they happen if I distract myself with the Internet or doing some hobby that I like. I remember feeling like this at least once a week ever since I was around 15 or so. I used to have nightmares about either fighting for life with my brother or my dad or someone else, or about seizures happening to me or people ar survivorsofabi I was younger than 13 during my period of abuse and one thing I'm noticing now is that I can't wrap my head around consent. People tell me that I couldn't possibly consent to anything that happened, even if I asked for it. That I didn't even know what was happening to me. It doesn't feel that way to me. On paper, I get that.

survivorsofabi Child Sexual Abuse is a huge problem which needs ending. Children never build a true sense of self and emotions if someone takes it away from them. I don't want to be seen as a victim. I just want people to know I understand them and hope this will make them happier. Thank you for reading and have a good day ptsd I feel like a completely different person. My best friend suddenly died in September and I thought I was finally healing from her sudden death, and now this horrible tragedy. I feel like I can,Äöt relate to humanity anymore except for people who have also unfortunately experienced this. Everything seems so trivial and empty. I alrea domesticviolc Any advice is welcome. I'll be checking in and replying to comments as much as I can but I have to be discreet so I may not be able to answer for a while. Thank you in advanced. Tldr: I was ready to move out when my car broke down and he is now fixing it. He doesn't know I'm leaving as soon as he's done and I feel terrible abo domesticviolc I stuck it out because I didn't have the means to leave and I had a hard time accepting it was abuse. I tried to change my behaviour, but nothing was ever good enough. It was a typical narcissistic and empath relationship. I slowly realized even if I was wrong, it didn't warrant this treatment. Cue months of gaslighting that I was su ptsd I have reduced my drinking a ton since I started it and by the second week I could already feel a major improvement in my anxiety and mental clarity, but it may have been largely due to my reduction in alcohol. In the past three days I have felt myself beginning to spiral and today I am feeling very dark, very disconnected. I i domesticviolc When I ask him why he,Äös done this he says ÄöShut the fuck up. Äö He also Äötalks down,Äö to me in bed, calling me slut, pig, and stupid. I am NOT into this and I never told him I was. When I am giving him fellatio he pushes my head down even when I am resisting and I choke. He has also pulled my hair, hit me and punch ptsd I just want to say thank you to everyone that posts on here. I just found this subreddit yesterday and reading all of your guys' posts have made me feel so much less alone. Knowing that other people understand what I'm going through for some reason has helped me tremendously. Particularly a post that someone made about ptsd I,Äöm so tired of people evaluating me visually and telling me Äöll look fine,Äö when 3 TBIs and complex PTSD are, by nature, invisible. I feel so alone in this, and judged because my resilience activities, running and lifting, make me appear perfectly normal. I,Äöm desperate to overcome these issues, especially given my profes domesticviolc I asked the other day if they've set a date. He laughed in my face and said 'no' as if it were the most ridiculous thing he's ever heard. He comes home late, and showers immediately. Then, he showers every morning before he leaves. He doesn't talk to my mum and I, at all, and he's cagey and secretive about everything, to the p domesticviolc I can't support their relationship on any level. To make it clear, neither does my mother. She only allows him to remain here because he'd be homeless and be forced to move hours away to a place with almost no transport and he'd take my sister with him (he did it before. It culminated in the allegations of cheating and the choking domesticviolc My sister is an alcoholic, which is something that seems to run in the family. Everytime my mother invites her over to spend the night, she has to hide all her beer and wine in a futile attempt to keep my sister from drinking it all. However, my sister always sneaks alcohol into the house anyway, and is drunk by nightfall. Then the a ptsd How...do I do that? How much/how little should I say? How can I face my class and my RAs again now that they know I'm a nutcase? TLDR: Had a meltdown in trauma class, and I'm afraid it'll happen again. How do I tell my professor and prepare for the almost inevitable hellscape that is my inability to keep my shit together?

survivorsofabi Hi everyone. For a few months now I haven't been able to get this off my mind. My abuser was my cousin who is 5-7 years older than me(24F). He is very close to my brother and father. His dad is a wonderful person and my favorite uncle.

ptsd By the fourth infusion, I was able to sleep through the night, and only got a mild feeling of anxiety when talking or thinking about it. Today, while leaving my psychologist's office, I saw someone get hit by a car. It was not pretty. He died. Right as I'm starting to move past one, another happens.

survivorsofabi Dad is utterly distraught, he has never laid a finger on us. He's not even allowed to have at his house overnight, and all visitations are supervised. I did not stay at my dad's house overnight until I was 16, and that was because my mom did something horrible, and I was forced to flee the house. I had struggled making frien survivorsofabi * I refused to fold his underwear. Just a couple smacks this time. (age 9) * I couldn't convince my dad to sign adoption papers so stepdad could adopt me. Late nights with mom ensue and I get special attention from stepdad for a week or two (age 7 or 8) survivorsofabi Sister and I were watching the three VHS tapes we own on repeat because we literally don't have anything else. (I know, sorry for the whining. I feel very lucky that we even had a TV to share.) I should mention that this was to bully us as prior to this Dad sees me literally falling apart, starts playing video games with me more ofte domesticviolc I'm an adult with a mental illness, went through a messy breakup with an unhealthy ex that I thought was the one and was in a codependant relationship with, I felt like I was letting him use my body by the end of it. I have ended up basically non functioning, isolated, living on couch eating take away once a day for the last 10 mor survivorsofabi I don't necessarily want to come out and tell my story in hopes that someone bites. But I am a survivor of psychological and physical abuse as a child... the abuser is my younger sister's dad. She is 20 and I'm 26. She isn't old enough to remember all that me and our older sister went thru. She defends him so much...

survivorsofabi Am I sick? The dreams got worse. My mother felating me and soaping me in the bath. I also dreamt about terrible things happening to my newborn daughter, kidnappings, terrible accidents and finally the last straw: Me inappropriately touching her in the bath and her felating me. That is my nightmare image burned into my mind ptsd Spring 2102 I began to see a man that I worked with and that only made my roommate jealous and angry. I went to a pdoc (who was basically a pharmaceutical dispensary and appointments only lasted 15 minutes) who diagnosed me with ADHD, generalized anxiety disorder and caffeine dependency. My ex-roommate(who had ptsd I,Äöm a previous victim of abuse at home and since moving to university (the abuse ended way before uni) I,Äöve experienced very frequent nightmares both relating to and completely unrelated to my previous problems. It,Äös hard for me to go more than 3 nights without having at least a couple of nightmares a night, most of w ptsd I leave and breakdown in the kitchen because I,Äöm still scared and freaked out. And the fact that I feel that I have to apologize for being triggered and am unable to control my reaction infuriates me. The part that confuses me is that when I was assaulted as a child I was never held down. I was frozen in fear. So why am I panic domesticviolc I feel terrible for saying this but, He went away for month and sadly I noticed our family was a little happier and more functional with out him. Recently He's moved from beer and onto spirits, this is where the problems begin. For some reason when he drinks beer he's mellow and approachable. Now that he's drinking spirits. He is domesticviolc Reddit, I need some quick advice about a situation I just encountered. Over the weekend I went home to visit my parents and within this time new neighbors moved in right next to me at my apartment complex. I come home from work and take a nap, but then wake up to a child's screaming and crying. Right after this, I hear a srr survivorsofabi I never did, but I pretend that I did, and I'm still in contact with her. Nobody would ever guess that I endured what I did. I'm in a competitive medical sciences program and thriving. I've had a wonderful boyfriend who supports and loves me unconditionally, and he knows everything that has happened to me. His mother is great, I li domesticviolc I have a question about my ex who has a past of violence against women. I was never warned about it but I found out he was violent and I left. His ex has a full life restraining order against him.Now he is on probation for assaulting a police officer for 3 years in the past year he has gone to jail three times for domestic violence.

survivorsofabi I woke up crying. Wtf is going on in my head that I Dream such graphic scenes. My abuse was mainly by my stepmom. My dad was neglectful. Pretending nothing happened.

ptsd But I have been on about a dozen times, and have been hung up on nine. It is always the same issue, sadly. I get depressed, it is late. I cannot sleep or stop thinking about past trauma, and I would just like to talk to someone. But the bulk of them have hung up, some almost immediately, and some after longer. It is the longer on survivorsofabi this was something he did with my mom as well when they were together, just as some sort of weird game, but it's till like kinda invasive, right? there was also a game called try to get out, he'd pin me down or hold me in various positions and i'd have to try to get out. he'd kiss my neck sometimes too even though i didnt really wat ptsd I dwell on negativity quite easily and am I easily impressionable to brooding. I tend to express myself intensely to people without realizing it, giving the wrong impression because it's natural for me to be intense, but I am also quite composed and can for the most part be 'chill' but it's just that I only have two parts to me, a 'chill' wa ptsd I realized how small nuances subconsciously give me thoughts without me feeding into it. They feed into itself and I watch it do it all on its own, and it causes responses in my body and anxiety without trying. It's almost as if another person is living in here but what it is, it's all instinctual. The awareness has given me a better gr ptsd for years I've had this overwhelming sense of doom, this feeling of having been fucked up. I hate to even say this considering he has his own history of csa and physical abuse, but I genuinely wonder about my dad sometimes. there's just this awful feeling that hits me out of nowhere sometimes. I cant breathe and everything is ju ptsd I experience dissociation. I get this feeling like there's a pill in my throat. I sometimes wonder if maybe the reason I struggle so much is because something happened to me? but idk. I'm probably just overthinking this the way I do and making something out of nothing, but I've been wondering off and on and pushing these thou survivorsofabi I assumed she would answer the question, or she would explore my feelings of inadequacy, or she would interpret the transference. But since her response instead was the title "I am not getting into this with you". She then went on with how she did like me, thought I was an interesting and nice person. but I do not believe that, it is too ptsd Yeah, not so much. I had a minor surgery on my neck today that just used local anesthetic, so I was fully conscious for it. Everything was fine since I'm not squeamish - until I realized they needed to strap me down to make sure I didn't move. It's a delicate procedure; I understood. But I had been in restraints since the medical survivorsofabi I had been raped by two different people as a kid. Between ages 5 to 8 I was raped by someone who's name I won't even call out, and when I was eleven I was raped by this odd couple (the guy raped me, the woman just was present while it was happening). I don't know if it's that or that every time I have had a crush on someone ptsd I developed and was diagnosed with PTSD 5 months later. I was having trouble sleeping (still kind of do), hypervigilant, moody and suicidal at times. I never thought I would make it through...but looking back, I used every single coping skill possible to survive, even if that meant calling crisis every day. I'm not perfect today but I re ptsd Hi PTSD forums, Selective mutism has been something I have been afflicted with for 7 years since middle school. It was only in senior year of high school that I began speaking again thanks to the help of a few friends whom I no longer am in contact with and also my football coach/teacher. Now in college however I dread presen ptsd After getting started, I have this thing where I'm really angry and defensive for 30-120 minutes afterwards. I can put myself in the most calm of situations, but the duration of this seems to be somewhat independent of my environment. I'm guessing this is because my PTSD brain does not respond well to stress hormones? Some survivorsofabi I get that three mistakes in a row is nothing new, I've seen coworkers make that many times a day. I just can't shake the very strong feeling that this person may not be a safe person to be around and I have no idea if that is a helpful gut feeling or if it's a weird and new manifestation of the PTSD (I've never had this issue before, prev survivorsofabi My PTSD was starting to flare up (due to potentially having to go back into the traumatizing situation) and I asked for assistance finding low cost therapy for that in my city and I was given an address to go to for that, as well as a program name for my physical disability. I went to the place about the therapy immediately. I also ask domesticviolence IÄove tried to reason with him and tell him I love him and there is no reason for him to beat me and he says that he knows I love him and I should see that he loves me too but I don'tÄot listen to him and not listening to him will cause me to lose everything. The physical abuse really has damaged me mentally and lowered my self ptsd I may try a new medication. Antidepressants were ok but kind of turned into an unfeeling zombie, which wasn'tÄot good either. ItÄOs hard to describe, but the vigilance goes beyond traditional anxiety and it can be embarrassing. I don'tÄot like it if it affects the mood of others around me, or even makes people want to stay away. I survivorsofabi He would refuse to kiss me or touch me because I was a contaminant and he would obsess about how clean and lovely Japanese idols are, etc. He would often say to me that if he ever met an Asian woman he would dump me immediately. The sexual requirements were a very stringent hygiene ritual, followed with putting on or survivorsofabi Hi, I'm sorry if this doesn't fit here as I'm new to Reddit. I originally posted this in relationships advice but it was taken down due to the mention of abuse. The original post went like this: I met my exBF online when I was 13, he was 18, almost 19 at the time. To cut it short, he groomed me into accepting abusive behaviour from him survivorsofabi I recognise that he was not very nice but I can't get him out of my mind. I crave his attention and just wish he would want me. I know this is not healthy and good for me, but it is how I feel. I feel like I need him to tell me why he stopped loving me and what's wrong with me so I can change, but ultimately he's just not interested an ptsd So I've had PTSD a few years now, coming up on a decade as of December 2018, and in the last year or so I've undergone a lot of change, for the best. I figured since I've found these things to be very important in my fight against this, that I'd share them here. First thing first is to mention therapy. You've got to do it, and it's goin domesticviolence He doesn't let me have any friends I have one from highschool and he's been trying to get me to stop talking to her. saying she just has bad intentions and isn't a true friend but I know diff shes a good person. She recently asked me to start going to the gym with her and I said yes at first, but I told my husband and he flipped. Ther ptsd I feel like the trust I worked so hard to build and the work I put in improving myself by going to therapy, dealing with the anger and the fact I was quick to be violent (old habits die hard...), dealing with and accepting the fact I've also got ADHD and autism, becoming a better man and not following in the footsteps of my dad is just..

survivorsofabi This lead to a series of tests which basically showed that he had developmental issues and as he only ever eats junk food and soda showed that hes pretty much decaying. He has some memory issues now and can't really be trusted to live on his own like he could but he'd need a care taker to come in once a week to make sure ptsd I went through sexual assault less than a year ago and I still find I have flashbacks, I get anxious over it. I don'tÄot tell many people this. I told one friend and a few days ago we got into an argument and he ended up saying that it was my fault it happened. I haven'tÄot talked to him since and IÄove deleted his number, but he keeps survivorsofabi I see her as a distressed and confused, hurting person. In part, this was out of my hands. They filed on my behalf. But the guilt of all this will do to her is hard to deal with. I'll keep breathing and moving forward.

ptsd The second half of a song called Monsters, by the band NOFX. A favorite of mine, it seems appropriate. I never had the guts to do it. But God how I wanted to run off. God give me strength ptsd If I am to survive I must defy him I'm leaving this behind I'll go so far away He'll never find me I know that I'm Making that the last time domesticviolence At the end of the night he literally dragged her to the end and caught a cab home by themselves. I didn'tÄot think of anything as he was telling me that she would act up sometimes. But this time it was something different. My gf started crying all the way home, telling me how she told her that my friend "ÄOsÄu beats her. It took m ptsd The first two times I had done these psychedelics I was mostly alone, the last one however was with my friends. So me and two of my closest friends (let's call them Joseph and Andy) took our tabs in a pretty comfortable setting (as has been suggested by most who have taken these drugs). It was at Joseph's apartment. About 5 ptsd This weekend was terrible, and I guess I wanted to talk about it. Even before this I've been a bit detached and increasingly jumpy. Any sudden sounds or movements I don't expect make me jump. Sometimes I startle so hard I actually pull a shoulder muscle. This weekend though just was worse than usual...

ptsd If you don't, find one. It helps so much and may be the only way I have gotten this far. I think it is just so scary because there is nothing that feels like this isn't just how life is from now on. I feel like I fight every day just to be able to be this crappy shadow of the guy I used to be. I feel like there is nothing to look forward to, and all domesticviolence IÄom not afraid of this guy, at all, and I have no idea what brought this reaction on, but IÄom humiliated and feel terrible. I kept telling him I was so sorry but I just felt like an idiot, and I didn'tÄot want to get into my past because it gets heavy. I just feel like I will never be normal again, I don'tÄot know if I should talk about it, IÄom survivorsofabi I sent a respectful email to my primary psychiatrist explaining my thoughts on how it was inappropriate to have Paterno's picture prominently displayed. Am I fucked up in the head for thinking this wrong? In the past, I had a mild traumatic brain injury. Sometimes I over react. 24 hours post appointment, I'm still bitter about the Pat ptsd I really need to get this off my chest because I don't feel like anyone I can talk to in "real life" right now is going to understand (I am seeing friends Wednesday though). I had a horrible weekend. Boyfriend and I want to move next year. This weekend we visited a city we were thinking about moving to and we "hated" it. I was so ptsd The news is always problematic for folks with PTSD, but it just feels so much worse lately. I am not one to regularly get triggered by the news, but this weekend just was too much. I just felt like I was swept into this gigantic downward spiral. I really want to go clean up my room and get some food ready for tomorrow (the work we domesticviolence But she then came out of the bathroom a second time and attached me saying she was going to fucking kill me and started choking me. I did push her back against bathroom door just to restrain her. Not to hit her just to try to figure out what was going on. It was the 3rd time I was attacked in 24 hours. I was scared.

survivorsofabi Now they didn't know about HF autism then but the signs were there. Bullied in school and at home, I just shut down at about age 10. Went to school, went home, didn't talk to anybody. The schools noticed. Parents were duly notified but nothing was done.

ptsd Hello everyone, A very close friend of mine was in an accident a few years ago and deals with PTSD. He has horrific nightmares that wake him up and keep him in a state of fright. We live in separate provinces, so when he does have his dreams it is difficult to comfort him. Each time he calls, and I struggle with what to say on the survivorsofabi First things first, this may contain triggers for several different types of abuse. If this is no the right place for this post, by all means get rid of it, last thing I want to do is cause trouble for others. I'll refer to my wife as M Some background: My wife's parents immigrated from the Soviet Union in the 80s with her brother, wife was born ptsd (although IÄom scared itÄot change me) TL;DR: I suffer from mental illness, and am leaving a relationship with my girlfriend. This is hard for me because she was the best and only friend I had and IÄom in a very bad spot physically right now so IÄom very isolated and lonely and in an unsafe place with my abusive father. I need ptsd She's, the first person I've ever really opened up to. I haven't told her everything about what's happened, but she does know about my anxiety (which I get from my PTSD) and she reacts sportively to it. To some extent, I let me be "myself" around her, whatever I am. She's moving. She's moving to Maryland.

ptsd If so, what methods have been most helpful? What changes in your relationship with your body have you noticed that have made the biggest difference? Has this method of therapy made it easier to keep triggers at bay or at least more manageable? Have there been any negative experiences with somatic therapy and if so what ptsd I feel like I am just being written off because of my diagnosis before anyone even tries to look into it and see if anything else might be at play. I'd just as soon not say anything about my PTSD to be taken seriously, but it appears in my medical records. Or when I list my medications as required, Drs usually ask me what the meds i ptsd Will I ever like it? I feel like a fucking rejected piece of society with my son being the only purpose of my life (which I love every single second of being his mother) I need help. I don't know what to do, I've tried therapy and it hasn't helped in the slightest. I honestly can't even afford it anymore. I'm also hesitant to try medication be ptsd And I'm feeling continuously happy for the first time in a long time. But I'm pretty sure it seems crazy to anyone watching. In short: Has anyone recovered from trauma and felt this way? Has anyone developed schizophrenia or a bipolar disorder and felt this way? Is it okay to accept this?

ptsd She and I are gamers, and we both play similar games together often. It was a part of our bond. However, looking back, her relationship to the game was extremely obsessive. Moreso than anything I've seen. She literally did nothing but play that game in the weeks leading-up to the assault.

domesticviolence He got off of me, and went into the other room. I laid on his couch trying to breathe while crying. Eventually I got up and started heading towards the door. T started putting his shoes on and said why don'tÄot we go for a little walk. I told him to stay the fuck away from me and I ran out of his door and down the street.

ptsd Don'tÄot worry there are 3 police cases Äuin process. Äu But it is very sad how hard you have to fight to get REAL advocacy from the police for domestic violence, even with all the evidence in the world and they just drag their feet. I mean the violent incident with the gun happened almost a year ago! Where is the JUSTICE in this domesticviolence Recently a family member of mine called the police on their boyfriend bc he strangled her and beat her. His charges are strangulation and M2 simple assault. She, for now, doesn't want to press charges which is extremely frustrating. She could possibly save a life by doing so. This man has single handedly ruined her life and has survivorsofabi I don't know how to maintain my relationship with my brother while he still lives under my parents' control \which covers everything from finances, to communication with other people, to leaving their house \-> or rather not being outside the house without them other than for school and work). I'm lucky enough to have a few won domesticviolence I told her I wanted to stay because I was told I was one of the best in the club, and for a while I was in the England squad. She convinced me Äuthey probably say this to everyone to make them stayÄu and I believed her. I wasn'tÄot allowed to wash, style my hair, shave or choose my own clothes. If I did any of these things a lar domesticviolence This internet ban subsequently resulted in me failing my studies, and in turn lead to my parents despising my relationship. Needless to say, they had noticed a huge change in my personality on top of failing my studies. I want allowed to speak to these friends either. She worried that they would be finding ways to show porn to m ptsd Post contains spoilers for Spider-Man : Homecoming. I was the first responder to a fatal plane crash in Australia in January 2017, and have been dealing with my PTSD since then. IÄove been lucky to avoid most triggers now IÄom back in the UK, but watching Spider-Man tonight thereÄOs a scene where a plane crashes into a ptsd I just need to get this off my chest with people who will get it. I can't stand being in this situation where I feel like my reaction to something could be coming from the PTSD in which case it was an overreaction, or if the thing done to me was actually shitty and the reaction was warranted. Or some sort of combination of both. I can't domesticviolence No history of DV, married 8 years, together 10 years, nothing like this has ever happened before. We have two children, 2 & 5 that unfortunately witnessed nearly everything. Sunday night we had both been drinking, she was significantly more intoxicated than I (likely due to not eating much that day.) She came out of our bedroom ptsd Hey guys I have PTSD from years of emotional abuse and neglect by my narcissistic parents. I am living in their house again now due to some financial hardships (Im 22), I am constantly being triggered and am experiencing intensified symptoms. Does anyone have any tips on how to deal with this situation? I feel completely tra ptsd He pretty much told me that he was angry and disappointed and would probably not forgive me for a while and that I owe him. I was going to go... I still want to. I just am looking at either going to this wedding and being evicted or not going and dealing with the disappointment. I don't feel like I have a choice.

ptsd So my brothers wedding is soon. Like very very soon. My fiance recently lost their job and we had to move and then a bunch of medical drama happened. I told him I would do everything I could to get there. I am honestly not sure if I want to go to prove I can, just because I care for my brother or because I am not being smart an ptsd I hate this feeling. I hate weddings, but I want to be there to support them... but I can't. <-r- ​ edited: For clarity ptsd I regret signing up for class especially this math class. I feel so pathetic I may drop out again, im so anxious in class, it is so long about 6 hours since it supposed to be help special type of class to pass a placement test since I failed that. I halfway made it to my second week. I cant take it anymore.

survivorsofabi Or, if you would like further information, please message me. For your participation, you may choose to enter a raffle to win one of eight $25.00 <-r- gift cards.

survivorsofabi If you are interested in participating, you will be asked to complete an anonymous online survey that will take approximately 20 to 30 minutes, one time only. If you are interested in participating, please click on the following link: <-r- Or, if you would like further information, please message me. For your participation, you may ch ptsd Anything from elbowing someone in the face to completely letting loose with a knife or a baseball bat. It can be mildly amusing for a moment, but I find it actually calls up a distress response more than anything else. I start to feel my head ache, my shoulderblades become taut and sore, and my throat close. My heart rate also inc domesticviolence I suffer from depression and anxiety. I didn't have the courage to tell him no... Although he never hit me, I was never allowed my own bank card, I wasn't allowed my car keys... He yelled and cursed at not only myself but my young children too... One day last week, he told my legally blind son to open his fucking eyes when he cou ptsd They work together and I found out from a mutual friend that they're on a project together and I'm having difficulty handling it. Ää I am seeing a therapist. I am practicing self help. But this sort of thing is affecting me immensely.

ptsd Everyday I have to wake up and choose to push forward & live or fall apart & die. Lately, it's been really hard to push forward & live. I'm tired you guys. I am so tired. What do I do?

domesticviolence I was uncomfortable. HeÄÄot alleviate my fears. WeÄÄot progress. Then it was something new. Again, I was uncomfortable.

ptsd This probably sounds super lame but I'm really, really proud of myself. I feel like this was a huge step in healing from my trauma and allowing myself to exist beyond what happened to me as a kid. I feel like one of the reasons why I felt so comfortable was because we talked a lot about boundaries and stuff beforehand, and I me ptsd I stayed in Africa, I was only one month into the program and was too proud to leave. I must have horrible luck because I experienced two more horrific events while visiting Dar es Salaam...things I won't get into. For now, I take Wellbutrin for the depression, but still feel myself flinching away from people on the street, or am scar domesticviolence I'm completely overwhelmed. I think this process is about the best I can think of (below), but I really, desperately just want to dive back into my career. Am I wrong to think I'm not emotionally ready? Should I force myself to wait? Is there anything else I could plan on doing?

ptsd Hey everyone, IÄove had quite the journey the last couple of years trying to get through a masters program in psychology to be a therapist and also dealing with health concerns. I came upon some research that led me to some conclusions that could possibly help some women who have gone through similar situations. So I wa survivorsofabi I don't want to be nice to him because I don't like him and certainly don't like how he treats me. I know it's not my fault and I am not a bad person. I have never had friends, family, or other partners ever accuse me of the things he accuses me of so I know it's not real. I just needed to vent because I hate being trapped in this situa ptsd This is good and bad... I was a STEM major before and probably would have had a challenging and high paid career by now, had my life taken a different course. However, post PTSD, I found myself extremely connected with the arts. I have intense emotional reactions to aesthetic experiences, and I think thatÄOs largely respon domesticviolence Remember Need to Know. Only tell people about your plans if they absolutely need to know and can be trusted. Limit the number of people that know your plan, even if you trust them, they may be tricked into giving up your location Be careful of your browsing history Most browsers keep a record of websites you visit.

domesticviolence Get a new phone. One option is to purchase an inexpensive, reloadable cell phone from any major retailer. These phones, commonly referred to as Äüburner phonesÄü will have no connection to the abuser and can help you keep in touch with your support system. Another option is to visit a retail location for your provider a domesticviolence *The route you intend to take when leaving, where you plan on going and who will help you along the way * Where your emergency clothing, supplies, money, and documents are kept. Also, try to hide the fact that those things are being moved at all * Any emergency code words, such as those used with children to indicate safe domesticviolence While at a shelter Depending on the nature of the shelter, you may be asked to follow specific security rules designed to protect you, other residents, and the shelter staff. Although those rules may sometimes seem a little bit restrictive, itÄOs important to follow them for everyoneÄOs safety. If the abusive partner had access t domesticviolence While traveling to a safe location Don'tÄot take the most direct route to your destination. When you leave, head off in the opposite direction from where youÄÖre actually headed, just in case someone sees you leave and may tell the abuser which direction you went. Afterwards, double back and take another route to your r domesticviolence Instead he followed me to the store in his car. He would even drive slow enough to have the car next to me at all times. During one of our fights he took a permanent marker and slashed lines all over me while telling me "how does that feel, you slut?" He walked away and I just fell to the floor in tears. He came back and poured h domesticviolence I was not allowed to talk to anyone. I was not even allowed to be on Facebook. Erik made me feel like a prisoner. When I had the Facebook app my phone would always get this random pop up notification saying my login has expired but I was never even logging in because I was too scared of what Erik would do to me. I was on domesticviolence Before I could tell Erik we should go outside he threw me back onto the bed saying, "yeah, you will make a deal. You will show me everything that you do behind my back, you fucking liar. You are always on your phone talking to guys and now you will show me everything!" Erik had me on my bed laying pushed against the wall w domesticviolence He kept the pressure on my throat and I felt as if I was going to die or become unconscious. Erik finally let go only to hit me in my head a few times. I felt very scared from not being able to breath. Every time I tried begging Erik to stop he told me to shut up, that I was not allowed to talk. Erik used my hair as handles to bash my head.

domesticviolence My siblings and I went through a lot growing up. You would think it would have made us close but for some reason we were never close. For some reason I was the most outcast-ed. To this day if I were to bring up the childhood abuse they would tell me that I am dramatic and that it wasn't THAT bad. They will even say they respect domesticviolence I said there terrified not knowing what was going to happen. Not knowing when, or if, it was going to stop I was fighting back tears because I knew I had to keep trying to out smart him in order to protect myself and make Erik stop attacking me. When I fell onto the futon I landed on Erik's new hat that he bought when he was out of the house.

domesticviolence As of Sunday I have experience severe anxiety. Its too the point I am unable to do normal everyday functions and doing my job is harder. All I can think about is how I was ripped away from my daughter and how she is without me. Its to the point my therapist suggested I used cbd oil to manage my anxiety instead of narcotics.

domesticviolence What can I do best to support her? Are there resources on this? I don't want to simply badger her to leave. I've tried to point her to better resources than me, but I'm not having much luck. I'm worried for her life.

survivorsfabi He broke up with me, accused me of lying about my cousin, saying he never heard of her despite the fact he has. I ended up sleeping with my friend that night. Then there was the issue with him threatening to hide my belongings with an unnamed friend. I wouldn't get to know who. A whole bunch of crazy ensued.

domesticviolence However, his fits of anger kept going at the smallest things such as eating the rest of the corn chips or even mentioning politics that he doesn't agree with. This went on at the same rate of once a month or so until I turned 16, which is when I noticed that it probably wasn't normal. One occurrence of this was when I was trying to be domestic.

domesticviolence Then he didn't talk to me for day and after that suddenly he pretends like nothing ever happened. He also tries to tell me that I remember things wrong in these fights, and that I am the one who always starts them. Last night this happened again, until he said some things that I don't feel are possible to take back, like telling me I am stupid.

survivorsfabi Then I came home. My Mom pointed it out first. I went from being the class clown and the life of the party, to being the quiet guy who stood in the corner of the room. I went from a musician and avid gamer, to having no interest in any of it, and no replacement hobby. The things I had the most passion for in life were gone. It was I.

survivorsfabi In the end I just end up leaving, ignoring the question or just saying something like "haha, I'm not really interested in that sort of thing" or whatever. that's all fine I guess, but what really pisses me off is when people act like it's when people act like it's some kind of status symbol to be sexually active (we are 18, ok.) and treat you like an immature loser if you don't.

domesticviolence When my SO and I first started dating and she told me she had PTSD I thought just being a good guy would be enough. Well just being a good guy is not enough when your with someone with PTSD. You can still trigger them even though you are a good guy. You can still get offended when they tell you they can't trust you even though you are a good guy.

domesticviolence You can still trigger them even though you are a good guy. You can still get offended when they tell you they can't trust you even though it is the PTSD talking and not them. You feel like a failure when they tell you they feel hopeless and that nobody can help them. It really sucks when all you want to do is love them and they can't love you.

survivorsfabi I'm just so angry that I'm still dealing with this. The abuse happened 10 years ago. My abuser lives a normal life and doesn't have to deal with the shit I go through every day. I'm just so angry. Thanks for reading.

survivorsfabi That is 100% manipulative and wrong. Just because someone is your biological parent, it doesn't mean that they are worthy of respect. A biological parent is just as capable of hurting their child as anyone else is. More than, if anything. You made the decision to create a household and you showed that you were only ever happy when your child was innocent.

survivorsfabi For the innocence you wish you could convince me to see in you. For me. I have said everything that I wanted to. I ask of you to not come home and start a dialogue with questions, but rather with answers. I will not be responding via text.

survivorsfabi Yo? Awww! Au* You downplayed what you did. You looked at my hurt as a cute and lovable thing. This wasn't the first time you reacted like this. Whenever I told you the way you used to make me feel or if I reminded you of a situation in which you were abusive, you would do the same thing.

survivorsfabi When I think about your reasoning behind not letting me homeschool back then, I realize now how much it contradicts your decision in ripping my extended family away from me. By pushing me to put myself out there and make new friends, I only ever feared that you would find a way to take them all away from me somehow. To me, you were the only family I had.

survivorsfabi Update: I love just got a response from my dad. His english is not the best, but he said, "I love you, and I know, you will think is a script love and is only letters but we both love you, time will create and demonstrate the my love was pure with a lot a mistakes as you see it and probably my eyes was block on times god night we were together".

domesticviolence I have an extremely ironic sense of humour and my friends seem to get along with it. So it's generally easy to be extroverted around them, especially with the alcohol that is usually associated with our meet ups. I opened up to two people, one of them is my best mate he just took everything in and offers me support when I ask for help.

domesticviolence I screamed and my mum helped me until I passed out. I went to the doctor the next day and they referred me on to get a diagnosis for PTSD as well. I get flashes about once every couple of months now and it gets more and more terrifying each time. About a year and a half before GCSE's (finals for you Americans) my anxiety got worse.

domesticviolence For information and help on other veteran related issues, this is a great resource. Over the last five years we've supported about 1600 veterans in Wales, it's been an incredible learning curve. I've seen so many amazing transformations and want anyone that's going through PTSD right now, to hang in there and read this.

domesticviolence But here I am, hours later, having a panic attack and wishing I could crawl out of my skin. It's really triggering a sense memory I have, so instead of remembering the event, it feels like it's happening right now. It is the most devastating ending to this day that could have possibly happened. I was feeling so brave lately. Does anyone else feel like this?

domesticviolence It may have been those emotional mute buttons that PTSD can sometimes press? I don't know. But recently I suddenly have all these flare-ups of anger that I don't really know what to do with. It takes every ounce of my being to control myself sometimes, and I feel lucky that I have been able to keep things relatively under control.

domesticviolence I'm in a nursing program, and we're talking about domestic violence. It just so happens this lecture has been on the syllabus since day one. I just have impeccable timing. My question is, should I talk to my cohort about my experience? I feel that it may make them more aware to see and speak to someone that's been in the situation.

domesticviolence And how I made her let me bring him back to her boyfriend's house. How I begged him to come over. And how she was just trying to be a good person and discourage it. She's telling people how much I wanted him to fuck me. How RELENTLESS I was.

domesticviolence I just don't know what's real anymore. I can't live with everyone in my life thinking that I'm crazy AND a hysterical slut. I just can't do this anymore. I'm so ashamed I can't be in this skin anymore. I'm starting to get scared.

domesticviolence Hi! I live in an apartment block. There are 6 door entrances within a 5 meter proximity, so we can hear our neighbours slightly if they're very loud. I live next to an asian woman I've never seen before. I don't know if she lives alone.

domesticviolence I'll call him out on his behavior or try to stand up for myself, and then he'll either get mad and give me the silent treatment and not apologize, or he'll tell me I'm lying and that he didn't do or say something. Even though I know he did. He criticizes my parenting and tells me I'm lazy since I'm a SAHM (even though I do all the cleaning and cooking).

survivorsfabi Now he is enraged because I said months ago that maybe internet access was not a bad idea, that there was some stuff there that may connect him more to others. He had been asking for months how to access the internet for free, and I just did not know what to say, he mentioned it a few times, besides he would have to get internet access.

domesticviolence I knew I was unhappy in this relationship. He has a very impulsive personality, he destroys his property and overdoses on drugs when he is angry. When I was telling him that I needed some time on my own, he would threaten to kill himself so that I felt obligated to come take care of him (happened 2 times). I would stay because domesticviolence if he's the textbook abuser, she is the textbook victim. She keeps giving him chances and accepting his apologies and living in this cycle of abuse. She thinks she's the one doing something wrong. I keep telling her that the only thing she is doing wrong is staying with this guy and thinking he will change. I tell her she does not deserve him.

domesticviolence My PTSD has manifested itself in disassociation, flashbacks, panic attacks and general anxiety and depression. I believe that my PTSD is related to my previous abusive relationship also, sexual assault, traumatic childhood experiences and an alcoholic parent. I am looking for any advice related to these issues that may help me.

domesticviolence I come out bleeding and it boy tried to yell at me. But he noticed my arm and was like "oh my God" but then crazies started to wine that he was losing his mind. So he went back downstairs. Shortly thereafter it boys parents kicked him out for violence towards the family, property damage, and refusing to get a job. Him and his brother moved out.

domesticviolence As I get up from the end table, a bit dizzy, he takes the badminton racket and jabs me twice in the abdomen. The attack ends there, as I make my way to my phone to call 911, where I am chased out of the house before I can make the call. Everything ends there; I wait for police to arrive so I can grab my stuff and leave safely. It takes about 3 hours ago, my dad had attacked me. I'm not sure who to go to for advice, hoping someone can share any here. Thank you. Here's the full story Preceding physical contact, me and my dad were having a verbal argument.

domesticviolence Little over 3 hours ago, my dad had attacked me. I'm not sure who to go to for advice, hoping someone can share any here. Thank you. Here's the full story Preceding physical contact, me and my dad were having a verbal argument.

domesticviolence I know it's nothing for me here especially with my current boyfriend but I also am so afraid to fail or get stuck with my ex. Help? Advice? Empowerment? I need it all right now.

domesticviolence We will also provide links to treatment and informational resources throughout the study. Please send us a private message to receive a link to the screening questionnaire to see if you qualify for the study. If you qualify, you will be told more about the study and you can decide whether or not you want to participate. If you don't, we will not contact you again.

domesticviolence I'm not sure...? I'm stressed to high heaven, and I know that this is the core of it. I don't believe in god, or I dunno... but I am terrified of facing this portion of myself? Like Someone with a phobia of something. But I need this part in my life.

domesticviolence I get intrusive memories, that are really hard to get out of my head, sometimes I actually flashback like I'm there. I have nightmares that replay old memories of me as a child, or sometimes of just her face. But it doesn't happen everyday. This is the first time I've really thought about frequency, I'll catch myself actively trying to avoid them.

domesticviolence Now I'm in a healthy relationship. This man is the love of my life. He always pushes for me to be better and I resist it sometimes. I love turning on him fearing him having a dark objective, and I don't understand all my triggers. All I know is sometimes I see my incredibly loving boyfriend as my incredibly abusive ex and it breaks my heart.

survivorsfabi He broke my hymen through overly aggressive fingering before we ever had sex. He surprised me by trying unlubricated anal sex without warning, and I did fight that one, but only out of complete instinct. I screamed and moved away and sat crying for an hour, unable to move or speak while he tried to apologize. After we broke up, he kept trying to apologize.

domesticviolence She is easily manipulated. She will believe anything anyone tells her. She is constantly finding a new naturopathic medicine to boost her immune system or whatever her problem is. After her separation, she REALLY turned to God and religion. She believes that her nephew was cured from something because she prayed (even though he was never sick).

domesticviolence And yes, I would love help. I live in <location>. I can't use a phone as we only have one; house phone, that mom is always sitting near. I would love to be given links to sites that can help my brother and I to places that will take us. Because today was the last straw with my 'mother' hitting my brother with a tennis racket as my 'dad' was home.

domesticviolence ​ "Heyyyyyy.  So just wanted to introduce myself. I'm a young lady who suffers from Complex PTSD and just want to reach out to be part of a community to get some help while also helping others. Supporting other PTSD victims is something that has helped me heal.

domesticviolence I had done research on termination of parental rights but everything from the state said that the state had to be the petitioner in cases like that so I just assumed it was that way in other courts. So I ended up petitioning to terminate his rights today and included a statement from my ex's other sons mother. But now I am afraid.

domesticviolence "potential triggers: abuse" I was recently diagnosed with PTSD and have been prescribed Cymbalta. Since taking the drug I have found that my flashbacks have kind of intensified. I can now taste things and smell things whereas before it would just be a scene that played out it's like I'm THERE every time. I keep having urges to avoid things that remind me of the abuse.

domesticviolence The two women sitting out front were his family. They are all African immigrants and don't primarily speak English. They were the ones who handed me the phone. The police came by yesterday to talk again to my neighbors while I was at work. My husband told me last night that the man died.

domesticviolence She starts to cry and apologize as well as tell me that it was all her fault regardless how many times I try to convince her otherwise. As her boyfriend it's extremely painful to watch. On our ride home from the store today she had another breakdown that lasted until we got into the house. However that's when things took a turn for the better.

domesticviolence I don't know what to do and I need some help. Can anyone give me some insight into why he's being like this to me or what I can do? Is there anything saveable here? TLDR: I [F26] am at my wits end with my partner [M27] being emotionally abusive, what can I do? [Duration 1 Year]

domesticviolence Best to work backwards. The first time I went in to an actual psychological professional to get them to weigh in on my condition was due to a flashback - The only one I've ever had and frankly pretty easy to deal with, which sets the tone for me. As far as the disorder goes, I got off pretty easy. Conversation to do with specific details.

survivorsfabi I don't know why I'm writing this. I don't know what people will say. I'm seeking therapy for this. I'm openly involving my SO in this so that I don't feel too isolated, and so she doesn't feel either. It felt surreal to tell her and it feels surreal to type it out. If anyone can hear me, please reach out. Thank you.

domesticviolence I was sobbing and shaking and my whole front of my dress was open because he tore at it and the buttons broke. I was shaking so much it took a while to button up my dress and the whole time it reminded me of when my ex attacked me. Was my trauma triggered? I tried to gather my things and got out and went into the back of the car.

domesticviolence The way he was acting was disproportional to the situation. He is yelling at me nonstop. We pulled into a store. He kept yelling mean things at me, to the point I was asking him to stop over and over, telling him I didn't want it to escalate and to please go into the store. It all happened so fast.

survivorsfabi Perhaps it is weird to process something after such a long time, but not really. I always felt strong at how I managed to leave, but I never had any closure. I got out of the relationship and pretended nothing ever happened. Just wanted to share I had an eye-opening experience tonight and I feel at peace about everything that happened.

domesticviolence I let out a loud whistle, as we often invited new comers to go ride. The guy on the black bike was named Devin. Devin had just moved to town a couple weeks prior and had posted in our facebook group looking for friends to ride with. After talking for a couple more minutes, we took off on our adventure. A couple blocks down a good road.

domesticviolence I look in the mirror and all I see is fat, even though I'm smaller than a lot of people. Secondly, my sister decided to let me, even though I broke up with her, move in with her, and my new boyfriend. She intentionally told my brother not to tell me about the situation, and then she says that I wouldn't be upset if I didn't love him still. I'm not upset.

domesticviolence He was arrested for assault and battery and DWI. He took off with our infant daughter while inebriated and then returned and beat me down then left again. Why am I being made to feel like this is all my fault. The way he looked at me in the courtroom, like I did this, I didn't even call the police? The neighbors did even after our child was born.

survivorsfabi When sis "woke up" as a teenager, she started raising hell about the singing evangelist father who didn't hold her by the wrist, telling her to "watch and learn" while her older sister was forced to copulate him. (Bro was hiding behind the clothes & sliding doors in the closet, watching through the crack.) Spouse had been threatened repeatedly.

domesticviolence My job is very difficult to get, I know multiple people who drive two hours each way because it is the best job around (midwest). It isn't one I can just give up but every time he gets close I start to panic and I can't breathe. My anxiety is through the roof. The worst part is he tries to hit on me and it honestly makes me sick. Add in the fact that he is a narcissist.

survivorsfabi And here I am, several years later. But I hadn't expected to still be alive by now. So planning anything for more than a few hours in the future feels stupid and pointless. Self-harm and suicide seem like pretty decent options most days. As a compromise, I sleep, because being unconscious gives me a chance to not be in this world.

survivorsfabi My abuse ended years ago. My life is good now. I'm about to get married to someone really wonderful. Everything is great. But it still feels wrong that I'm still alive.

domesticviolence SIL and BIL are seeing a couples therapist as well as individual therapists. SIL is adamant that she wants my wife and I to participate in group therapy with both of them and that my BIL wants to set the record straight and feels awkward around our family. He hasn't personally apologized for his actions and states that my SIL felt betrayed.

domesticviolence I was raised by a narcissistic grandmother and emotionally unavailable mother. In fact, when I was born, she tried to take me out of the house to take full custody away from my mother because apparently my mom was "unfit" to be a mother. She never did because she found out that my biological father might have had to be involved. I ended up staying with my mother.

domesticviolence First off I'm male but my relationship with the woman is strictly platonic stemming from professional, we are co-workers. It's not herself to anyone that she's in an abusive relationship as she's come to work several times over the last several months with blackeyes etc and admits to being abused. She been in the relationship for 1.5 years.

domesticviolence Lately I have started having some unusual episodes. I've been having flashbacks as far as I know, but I was always upset every time somebody unexpectedly grabbed me, or worse, inflicted me some pain, even if accidentally. If I saw that coming, then OK, but if not, I was instantly teleported to a very bad place.

survivorsfabi I was never given a birthday party because it was inconvenient to have a bunch of kids over. In my pre-teen years I faced several years of having nothing and having to hide when someone knocked on the door because they were debt collectors or people who demanded payment for something. I faced the threat of homelessness.

domesticviolence Not really sure why I'm posting this but just for my own sanity I suppose, to say something this beats just going into the woods and screaming at trees which I feel like doing often. I have PTSD, chronic depression, anxiety the whole circus of fun from my time in the Army (15 years). I feel like I'm on the verge of a psychotic break.

domesticviolence It seems that as of now our best option is just to babysit her for the weekend until she can see a doctor on Monday. Which really, really fucks my weekend, but so be it. FINAL UPDATE: Thanks for all the support, friends. We did end up calling emergency responders for her about twelve hours after my last edit. She was going full on.

domesticviolence Eventually my vision started to fade and I started losing feeling in my hands and feet. My mind started to wander off to things other than my struggle for air, and one thought stuck with me "the sun is really bright and warm on my face." With that thought, I closed my eyes tight and felt the strength starting to leave my arms. I felt my vision fade.

domesticviolence and when my mom tried to ask him where the rest of the money goes he said it's up to her as a woman to manage the household. I cannot fucking stand him. first he had the audacity to try and act like the victim and now he's straight up refusing to help us or tell us what the plan is. we're dependent on him cause we got a lot of animals.

domesticviolence I took the time to write this, so I'm going to share it with you all anyway. Hopefully someone will read about my struggles and feel a little less alone. If it doesn't help anyone, it's at least helped me to finally share a little of what I've been through. Thank you, internet strangers, for taking the time to read my ramblings. ​ domesticviolence Typing is keeping me from facing my terror. The nightmares have mostly subsided, but without my wife keeping the ghost away, I'm scared the dreams will come back. I keep recalling the most vivid one of them, it replays itself over and over in my head. I've seen many therapists over the years, and sadly none of them have any success.

survivorsfabi After that I ran to Mexico, just across the border to heal. I needed my daughter to get better to press charges. I didn't want to risk him walking away free because my daughter wouldn't talk. She was physically and emotionally hurt. For years without sleep, several visits to the ER because of panic attacks, plus terrible head ptsd I get it, people collect guns as a hobby, this is america. When I saw it I immediately panicked because when I was with one of my abusive exes he bought an AR-15 really close to the end of our relationship and would do things like take it apart and put it back together over and over again in front of me and keep it loaded in our b domesticviolence Like she knew she had gotten herself into a bad situation but now I'm just "trying to put doubts in her head about her girlfriend". And how it's okay because her girlfriend has depression. Well, I have severe depression too and I never hit her once nor did I cut her off from everyone. I've been severely manipulated before but I don't ptsd What are you thankful for? For me: Today I'm feeling thankful for being alive. I'm very grateful for my family, our health, our safety, my jobs, my home. I have pain in my foot/leg from an injury I had surgery, as painful as it can be it has also made me grateful for being able to walk.

ptsd I can't go into public restrooms because I freak out and dissociate with my surroundings. I can't watch certain shows because they were -on- in the hospital room. But I'm doubting myself, I'm doubting that this is real, that it happened and that I could be suffering from it. How to cope? how to stop doubting that this is happening?
domesticviolence So I've got out of my situation. It was very abusive on all levels. Mental physical verbal. I've got a protection order and custody is pending but I'm expecting it to go my way as well especially as I've got the same judge who granted my protection order. I've got our son with me.
domesticviolence My neighbors, a young gay couple, just had a very loud fight, with lots of objects being thrown around. I've heard shouting matches before, this was different. I wasn't quite sure how to handle it. We went and the door was open so we walked inside to make sure everyone was ok, and nobody was in the process of being killed so ptsd I don'tÄôt bother with people and frequently ghost them or cancel plans last minute whereas before I was a very loving and sociable person. I generally don'tÄôt trust anybody, and I'm fret that people I am very close to are secretly horrid and manipulative and going to stab me in the back. so basically, my reactions to the world have r ptsd and I still feel like im on meth 5 days later after sleeping less than 10 hours total over that time. im also going in and out of depersonalization and derealization when it gets really bad, and when i haven't done the twitch for a few hours I can start feeling really tired and depressed like my body needs to rest, only to do it again and ptsd I am scared as fuck off what the comedown is going to be like from being jacked up on adrenaline for 5 days straight. I have not felt tired whatsoever during this time. I have been giving valium and trazadone to sleep, by an emerg psychiatrist, of which I cannot feel either whatsoever. On top of that when I do this twitch many times domesticviolence I believe he has real deep seeded mental health issues. I also know he verbally and emotionally abuses his wife. I know he has scared his daughter so much she has gone so far as to hide all his beer and she showed up on my doorstep terrified because he got mad... Chased her around the house and thrown a glider rocking ch ptsd The terrifying part happened later in the day. I was very fragile, and when my roommate asked me why I was so solemn, I broke down crying. I excused myself to the bathroom, where I continued to cry and try to get a hold of myself. What killed me is when I stood up, I thought, "I'm a different person. I am not [my name]."
ptsd The last straw that broke me completely happened the night before/early morning of St Patty's day 2013 (age 21). I went to a bar for a pre-party. I had one shot with the bartender and some other guys there. I then started drinking water and talking to the guy sitting next to me. He said he was a pilot.
ptsd (I don't know how to tag this NSFW on my phone but it is. Edit: nvm figured it out lol) Um... So I don't really know how to start this. I'm 25 now so I'll put my age at the time with the corresponding events.
ptsd I would like to reach out for help from someone supportive before an episode becomes too intense to ask for help. I would like to acknowledge the symptoms and temporary nature of the situation as to let it pass without causing additional damage. I finally realized that fighting my traumatic episodes is like a rigid oak tree trying to ptsd I couldn'tÄôt stop shaking and now I can'tÄôt get her out of my head. I keep looking at the sides of the road any time I drive now. I don'tÄôt even know how this triggered my PTSD since mine normally is only triggered by losing my breath or having a heavy feeling in my lungs. Does anyone have any tips on how I can stop worrying a ptsd I am so ready to be better. Can I work through the CBT WORKBOOK alone? Has anyone tried? IÄôll kick my search into high gear this week, broadening my search to cities near me. I just want to do something positive before I do something I regret...or wake up in 6 months having done nothing..... which is worse?
ptsd And now that they have been living separately I had to move back in with my dad (after I couldn'tÄôt afford college) and heÄôs gotten to the point that he won'tÄôt even clean up after his dog so the house smells of urine or clean his clothes and all he does is play video games and yell at people. He will smoke weed and go to work ptsd Even though those who hold in the highest regard appear to be fine, they may be struggling inside. With the PTSD Project, I want to show how Post Traumatic Stress Disorder - PTSD - effects military veterans, first responders, and family of those who are effected by PTSD. I am looking for people who are interested in being in the ptsd I am looking for people who are interested in being in the project. Please reach out to me if you are interested! Please do not take my photos for use without my permission however. If you need help, please call 1-800-273-8255 for the Suicide Hotline, or 911 for emergencies. To view this project, you can view it at my website at < survivorsfabi - She left a youtube comment on one of my videos saying "I have many ways of contacting you". - She blamed me for the outburst, saying that if I just gave her what she wanted she wouldn't have to do this - She told me that "the water dripping thing" (nice diminishing statement of what she did) was a joke/prank - I threatened to domesticviolence I've been trying to get in contact with her because I'm scared and worried about her. She isn't answering my phone calls, and will only give a vague text response with an I'll call you later while she is at work. Or HE will text me back and say she is fine and can't talk right now. I spoke to 2 of our mutual friends today and she isn't s domesticviolence I've been with my partner for a little over a year now. He has mild autism and is hard for him to deal with anger and emotions. He tends to black out i n rage and just break and smash things. Sadly we are young and broke so therapy has been a hard option to find for a decent price. He got physical with me the other day and smat domesticviolence Wrote this in about three minutes today. I need to work some things out but it is crazy how much writing has helped me in the past three and a half months. My therapist credits my journaling to the progress I am continuing to make. I want to send my thoughts to everyone posting on this sub, I am strong not only for myself but for ptsd The difference between nightmares and high terrors is diagnosed through sleep studies using tools that measure rapid eye movement. All of which tells me absolutely Sweet F All, letÄôs be honest. & Sleep and our need for it is not entirely understood, many fantastic theories abound but what little we do states that it is a ptsd Brian has exactly the same responses. I know he is in a nightmare because I am fully aware of his breathing, his perspiration and his heart rate (a gift of growing up as a small child being hunted, there are some skills that are animalistic that I retain to this day). His service dog, Sasha, no longer wakes Brian up from his nightmare ptsd My own sleep issues were that of a cat. I could sleep anywhere, anytime for brief at most 40 minute slots of time. I was known to lean against a wall and be fast asleep. On a 20 minute taxi ride. Boom. Out.
ptsd I've got a good handle on my triggers. I know how to prepare myself when I have to encounter a trigger and how to move past it without too much discomfort. That being said today I encountered an event that blindsided me. I was not prepared at all. I know its possible I will come across triggers without warning, but this was som survivorsfabi I am also not sure if I should press charges on my mother for stealing my identity, or even bother looking into the student loan fraud. Student loan fraud is incredibly difficult to prove, and reporting identity theft would be a lengthy process. The debt is paid and I almost feel like just running away and forgetting about it. I am 26 and survivorsfabi My mother is a narcissist. A few months ago I pulled up my credit report and discovered that my mother had stolen my identity in 2015.Äü but had just paid off the balance. I asked her about it and she admitted it without apologizing. A few weeks ago I was thinking about what I owe in student loans, and it wasn'tÄôt adding up. I as ptsd I hadn't realized until a year ago, but this gave me PTSD and shaped the way I interact with men and boys. Now I'm dating a boy who is very sweet, very understanding and such, but I often find myself thinking about ending it because his behavior feels too "man-ish" to me, and it makes me uncomfortable and scares me. It puts m ptsd Was looking at therapies for my gf and this stood out. Love any feedback from anyone who has used this. She's going to start Monday at 5 mg and go up from there. Here's a collection of studies on both prevention, various effects, and treatment benefits noted using hydrocortisone in people with PTSD or at high risk of it.
survivorsfabi I'd like to note that I have had a couple close individuals look at my emails, evidence, etc since the last court date. I'm not that crazy, but I showed them the emails because I wanted to make sure they were real. The emails, evidence, and notes are all real. I checked my phone history, and the phone calls to the advocate and offi survivorsfabi He didn't remember, and didn't care that they weren't in the file any longer. He said he had 400 cases on his docket and couldn't remember something so trivial. He didn't care to look at my phone or email, because bond didn't matter when the case wasn't going to win. I started to feel like I was detaching and becoming defensive survivorsfabi Why fix the leak when the rubber mallet driving the cork into the hole disturbs the family when the damp doesn'tÄôt bother them quite so much at the moment. Never mind the water is rotting the floorboards. Never mind the mold growing in corners. Never mind how sick I get from exposure. Now here comes the real question: Do survivorsfabi But it took me months afterward to end it. I remember him screaming at me, calling me stupid, calling me a moody bitch when I got frustrated at him for screaming and insulting me, threatening to break up with me, holding his ÄúloveÄü for me over my head when I wasn'tÄôt doing things his way, getting drunk and high and chea ptsd I then confronted my parents and finally the walls came tumbling down. It wasn't the first time I asked them about it, I did so on at least 3 different occasions throughout my twenties. Well after 2 weeks I got written confirmation, when my parents handed me a note from 1986, where they wrote down, what I told them, when I talked survivorsfabi I did do a couple years of college but in the midst of it, I developed a physical disability (blood clots in the legs) and was forced to drop out. Naturally, this difficult transition wasn't made any easier when mom began calling me to claim I was faking being disabled because I'd seen the actually disabled people in/around my life, how survivorsfabi I still have issues with writing, driving, standing up to people/for myself, and with the aforementioned complex PTSD. It's generally triggered by loud confrontation. I do have a great facade these days. She has helped me a ton. It's the first genuinely healthy romantic relationship I've ever had.
survivorsfabi When I was 17, my mom turned her attacks on my writing into high gear. She constantly berated me about how pointless, worthless, stupid and childish it was to write. How I'd never make it as a writer. How I'd be poor and alone. How (again) I needed to stop doing "childish things" like writing (and any other hobby/passion she di survivorsfabi My intelligent and self-worth were constantly, viciously attacked. Eventually, I gave up on school, I lapsed into depression (was suicidal for awhile) and just stumbled through each day in a daze. My grades went from straight A's to D's and F's at midterms that I'd barely get up to low C's at the last minute. Of course, mom used this survivorsfabi I was very interested but she kept saying "Don't go! I want you here!". I decided to say to hell with it and went. When I got there I met back up with an old friend of about 6 years (I'll call her Sha, to make this easy), someone who I'd been crushing on since we first met. The feelings weren't gone but they were buried under everyth ptsd My car broke. Again massive stress, helplessness, and hopelessness, as if the walls are closing in on me. I knew a bit of mechanic work and decided to fix the car myself. After a few weeks of investigation, learning, part orders, etc, etc I did fix it. But it wasted a lot of my time though.
ptsd I've been dating this guy for a few months, and we've recently become official. He's wonderfully kind, intelligent, and we get along incredibly well. We have some deep conversations about our lives and the struggles we've endured, and I admire him. I haven't told him about my PTSD, mostly because I've been doing really well w survivorsfabi And I can't accept it anymore. I can't allow it anymore. It's time to come clean about the pain it causes me to have this sorry excuse of a man be so close to someone that is forever connected to me. Any suggestions, personal experiences, or strategies you used to help relieve the anxiety that is experienced before and during we domesticviolence The judge had to postpone the court date. As of this morning janes mother appeared at the house and gave jane the NEW lease showing that jane is no longer on the lease and wants her out. She left almost immediately, to avoid the police that were called right away. And now she does not know what to do I wish I can help t ptsd CW: mentions of self-harm, suicide I feel so overwhelmed. The flashbacks, the panic attacks, being triggered so easily, sometimes by mere words alone. I get so entrenched in my flashbacks that I can barely medicate myself, and my friend has to intervene and give me a good dose of clonazepam to get me out of it. I can't talk a ptsd I have very strong urges to hurt myself. I've been self-harming for over six years. Sometimes I think that all I need is a good deep cut. Other times, I honestly feel like ending my life. I can't handle this constant state of hypervigilance and all the intrusive memories.
domesticviolence I know this is a subreddit for domestic violence but I'm feeling really freaked out right now and when he gets aggressive I feel like I cant phone anyone because he hasnt hit me but I'm scared of him because hes really big and mentally unstable. I'm obviously looking to move out but it's hard with full time school in the fall in a real survivorsfabi I was told by my peers, the media, so many things, that what I was doing was okay, was fine, was normal, was desired by every boy my age. I'm sure the majority of my abusers knew I was underaged, how could they not? I told some of them how old I was, and most of the ones I told were okay with me being underage, although ptsd I don't have PTSD, I know how debilitating it is for you guys who do, but I thought I'd post in here because you might be aware of the symptoms and see if there's any connection? Basically I used to be severely bullied back in school and I've never gotten over it. I have nightmares, and even like "day-mares", where something so ptsd On a side note, the mere idea of my significant other interacting in any way, hostile or friendly, with my brother makes me wanna freak the fuck out, so there,Äôs also that. (But it doesn'tÄôt take much for me to wanna freak out either). Should I just continue to struggle privately to put this all behind me somehow? Also, is it selfish i survivorsfabi I've mostly come to terms with it but every time i see his name or face or his girlfriend's it comes back. My question is, when the justice system fails, how do you deal with living near a child molester when you can't just pick up and leave? The only thing that prevents me from making sure he dissappears is the risk of getting caught ptsd IÄôm going to be posting something similar in the anxiety subreddit too but I wanted to talk to you guys about this too. I was formally diagnosed with PTSD, depression and anxiety last year. IÄôm on medications for this too. IÄôve been having a rough week. I haven'tÄôt been able to sleep and any sleep IÄôve had has been ve ptsd It,Äôs been 12 hours since itÄôs started and I genuinely can'tÄôt get it to stop. ItÄôs been so bad that my tongue is actually really starting to hurt. Has this happened to anyone else before? ? I hope I explained that clearly enough but if you need more descriptions, let me know and I can try to explain it better.
survivorsfabi I don't know if that's true or if my brain just can't find where all of that is supposed to fit in with this. I don't know if anyone knows what to advise here or if anything even could be, but it's just all so much. I feel like I have poison blood. TL;DR - one more straw added the family history of sexual abuse but my brothers abuse has thr survivorsfabi It was one week before the start of my second year of my bachelor,Äôs degree. The first year was wonderful. The second, I was dead because of him.Äü That night, we (my best friend J), her boyfriend, and L) went to a party at N.Äôs. I don'tÄôt really like to drink, so I stayed clear the whole time.
survivorsfabi IÄôm onto new studies now, erasing my ancient life, my life related to him. ThatÄôs how IÄôm reconstruct myself for now. I plan to see another therapist, someone who could help me without any conditions. I just need help. Thanks for reading, it was difficult, but felt good to finally write it down :)
survivorsfabi Hi everyone, also posted on r/rapecounseling. Sorry for my english, itÄôs not my mother tongue. Past few months were pretty rough and I think IÄôm finally ready to write it down, like if I needed it.Äü I was raped by a ÄúfriendÄü (letÄôs call him N), 5 years ago. I was survivorsfabi I remember thinking ÄúWhat the hell is he doing ?!Äü. This guy was so tall, so much heavier than me.Äü He grabbed me, was on top of me, told me to Äúshut my fucking mouth right now.Äü I tried so hard to move, but I couldn'tÄôt.Äü I remember him spitting on his dick, and then he penetrated me, his hand over my mouth. It w ptsd The knowledge that a small part somewhere inside my dad was ... my dad. He was never able to defeat his demons. They destroyed his life and started waging battles in mine. I'll battle PTSD until my last breath. The thoughts, fears, and distorted reality is always hiding in your mind waiting for its chance.
domesticviolence FOR ANYONE IN A DOMESTIC VIOLENCE SITUATION For anyone who wanted to know the name of Robin McGraw's (Dr. Phil's wife) domestic violence app. The app is Aspire. It disguises itself as a news app with current news stories that way if the abuser finds it he/she won't be alerted. You can preprogram your friends & fa ptsd I'm not massively worried about it at the moment because it feels good but my question is: Is this a normal symptom of PTSD and if it continues tomorrow, should I call 111 for medical advice? I'm home alone for the next few days, should I try and stay at a friend's? Thank you! Edit: Thanks for the advice, I have got in touch with n domesticviolence My daughter's father I was with for 5 years on and off. He was not abusive the first year, however when he became so I left and found out two weeks later I was pregnant. Of course he begged and pleaded for a second chance, and I believed that my daughter deserved me to at least give it a shot. I came back and surprise surpr survivorsfabi I cannot remember for a fact what age we were and for exactly how long the abuse occurred. But of course I can say for sure there is a 5-year age gap between us, me being younger and female. For some reason the age 8 keeps popping into my head as to how old I was when it happened. I may have been a tiny bit older, but I survivorsfabi My other brother is quite religious / catholic - not sure how this will impact how he reacts when he finds out. Also, my husband now finds it very very hard to be around my brother when my mom and him and his gf get together for family occasions. I don't find it totally difficult, because he's always been in my life and I've gotten so ptsd I have horrible vivid nightmares every night. sometimes they're trauma related, but most of the time they're about murder, torture and such depraved things that I can't talk about to anyone. every morning I wake up drenched in sweat, and sometimes vomiting. i have no idea what to do. it's ruining my life.

classification	text	subreddit
stress	We'd be savin	ptsd
stress	My ex used to	ptsd
stress	Yesterday afte	ptsd
stress	PTSD is life c	ptsd
stress	If I continue, I	ptsd
stress	My wrists star	ptsd
stress	The server en	ptsd
stress	They weep af	ptsd
stress	He also tortur	ptsd
stress	My "symptom	ptsd
stress	Like, I don't th	ptsd
trauma	I feel like a co	ptsd
stress	I have reduce	ptsd
trauma	I just wanted t	ptsd stress	I,Äô so tired	ptsd
trauma	How...do I do	ptsd
stress	By the fourth i	ptsd
stress	Spring 2102 I	ptsd
trauma	I,Äô a previc	ptsd
stress	I leave and br	ptsd
trauma	But I have bee	ptsd
stress	I dwell on neg	ptsd
stress	I realized how	ptsd
stress	for years i've l	ptsd
stress	i experience c	ptsd
trauma	Yeah, not so r	ptsd
stress	I developed a	ptsd

stress	Hi PTSD forum	ptsd
stress	After getting s	ptsd
stress	I may try a ne	ptsd
stress	So I've had P	ptsd
stress	I feel like the t	ptsd
stress	I went through	ptsd
stress	The second h	ptsd
stress	If I am to surv	ptsd
stress	The first two t	ptsd
stress	This weekend	ptsd
stress	If you don't, fi	ptsd
stress	I really need t	ptsd
stress	The news is a	ptsd
stress	Hello everyon	ptsd
stress	(although i,Äô	ptsd
stress	She's the first	ptsd
stress	If so, what me	ptsd
stress	I feel like I am	ptsd
stress	Will I ever like	ptsd
trauma	And I'm feelin	ptsd
stress	She and I are	ptsd
stress	Don,Äôt worry	ptsd
stress	Post contains	ptsd
stress	I just need to	ptsd
stress	Hey guys I ha	ptsd
stress	He pretty muc	ptsd
stress	So my brother	ptsd

stress	I hate this fee	ptsd
stress	I regret signin	ptsd
stress	Anything from	ptsd
stress	They work tog	ptsd
stress	Everyday I ha	ptsd
trauma	This probably	ptsd
stress	I stayed in Afr	ptsd
trauma	Hey everyone	ptsd
stress	This is good a	ptsd
stress	As of Sunday	ptsd
stress	Then I came h	ptsd
stress	When my SO	ptsd
stress	You can still tr	ptsd
stress	I have an extr	ptsd
stress	I screamed ar	ptsd
stress	<url> For info	ptsd
stress	But here i am	ptsd
stress	It may have b	ptsd
stress	And how I ma	ptsd
stress	I just don't kno	ptsd
trauma	My PTSD has	ptsd
stress	We will also p	ptsd
stress	I'm not sure...	ptsd
trauma	I get intrusive	ptsd stress	Now I,Äôm in	ptsd
stress	​ H	ptsd
trauma	*potential trig	ptsd

stress	The two wom	ptsd
trauma	She starts to	ptsd
trauma	Best to work k	ptsd
stress	I let out a louc	ptsd stress	I look in the m	ptsd
stress	My job is very	ptsd
stress	I was raised b	ptsd
trauma	Lately I have s	ptsd
stress	Not really sure	ptsd
stress	It seems that	ptsd
stress	Eventually my	ptsd
stress	I took the time	ptsd
stress	Typing is keep	ptsd
stress	I get it, people	ptsd
stress	What are you	ptsd
stress	I can't go into	ptsd
stress	i don,"Äôt both	ptsd
stress	and i still feel	ptsd
stress	I am scared a	ptsd
stress	The terrifying	ptsd
stress	The last straw	ptsd
stress	(I don't know I	ptsd
trauma	I would like to	ptsd
trauma	I couldn,"Äôt s	ptsd
stress	I am so ready	ptsd
stress	And now that	ptsd
trauma	Even though t	ptsd

stress	I am looking f	ptsd
stress	The difference	ptsd
stress	Brian has exa	ptsd
stress	My own sleep	ptsd
stress	I've got a goo	ptsd
stress	I hadn't realiz	ptsd
stress	Was looking a	ptsd
stress	I then confron	ptsd
stress	My car broke.	ptsd
trauma	I've been dati	ptsd
trauma	CW: mentions	ptsd
stress	I have very st	ptsd
trauma	I don't have P	ptsd
stress	On a side not	ptsd
stress	I,Äô'm going to	ptsd
stress	It,Äô's been 12	ptsd
stress	The knowledg	ptsd
stress	I'm not massiv	ptsd
trauma	i have horrible	ptsd

classification	text	subreddit
stress	We'd be savin	ptsd
stress	My ex used to	ptsd
stress	Yesterday afte	ptsd
stress	PTSD is life c	ptsd
stress	If I continue, I	ptsd
stress	My wrists star	ptsd
stress	The server en	ptsd
stress	They weep af	ptsd
stress	He also tortur	ptsd
stress	My "symptom	ptsd
stress	Like, I don't th	ptsd
stress	I feel like a co	ptsd
stress	I have reduce	ptsd
stress	I just wanted t	ptsd stress	I,Ãm so tired	ptsd stress	How...do I do	ptsd
stress	By the fourth i	ptsd
stress	Spring 2102 I	ptsd
stress	I,Ãm a previc	ptsd
stress	I leave and br	ptsd
stress	But I have bee	ptsd
stress	I dwell on neg	ptsd
trauma	I realized how	ptsd
stress	for years i've l	ptsd
stress	i experience c	ptsd
stress	Yeah, not so r	ptsd
stress	I developed a	ptsd

stress	Hi PTSD forum	ptsd
stress	After getting s	ptsd
stress	I may try a ne	ptsd
stress	So I've had P	ptsd
stress	I feel like the t	ptsd
trauma	I went through	ptsd
stress	The second h	ptsd
stress	If I am to surv	ptsd
stress	The first two t	ptsd
stress	This weekend	ptsd
trauma	If you don't, fi	ptsd
stress	I really need t	ptsd
stress	The news is a	ptsd
trauma	Hello everyon	ptsd
stress	(although i,Äô	ptsd
stress	She's the first	ptsd
stress	If so, what me	ptsd
stress	I feel like I am	ptsd
trauma	Will I ever like	ptsd stress	And I'm feelin	ptsd
stress	She and I are	ptsd
stress	Don,Äôt worry	ptsd
stress	Post contains	ptsd
stress	I just need to	ptsd
stress	Hey guys I ha	ptsd
stress	He pretty muc	ptsd
stress	So my brother	ptsd

stress	I hate this fee	ptsd
stress	I regret signin	ptsd
trauma	Anything from	ptsd
stress	They work tog	ptsd
stress	Everyday I ha	ptsd
stress	This probably	ptsd
stress	I stayed in Afr	ptsd
stress	Hey everyone	ptsd
stress	This is good a	ptsd
stress	As of Sunday	ptsd
stress	Then I came h	ptsd
stress	When my SO	ptsd
stress	You can still tr	ptsd
stress	I have an extr	ptsd
stress	I screamed ar	ptsd
stress	<url> For info	ptsd
stress	But here i am.	ptsd
stress	It may have b	ptsd
stress	And how I ma	ptsd
stress	I just don't kno	ptsd
stress	My PTSD has	ptsd
stress	We will also p	ptsd
stress	I'm not sure...	ptsd
stress	I get intrusive	ptsd stress	Now I,Äô in	ptsd
stress	​ H	ptsd
stress	*potential trig	ptsd

trauma	The two women	ptsd
stress	She starts to	ptsd
stress	Best to work	ptsd
stress	I let out a loud	ptsd stress	I look in the mirror	ptsd
stress	My job is very	ptsd
stress	I was raised by	ptsd stress	Lately I have	ptsd
stress	Not really sure	ptsd
stress	It seems that	ptsd
stress	Eventually my	ptsd
stress	I took the time	ptsd
stress	Typing is keeping	ptsd
stress	I get it, people	ptsd
stress	What are you	ptsd
stress	I can't go into	ptsd
stress	i don't, both	ptsd
stress	and i still feel	ptsd
stress	I am scared a	ptsd
stress	The terrifying	ptsd
stress	The last straw	ptsd
stress	(I don't know I	ptsd
stress	I would like to	ptsd stress	I couldn't, s	ptsd
stress	I am so ready	ptsd
stress	And now that	ptsd
stress	Even though I	ptsd

stress	I am looking f	ptsd
stress	The difference	ptsd
stress	Brian has exa	ptsd
stress	My own sleep	ptsd
stress	I've got a goo	ptsd
stress	I hadn't realiz	ptsd
stress	Was looking a	ptsd
stress	I then confron	ptsd
stress	My car broke.	ptsd
stress	I've been dati	ptsd
trauma	CW: mentions	ptsd
stress	I have very st	ptsd
stress	I don't have P	ptsd
stress	On a side not	ptsd
stress	I,Äô'm going to	ptsd
stress	It,Äô's been 12	ptsd
stress	The knowledg	ptsd
stress	I'm not massiv	ptsd
trauma	i have horrible	ptsd

subreddit	text	classification
ptsd	We'd be saving s	unknown
ptsd	My ex used to st	unknown
ptsd	Yesterday aftern	trauma
ptsd	PTSD is life char	unknown
ptsd	If I continue, I st	stress
ptsd	My wrists start to	unknown
ptsd	The server enco	unknown
ptsd	They weep after	unknown
ptsd	He also tortured	unknown
ptsd	My "symptoms":	unknown
ptsd	Like, I don't think	unknown
ptsd	I feel like a comp	trauma
ptsd	I have reduced r	stress
ptsd	I just wanted to s	trauma
ptsd	I,Ãm so tired of	unknown
ptsd	How...do I do the	trauma
ptsd	By the fourth inf	stress
ptsd	Spring 2102 I be	stress
ptsd	I,Ãm a previous	trauma
ptsd	I leave and brea	trauma
ptsd	But I have been	trauma
ptsd	I dwell on negati	stress
ptsd	I realized how sr	stress
ptsd	for years i've hac	trauma
ptsd	i experience diss	unknown
ptsd	Yeah, not so mu	trauma
ptsd	I developed and	unknown
ptsd	Hi PTSD forums	unknown
ptsd	After getting star	stress
ptsd	I may try a new r	stress
ptsd	So I've had PTS	unknown

ptsd	I feel like the true	stress
ptsd	I went through so	trauma
ptsd	The second half	unknown
ptsd	If I am to survive	unknown
ptsd	The first two time	unknown
ptsd	This weekend wa	unknown
ptsd	If you don't, find	unknown
ptsd	I really need to g	unknown
ptsd	The news is alwa	stress
ptsd	Hello everyone, .	unknown
ptsd	(although i,Ã	stress
ptsd	She's the first pe	stress
ptsd	If so, what metho	unknown
ptsd	I feel like I am ju	stress
ptsd	Will I ever like it?	unknown
ptsd	And I'm feeling c	trauma
ptsd	She and I are ga	trauma
ptsd	Don,Ã	trauma
ptsd	Post contains sp	unknown
ptsd	I just need to get	trauma
ptsd	Hey guys I have	trauma
ptsd	He pretty much t	unknown
ptsd	So my brothers v	unknown
ptsd	I hate this feeling	unknown
ptsd	I regret signing u	unknown
ptsd	Anything from el	stress
ptsd	They work togeth	stress
ptsd	Everyday I have	unknown
ptsd	This probably so	trauma
ptsd	I stayed in Africa	unknown
ptsd	Hey everyone, I,	trauma

ptsd	This is good and	stress
ptsd	As of Sunday i h	stress
ptsd	Then I came hor	unknown
ptsd	When my SO an	unknown
ptsd	You can still trigg	unknown
ptsd	I have an extrem	unknown
ptsd	I screamed and	stress
ptsd	<url> For informa	unknown
ptsd	But here i am, h	trauma
ptsd	It may have been	unknown
ptsd	And how I made	unknown
ptsd	I just don't know	unknown
ptsd	My PTSD has m	trauma
ptsd	We will also prov	unknown
ptsd	I'm not sure...? I'	stress
ptsd	I get intrusive me	trauma
ptsd	Now I,Ãm in a f	stress
ptsd	​ Hey	trauma
ptsd	*potential trigger	trauma
ptsd	The two women	stress
ptsd	She starts to cry	trauma
ptsd	Best to work bac	trauma
ptsd	I let out a loud w	unknown
ptsd	I look in the mirr	unknown
ptsd	My job is very di	stress
ptsd	I was raised by a	unknown
ptsd	Lately I have sta	unknown
ptsd	Not really sure w	stress
ptsd	It seems that as	unknown
ptsd	Eventually my vi	unknown
ptsd	I took the time to	unknown

ptsd	Typing is keeping	unknown
ptsd	I get it, people co	stress
ptsd	What are you tha	unknown
ptsd	I can't go into pu	unknown
ptsd	i don,Äôt bother	unknown
ptsd	and i still feel like	unknown
ptsd	I am scared as fr	unknown
ptsd	The terrifying pa	unknown
ptsd	The last straw th	unknown
ptsd	(I don't know hov	unknown
ptsd	I would like to re	trauma
ptsd	I couldn,Äôt stop	trauma
ptsd	I am so ready to	stress
ptsd	And now that the	stress
ptsd	Even though tho	trauma
ptsd	I am looking for p	unknown
ptsd	The difference b	unknown
ptsd	Brian has exactly	unknown
ptsd	My own sleep iss	unknown
ptsd	I've got a good h	unknown
ptsd	I hadn't realized	stress
ptsd	Was looking at th	unknown
ptsd	I then confronted	unknown
ptsd	My car broke. Ag	stress
ptsd	I've been dating	trauma
ptsd	CW: mentions of	trauma
ptsd	I have very stron	unknown
ptsd	I don't have PTS	unknown
ptsd	On a side note, t	unknown
ptsd	I,Äôm going to b	stress
ptsd	It,Äôs been 12 h	unknown

ptsd	The knowledge t	stress
ptsd	I'm not massively	unknown
ptsd	i have horrible vi	trauma

[illegible]

anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
stress	stress
stress	stress
stress	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
stress	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress

anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
anxiety	stress
stress	stress
ptsd	stress
ptsd	stress
domesticviolence	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
ptsd	stress
ptsd	stress
domesticviolence	stress
domesticviolence	stress
domesticviolence	stress
ptsd	stress
domesticviolence	stress
ptsd	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
ptsd	stress
ptsd	stress
domesticviolence	stress
domesticviolence	stress
ptsd	stress
ptsd	stress
ptsd	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
ptsd	stress
domesticviolence	stress
domesticviolence	stress

ptsd	stress
domesticviolence	stress
ptsd	stress
ptsd	stress
domesticviolence	stress
domesticviolence	stress
domesticviolence	stress
ptsd	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
ptsd	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
survivorsofabuse	stress
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma

ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	experience
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma

survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma

[illegible]

ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma

survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma

ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma

survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
domesticviolence	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
survivorsofabuse	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma
ptsd	Trauma